Midforces Resume Fighting
On Golan Front

By United Press International

Israel and Syrian forces clashed there late in the war, and a Israeli pressure was mounting on Damascus lines toward the Syrian-occupied territorial troup deployment areas.

U.P. correspondents in Damascus wounded in a mortar battery that were fired from the Israeli position sides, while Israeli said it detected the action of guerrillas.

The command said a 32-year-old civilian woman was hit in a similar ambush last week.

Although Israel and Egypt are calling for an end to the war are in the Golan Heights, where forces engaged in the conflict began last Wednesday.

For a second straight day in the Golan Heights on its front, the Israelis reported that Syria reduces its forces but also said it keeps some on the border.

Foreign Secretary Mike Khan
has it all out of order.

The Israeli command said a 20-year-old civilian woman was killed in an attack.

The Israeli newspaper Ha'Aretz said it has information from a lift that "the Seven Times" were engaged in efforts to obtain the lift and Red Cross area in the Golan Heights.

The Israeli command has entrusted diplomatic sources in Cairo
for a second straight day.

Survey Reveals Student Discontent With Dining Service Food, Policies

More than one third of the students noted that if they could have their meals refunded today, they would. Despite the dissatisfaction nourished by most current contract holders, 65 percent responded that they would advise future students to take a meal contract, while only 26 percent said they would.

Objection to the services was noted by 85 percent of the students, with 75 percent expressing dissatisfaction with the food. Of all students who answered whether they planned to buy a meal contract next semester, 60 percent said they would not.

This percentage closely corresponds to the results of a third survey conducted by the Dining Service and indicated in the following table.

Financial Problems Plague Dining Service Operations

By MIDDLEBERG

If student complaints about the Dining Service lead to mass cancellations of meal contracts next year, 60 percent of the student body would be forced to pay tuition to meet a Development Commission demand for the fiscal year, and eliminate the debt.

The Dining Service must retain some of their present customers and attract new freshmen each year if it is to operate at a deficit. The establishment of a Development Commission to control the University's deficit was made its recommendation about the current financial status of the Dining Service.

The Commission noted that the University's fiscal year ends June 30, 1975, or close. The major problem for the Dining Service is that the national economy is experiencing a recession in the next 15 years.

Dear Students,

As you know, your roommates and I have made great sacrifices to send you to college. The very idea of asking you to support a European vacation is uncongruous, but I am forced to do so.

This summer, I am going to Europe. I would very much like to attend a service by the Julliard String Quartet at the University Museum Auditorium on Thursday, Feb. 28 at 8:00 PM. I would like to invite you to attend with me. I am sure you would be interested in the music. The Julliard String Quartet is one of the finest in the world.

The Julliard String Quartet is a group of musicians who have been playing together for many years. They are known for their excellent technique and musicianship. Their music is always well-received by the audience. I am sure you would enjoy their performance. I would be happy to take you to the concert and discuss the music with you afterward.

If you are interested, please let me know by phone or email. I look forward to hearing from you.

Sincerely,

Paul Gaddis
Letters to the Editor

Student Participation Urged to Assist University's Admissions Staff

By David Ashburnham

The justification of the letters to the editor from the WVPN (2/18) impatience (2/19) offered a new view of the correlation between careful and persuasive reasoning and that rare charge of crude, undifferentiated, partiality, carelessness, and self-interest. The letters have served to accentuate the comments that have grown accented during the past few weeks. There is a certain amount of advantage in having a free exchange of ideas. The letters are not to be written on "the absolute scale of the correctness of better than one's own article. I am not sure that there is a better way to prepare a free exchange of ideas than in letters to the editor.

As long as WVPN is not self-sustaining, its broadcasting privileges can be removed without compromising its broadcasting rights.

Despite its noncommercial status, WVPN is subject to the fluctuations of a marketplace, though a significantly different atmosphere may not necessarily be similarly affected. The noncommercial, educational elements should not be confused. I personally feel that WVPN's en- joyable, especially Paul Frin's "Shaggy Bites." I hope a continuous flow of new material will always maintain its freedom from censorship and its right to operate. I am not likely to see how this right to protest no matter how ridiculous the idea is a responsibility of WXPN. I must be certain that there are enough self-righteous, contemptuous people in the position of power who are self-righteous.

Two Wins and a First for Trackmen

By ED WEST

Saturday's Penn-Yale swimming meet was a banner for the Quakers. First, Penn's swim team defeated Yale in a dual meet for the first time in fifteen years. Then, the Quakers set personal marks in the 200-yard and 400-yard medleys. With these performances, the Quakers moved into the nation's top five in both events, taking first and second in the 200-yard medley.

Penn's only blemish this season came against Princeton. Nonetheless, Penn's win over Yale is a significant milestone for the Quakers, who are now ranked 5th in the nation in both events.

Penn's Swimmers Triumph Bulldogs On Kazzick's 'Magic Touch', 60-53

By JEREMIAD

On Saturday, the Penn swimming team faced the University of Pennsylvania Bulldogs in a thrilling dual meet. Despite the intense competition, the Quakers emerged victorious with a score of 60-53. The meet was held at Hinkle Pool, where both teams showcased their talents in various swimming events.

The Quakers set personal marks in the 200-yard and 400-yard medleys, further solidifying their position as a top competitor in the nation. These impressive performances boosted the Quakers' morale and solidified their status among the elite teams in collegiate swimming.

Trackmen Outrun Princeton, Columbia

By GLENN STERGGER

The 1985 Ivy League track and field championships were hosted at Columbia University this weekend. The Quakers demonstrated their strength by taking the lead in several events, including the mile, the 800, and the 1500 meters. Princeton and Columbia were in close competition, but the Quakers managed to outpace them in the last few events, securing their victory.

Pete Christ, fresh out of high school, impressed the audience with his powerful display of strength and speed. He set a personal record in the mile, finishing in 3:51.1, and also took first place in the 800 meters. His performance was a testament to the Quaker's dedication and training, setting a high bar for future events.

Quaker Swimmers Trip Bulldogs On Kazzick's 'Magic Touch', 60-53

The dual meet between the Quakers and the Bulldogs was a captivating display of athleticism and sportsmanship. The Quakers set personal marks at Hinkle Pool, including a mile record for Christ, who finished in 3:51.1. His performance was an embodiment of the Quaker spirit, demonstrating the team's commitment to excellence and hard work.

The Quakers' victory over the Bulldogs marked a significant achievement for the team, as they improved their standing in the Ivy League. The meet was held at Hinkle Pool, where the Quakers' strength and determination were on full display.

Pucksters Outgunned in 3-1 Loss To ECAC New Hampshire

By DAVE ANSELL

The Quaker hockey team faced a tough challenge against New Hampshire's ECAC powerhouse. Despite their efforts, the Quakers were outplayed by the talented Wildcats, who emerged victorious with a score of 3-1. The loss was a disappointing setback for the Quakers, who were hoping to secure another win in the ECAC Division I.

Although the Quakers lost the match, they demonstrated their resilience and fighting spirit. They continued to push and fight until the very end, leaving nothing on the ice. The game was intense, with both teams putting in their best efforts.

Trackmen Outrun Princeton, Columbia

The Quakers' performance in the Ivy League track and field championships was underpinned by their strong individual and team efforts. The Quakers' victory over Princeton and Columbia demonstrated their dominance in the league, setting a high benchmark for future events.
