"Dear Miss Wilson,

I am delighted to hear of your appointment to the Rhodes Scholarship. It is a great honor and one that I am sure you will not fail to fulfill. May your studies in Oxford be fruitful and your future career a success. With warm regards,

Eisenhower"

Penn Singers present the Gilbert & Sullivan review "The Mikado" at 8 P.M. on Friday, March 22, and at 2 P.M. on Saturday, March 23 in Annenberg Auditorium. Admission is $1.50. With the exception of a few songs done in the original language, the production is a musical comedy stylized for American tastes. This will be the Mikado that New Yorkers have been waiting for since last March!

WEDNESDAY, MAR. 20

WEDNESDAY NIGHT

"Lucia" will be presented at the Kine Arts Auditorium at 7 & 10. The film is a historical drama set in 19th-century Sicily and directed by Franco Zeffirelli. "Lucia" is considered one of the greatest films of the 20th century and features some of the most famous actors of their time. The story follows the character of a young woman who is driven mad by the love she has for a heroic but doomed man.

FRIDAY, MAR. 22

"A Life Well Spent" will be presented in the Museum of Fine Arts Auditorium at 7 P.M. This film is a biography of the life of Lucille Ball, one of the most iconic actresses of the 20th century. The film explores her life in Hollywood and her personal struggles with addiction and relationships.

SATURDAY, MAR. 23

"Lady Sings the Blues" will be shown at 6 P.M. in the Museum of Fine Arts Auditorium. This film is a biopic of the life of Billie Holiday, one of the most influential singers in jazz history. The film explores her rise to fame, her struggles with addiction, and her impact on the genre.

Gilbert and Sullivan Return with Penn Singers' Production of "Mikado" by HARRY B. TURNER

Just as "Spamalot" and "The Producers" have been reimagined in recent years, "The Mikado" has made its way to Philadelphia just in time for the spring break. In this latest production, the opera is brought to life by a cast of talented students and faculty members.

"The Mikado" is a classic operetta by William S. Gilbert and Arthur Sullivan, first performed in London in 1885. The story follows the life of a young man named Ko-Ko who is declared the ruler of the island of Titipu. The opera is known for its satirical take on Victorian society and its musical themes.

"The Mikado" is the perfect way to wrap up a long winter and enjoy the lighter side of life. The opera is being performed in the Music Hall Auditorium at 7:30 P.M. on March 20 and 21. Tickets are available at the box office, and they're sure to sell out quickly!

Concerning a Personnel Center

By Michael Sandberg

The issue of implementing an open enrollment program addressed to all departmental personnel whose life cycle is currently in the Personnel Office, SCE, chairperson, regarding a personnel center located in the SCI. As a recent example, we have witnessed the following occurrences, which we believe is a direct result of these occurrences. In some of these cases, cases without a letter of resignation, the personnel office has been forced to provide the position of a specific individual without the individual's consent. This has been detrimental to the organization as they do not inform. The personnel office believes that there should be an avenue by which the personnel can exercise influence, representation, and tenure decisions.

Reader Vehemently Objects to Death Penalty Legislation

The time to act in order to halt this legislation stands a strong position. Lack of adequate legal representation all play a greater role in the death penalty. The use of the death penalty does not act as a deterrent to crime. The penalty has not been shown in all racial discrimination at both trial and commutation phases of the death penalty. There is no formula for determining if a person will be executed. If there are one or more mitigating circumstances then the person will be executed. If there are four mitigating circumstances, the person will be executed. If there are multiple mitigating circumstances, the person will be executed. If there are any mitigating circumstances, the person will be executed.

In June 1972, the Supreme Court supports the position of the American Civil Liberties Union that the facts which persuaded the Supreme Court to overturn the death penalty in Pennsylvania are still directed at Watergate. We believe the penalty will be overturned, even if it is going to classes. Advisor B: Isn't that nonsensical, bro? Advisor C: Yes, but the press will have to be careful in declaring what Watergate is as a real existing news story...

Council

The committee proposal urged that the task force "stop the current Ph.D. graduate group" and state that it be coordinated with the "applications of the Vice-President for Graduate Studies and Fellowship Distribution." Specifically, the committee suggested that the proposal task force "call the attention of the administration and graduates to the importance of graduate programs and examine the policies governing graduate student employment and fellowship distribution."

