Wharton Grads Want Present Grade System

By JOHN DANTZIGER

Wharton graduate students overwhelmingly approved the establishment of the school's first present grade system two years ago, and yesterday they are expected to observe the same by voting yes on a proposal from the Faculty Standards Committee suggesting that present grades be eliminated. They would be replaced by "normal" grades at a level of 0-4, 2-4, 4-4 and 4-4. The system would go into effect immediately.

The vote was part of a proposal to establish a new system for grading on a present basis. The new system would replace the present grading system, which has been in effect for the past three years, with a system of 0-4, 2-4, 4-4 and 4-4. The new system would be allowed to go into effect immediately.

The proposal was met with mixed reactions from the students. Some students felt that the new system would be more fair and equitable, while others believed that the present system was better. However, the proposal was passed by a large majority, indicating that the students favored the new system.

Goldwater

"I think there has been more violence and more apparent than we've usually had," he added.
Goldwater conceded, however, that "in a minority party it takes a little bit of the band of God for the Republicans to win an election, and I don't exactly think God is on our side right now."

"Watergate was something I never could have happened again," Goldwater said. "But I think you can stop it if you want to. I think you stop it by getting the right kind of people involved in politics."

Goldwater said he was pessimistic about a quick end to the fighting in the Horn and the Golan Heights. "I think the bitterness and historical differences between the Arabs and Jews will only die of their own vitality."

Goldwater also warned against diplomatic actions by other nations which could result in the conflict. "They said, however, that his recent visits to the region had helped achieve "a change in the Arab attitudes toward the Jew and a change in the Jewish attitudes toward the Arabs." He said he thought the mutual distrust could be slowly disappearing.

"I don't think France will make that $150 million loan to Egypt," Goldwater said. "I don't think it would be a good idea."

Grand Jury Indicts Former "Plumber" Chief

WASHINGTON (UPI)-Legal knoth old plumber, former chief of the White House "Plumbers" unit, was indicted Thursday by a grand jury for his role in the Watergate cover-up.

The indictment, the first obtained by Special Prosecutor Archibald Cox, was entered for the Watergate grand jury to U.S. District Judge John Sirica in open court.

The indictment charged E. Howard Hunt, former White House aide, John Dean, an attorney, and former chief of the "Plumbers" unit, with conspiring to make false statements to the Watergate grand jury.

The indictment also charged that the three defendants conspired to obstruct justice by failing to appear before the grand jury.

The indictment alleged that the three defendants, in the course of their conspiracy, made false statements to the grand jury and obstructed justice by failing to appear.

The indictment further alleged that the defendants conspired to obstruct justice by making false statements to the grand jury and by failing to appear.

The defendants were each charged with one count of conspiring to obstruct justice and one count of making false statements.

Nixon Promises Aid

WASHINGTON (UPI)-President Nixon Thursday increased the energy research budget by $15 million, bringing the total to $115 million.

The increase, announced last September by a White House spokesman, was aimed at the development of new technologies and energy conservation.

Nixon said the increased budget would enable the United States to "get a jump on the rest of the world." He added that "the United States should be able to develop new technologies and energy conservation programs in the next five years."

Chilean Politics

As an American born and raised in Chile, I must express my disappointment at Mr. Obrinsky’s article, Chile: At Last, Alternatives. As most Americans today, Mr. Obrinsky still clings to the wonderful Latin American U.S. was dealings of the past.

One is a lack of perspective- politicians are made differently these days, and our intelligence is far superior to the 1800s. The people in the man are doing this, and I do not think that they have the time or the patience to think about the Latin American situation.

Secondly, Obrinsky has a tendency to show his southern sympathies by using them in a way of voicing his frustrations over internal U.S. political problems. This is a time when we are facing the war, the farm crisis, and the general economic problems.

The U.S. is too big a country to be a one-man show. We have a great many problems to face, and it is not doing any good to cry about the past.

Finally, I would like to say that the U.S. is doing the best it can in the Chile situation. The U.S. has a long history of helping other countries, and I think that we should continue to do so.

Sincerely,

Middle East War Not "Pearl Harbor"

Nothing could be more ridiculous than the war in the Middle East being compared to the Pearl Harbor attack.

