STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Council Appropriates $170,000 to Activities

By STEVE ENSBERG

The University Budget Committee, in a meeting last year from general fees, paid to be appropriated for by the Student Activities Council. Approximately 100 student-led organizations, ranging from Penn Players to the Latin American Students' Association, receive Council funds. The University allocates a sum equal to 8% of each organization's fee, which is then passed on to Council. The Council then gives 90% of the University's total budget to organizations, minus $5,000. The $5,000 is deducted in the fourth year of the budget due to a major cut in the Student Activities Council's funds. The university's budget for the Student Activities Council was $170,000 last year, but funding for this year has been reduced to $155,000.

The Student Activities Council has total control over the expenditures of the Student Activities' office, which is located in Houston Hall. The council's representatives file their requests for funds with the Student Activities Council office, which then forwards them to the University Budget Committee. The University Budget Committee, in turn, forwards the requests to the Council for final approval. The Council then allocates the funds to the organizations as requested.

Seely Sets Straight Princeton Concerning 'Hutch Lee Controversy'

Until the issue of the fee is correctly resolved, I am not in a position to come to a final conclusion concerning deadlines for fee submission. Obvi-ously, I hope that his application will be considered a part of the public record. After going through an inaccurate report, we are confident that the University community to say "Yes, Dr. Rackin was denied promotion; they are public records. They were not merited for one simple reason: the Almanac's suggestion that they are not confidential documents.

Thus we have the ludicrous situation in which the student paper can publish, or any passing stranger can publish, or any public official can publish, or any official of the Almanac can publish, any Absolutely, we saw the record...

In an attempt to make things more fun, teams in the NCAA Tournament were allowed to use a "fly leash" to hold the ball while playing in the last minutes of the game. This was to prevent players from stalling the game by deliberately losing possession of the ball. The rule was later abolished due to its negative impact on game flow and fair play.
