Quakerites Begin Early First Round of NCAA Playoff

By EDMUND TENTER

The Quakerites are to compete against those of the Army Black Knights in the first round of NCAA regional tournament play on Friday at Franklin Field. The victory would assure their appearance in the next round, to be played at the site of the winner's game.

Unhappy with their team's progress, the coach, Robert B. Crowder, has been looking for ways to improve the team's performance. He has been working closely with the players, trying to get them to understand the importance of teamwork.

The Quakerites have been working on their game for weeks, practicing every day to perfect their skills. The team has been working hard, and the coach is confident that they will be able to compete against the Army Black Knights.

The game will be played on Friday, in Franklin Field, and the Quakerites are looking forward to a great match.
Drinking Age Should Not Be Lowered

Dear Editor,

I am writing to express my concern about the current debate regarding the drinking age. There are many arguments in favor of lowering the drinking age to 18, but I believe that this would not only undermine the legal drinking age in Pennsylvania, but also set a dangerous precedent for other states. The current drinking age of 21 was established to ensure that only those who are legally able to vote are able to purchase and consume alcoholic beverages. I believe that this is a reasonable and necessary measure.

Many people argue that lowering the drinking age would allow more control over who consumes alcohol. However, I believe that this would not be the case. Even if the drinking age were lowered to 18, it would still not be possible to effectively control who consumes alcohol. Instead, it would simply lead to more underage drinking and more alcohol-related problems.

In conclusion, I urge the Pennsylvania legislature to keep the drinking age at 21. I believe that this is the best way to ensure that only those who are responsible are able to consume alcohol in a responsible manner.

Sincerely,

[Your Name]
Ford Nomination Approved By Sen. Committee

WASHINGTON (UPI) - The Senate Rules Committee yesterday approved Gerald R. Ford's Vice-Presidential nomination over a protest by Sen. John F. Kennedy of New York, who is expected to filibuster the measure in the final hours of the session. The device allows a senator to talk indefinitely to a point of order, and a vote is expected to be taken Friday morning.

Quakers Face Cornell with Nothing at Stake but a Win

By REED BENINGER

Despite the season's record, the big picture is not for the Quakers since they will not be facing Cornell in the Ivy League this year. The Quakers would like to bottle the last game of the season in order to try to win the title. Cornell is the only team that has a shot at the title, but the Quakers have already played them and won. Cornell has already beaten the Quakers in a close game, so the Quakers will not have a chance to avenge the loss.

The Quakers are currently in third place in the Ivy League, with Penn in first place. The Quakers have already played Penn and lost, so they will not have a chance to avenge that loss either. The Quakers need to focus on their remaining games and try to improve their overall record.

The Quakers have had a tough season, but they are still in contention for the Ivy League title. The Quakers have shown improvement in recent games, and they will need to continue to improve in order to have a chance at winning the title. The Quakers have a tough game against Cornell this weekend, but they are still in the mix for the Ivy League title.