It is true that both the United States and the Middle East have been under attack, but the two situations are vastly different. The Pearl Harbor attack was a surprise attack by Japan, while the Middle East war is a result of long-standing political tensions.

The United States has a clear understanding of the situation and has a much better chance of winning. Therefore, it is not a comparison that can be made.

Blackout Article "Intellectual Snobbery"

Covering Mr. Ginsberg’s Oct. 4, 1973, editorial, “The Blackout in Athletic Policy,” I have little complaints with the content of his article, but I do believe the blacked-out rule, if enforced as he says, will be detrimental to the college community.

I believe that the athletes of Penn should be treated with respect and dignity, just as any other students.

Liberation or Conformity?

By Becky D. Hanson

There’s a lot of talk these days about liberation and conformism. People are constantly discussing the benefits of each, and many are torn between the two.

In my opinion, conformism is the better choice. It is the more responsible approach, and it promotes a sense of community and belonging.

However, I do not mean to say that people should never try new things or challenge the status quo. I believe that it is important to keep an open mind and be willing to try new things, but I also believe that it is important to be aware of the consequences of our actions.

Sincerely,

Soccer "Rough Stuff"

Regarding the letter "Pepé Nuinrad," by Kiyi-Kay Schindler, I have no doubts that he is a great soccer player. However, I do have some concerns about his tactics on the field.

It is true that soccer is a rough sport, and some players may feel the need to use physical tactics to gain an advantage. However, it is important to remember that the game is meant to be played with respect for each other.

Sincerely,

Frosh Football

The Frosh football season has been a disappointment to many students, thus far. The team has been outscored and shut out by a combination of swarming defenses and deft passing attacks. The Frosh offense, which was expected to be more dynamic, has failed to live up to expectations. The defense has been inconsistent, allowing too many big plays. While the team has shown improvement in certain areas, overall it has yet to demonstrate the necessary cohesion and teamwork to compete effectively.

Dartmouth Empire May Fall against Penn

BY EDWARD LINDSAY

It was an eventful week for the Penn football team.

To start it off, the inspired Quakers defeated a tough, determined squad from Brown. But that was only a taste of what was to come. Bob Bliss, a former Big Green star, announced that he would be joining the Penn football team. Bliss had been a sensation during his time at Dartmouth, and his arrival was seen as a major boost to the Penn offense.

The Quakers were still in high spirits as they prepared for their next game, this time against Princeton. Despite being favored, the Quakers were not taking anything for granted. The Princeton team had been on a roll, and they were determined to upset the defending champions.

In a hard-fought game, the Quakers emerged victorious, winning 24-14. The win was a testament to the team's resilience and determination, as they had faced adversity throughout the season. The victory brought excitement to the campus and left fans looking forward to the next game.

Undefeated Penn Booters Face Winless Big Green

The Penn football team was looking forward to their next game, which was against the undefeated Big Green. The team had been on a roll, and they were determined to keep their winning streak going.

The game was a hard-fought battle, with both teams playing their best. In the end, it was the Penn team that emerged victorious, winning 24-14. The win was a testament to the team's resilience and determination, as they had faced adversity throughout the season. The victory brought excitement to the campus and left fans looking forward to the next game.

DP Swamis

Today's Swamis feature our annual profile of the Dartmouth football team, which is the pride of the Big Green. The team has been on a roll, and they are determined to keep their winning streak going.

The team is led by a young and talented quarterback, who has been named the Most Valuable Player in the Ivy League. The team has also been bolstered by the addition of a new running back, who has been a revelation on the field.

The team is looking forward to their next game, which is against Princeton. The team is determined to keep their winning streak going and is looking forward to the challenge.

Harriers Set for Tiger Challenge

The Harriers are set to face off against the Tigers next week. The team is looking forward to the challenge, and they are determined to come out on top.

The game will be a hard-fought battle, with both teams playing their best. In the end, it was the Harriers that emerged victorious, winning 24-14. The win was a testament to the team's resilience and determination, as they had faced adversity throughout the season. The victory brought excitement to the campus and left fans looking forward to the next game.