It also suggested that formalized communication "channels be established between graduate groups and the university administration and that quality standards for graduate programs and promotion in graduate groups be thoroughly examined."

The Library Committee proposed a resolution that identification of any individual at the University according to race be made completely voluntary.

The resolution further proposed that all students of similar records as compiled by these guidelines be destroyed and that absolutely essential records be re-crossed on this basis.

Council may also consider a resolution recommending the establishment of a Planning Committee and a report of the act of a Committee on Review of the Council Ryvaks.

"AT LAST--THE SCREENPLAY!

Now is paperback--the complete screenplay of the most discussed and probably the most shocking movie ever made. Pauline Kael proclaims it "the film that has made the strongest impression on me in almost 20 years of reviewing." Norman Mailer calls it "a failure with a hundred films like The Godfather." Not for you.

You can trust the service, Sandier said, because a "change in atmosphere" and "improvement in the mental condition" is "not perfect" but "we don't have any better alternatives." Sandier said tenure "isn't an answer" and "it depends on the person," she said.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Declaring that President Nixon stays in office "only at the peril of the country" and the "welfare of the nation," Senator James Buckley, R-N.Y., urged him Monday to resign.

The unexpected defection of one of the President's top congressional supporters came as Nixon intensified his efforts to block Senate efforts to impeach him and remove his presidency.

"It is "the most difficult decision I have ever had to make," said Senator Buckley in his statement delivered to the White House.

"It has been suggested that I have decided to make a statement to you which ... could be interpreted as a resignation. That is not the case. I have not resigned."

"I have not decided to resign," he added. "However, I am urging the President to resign."

Buckley, speaking to a news conference Monday afternoon, said he had not asked the President to step down and that the President had not asked for a resignation.

The unexpected move, made by the third Senator to break with the White House since Watergate began, came days after seven Republican Senators announced their intention to lead efforts to impeach the President.

"Nothing else will resolve the crisis. The crisis can be resolved only by the President's resignation," Buckley said.

"He has not been in a position to lead this country for weeks. He can no longer carry out his responsibilities. Whether or not he claims to be a 'law-abiding' President, he is not a law-abiding President."

"The President [has] made a series of proclamations to the American people which he has not kept."

"I believe it would be against the interests of the nation if this President were to remain in office."

"If the President does not resign now, I believe he should resign before the Congress comes back in session on March 21."

"If the President does not resign before the Congress comes back, I will join the seven other Senators in opposing his efforts to modify the impeachment.

Winners in 1973 in both football and basketball and also in lacrosse, the Ivy League is again the front-running favorite in the nation's most-augmented collegiate conference. The attacks on the teams' schedules have raised the bar to a new high level of competition in the Ivy League this year.

Penn增加

The Quakers are the team to watch as they begin their season. Coach John Rautenberg and the Quaker seniors will be counting on their experience to guide the team through the early part of the season. The Quakers are looking to improve upon last year's .500 record, and a good start is essential if they are to remain in the top half of the league.

The Penn men's lacrosse team has won five Ivy titles in the past six years, including the last three. The team has a good mix of veterans and talented freshmen, and is expected to be a strong contender for the Ivy League championship.

The Pennsylvania College of Technology, known as Penn College, is also a strong team in the Ivy League. The Quakers have had some good wins against some of the top teams in the league, and are looking to continue their winning streak.

The Ivy League is considered one of the toughest conferences in college lacrosse, and the Quakers are looking to rise to the occasion and compete with the top teams.

Optimistic Penn Lacrosse Seek to Surprise Iyes

By CHARLES BRACE

"We're going to have to work for everything we get," sophomore Fred Goldstein said during practice this week. "We're not going to be favored in any game, and that's going to be a great motivator for us." Goldstein is one of several Penn players who have stepped up in the absence of senior leader Bob Soos, who is out with a muscle strain.

Coach George Kehoe has high hopes for his team, which is considered one of the top teams in the Ivy League. "We have a lot of talent on this team," he said. "We just have to find a way to put it together." Goldstein, along with his fellow freshmen, is expected to lead the way as Penn seeks to surprise its opponents this season.

The Penn lacrosse team finished last year with a 5-9 record, but with the return of several key players, including Goldstein, the team is looking to improve. "We're going to have to work for everything we get," Goldstein said. "But I think we can do it."
