Gregorian Named to New Deanship

New U. Dean Praised
As Dedicated Scholar

By GAYLE LACKS

Gregorian, who came to the University in July, will assume the duties of the newly designated position of dean. Since September 1984 academic year, he has been involved in various undergraduate and graduate programs under the direction of Provost Harry Ransom. Gregorian was nominated for the position by President Meyerson. Gregorian was selected from a group of candidates consisting of several members of the University's Administrative Committee. He will be responsible for both undergraduate and graduate programs so he can "bolster the University's quality." Included in its 26 departments, schools, and special programs are a major fund-raising effort for the University's new research library.

Energy Chief, Exxon Exec Testify

In Separate Senate Investigations

By United Press International

Two seats away from me sat Miguel Littin, Chile's energy chief. He was one of the many Latin American officials who testified Tuesday against legislation excluding United States oil companies from the petroleum industry, suggesting it would hurt exports. The new named head of the Central Intelligence Agency, Chile's former President Patricio Aylwin, recommended Gregorian's "impact on foreign policy" when he offered me the job. But he does not want to be labeled a political figure. In fact, Gregorian is 52, and has been teaching at Stanford since 1965. He is known for his wide-ranging interests and his ability to communicate with people from all walks of life.

Carp, who gave the Pentagons just 13 cents, said, "Europe doesn't know what a dollar is. We are buying food abroad and in what quantities, our company keeps the Defense Department informed of Saudi threats to cut off oil shipments, not only to the United States but to military units overseas.

Inasmuch of Steven Swerdlow's oil and petroleum control bill before the Senate Finance Committee said Gregorian, Consumer Energy Act of 1978 asks for an expanded country in the world. It's unfounded. Meanwhile, in a related incident, it was announced Monday that Gregorian would be named dean. He is expected to be a key figure in the development of the Bicentennial Center.

usually perform in a university situation. Once they've gotten into it, they've found they've enjoyed it.

Sensitivity to the program, Silverman said, "wasn't a factor that came from the top. The Shakespeare Festival has its heart set on a university setting. It will happen in time.

"I'm sure that as far as student groups are concerned, if they have some appreciation of an educational function, they're developing it from the company itself. The more you do with them, the more sensitive they're becoming to why they're at Penn," he said. "The change in attitude is starting from the bottom and working up."

The Shakespeare Festival and the New Phoenix Company, both of which perform at Lincoln Center productions at the University, have clauses in their contracts requiring contact with their student groups. Both groups use the Center to present their productions before going to New York.

The Shakespeare Festival performs four of its five Lincoln Center productions at the University while the Phoenix performs two of its three shows at the Center. "We've had no cancellations, few problems that have been worked out," Silverman said. "We are looking forward to the future."

Interacts schedule also included many dinners and parties arranged over 80 activities comprising the show's cast.

The Appointment of Vartan Gregorian

The appointment of Vartan Gregorian as the University's dean of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences and director of a reorganized curriculum and a beginning to the end of administration hurdle. Whether that promise will be carried into effect is something the entire University community should watch with interest over the next few years.

While the proposed technological shift back into stagnant liberal arts and sciences by setting up the new Faculty under the direction of a strong and concerned dean seems ideal, it remains to be seen if Dr. Gregorian can overcome the roadblocks that have stymied many an able reform-minded administrator. Dr. Gregorian brings to the job an unbridled enthusiasm for Pennsylvania and its students, which is bound to help him in the monopolistic task that awaits him. Among the hurdles the new dean will face include insufficient funding for programs and faculty, a fragmented student advising structure and confusion over where responsibility and authority lie. Hopefully, his energy as well as his integrity will help him complete his task, and we wish him good luck.

Tours: From Where, to Where?
The University is Not a Nice Place to Visit

Whether that promise will be kept is another story, and students here just as they are a minority on this campus. All too rare is there a confrontation between white students and white administrators with black students and black administrators.

Constructive Criticism is fine, but...
Latest SLA Communique Includes Reprisal Threat

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — A pencilled note and tape recording claiming to be from the Symbionese Liberation Army Monday threatened that five California peace officers would be killed "for every SLA member murdered."

The latest message in the 19-week-old Patricia Hearst kidnaping was mailed to the Sacramento Bee newspaper in California's capital city.

Bee executives said there seemed to be some doubt that the message was authentic, and the FBI was attempting to verify it. Miss Hearst was abducted by the SLA Feb. 4.

"The Symbionese Liberation Army will not allow itself to be slaughtered by the Facist forces who suppress us now," said the note, on lined yellow paper with the SI.A seven-headed cobra symbol.

Mitchell-Stans Jury Begins Deliberation

NEW YORK (UPI) - Nine men and three women are expected to begin deliberating the fate of former Nixon cabinet officers John J. Mitchell and Maurice Stans Wednesday afternoon, the presiding judge in the historic trial said Monday.

Judge Leon E. Gallassi made the prediction after both the prosecution and defense rested shortly after 3 P.M.

Former Ambassador to Succeed Meir

TEL AVIV (UPI) — Labor minister Yitzhak Rabin, a former chief of staff and ambassador to the United States, Monday won the nomination of his ruling Labor party to succeed Mrs. Golda Meir as prime minister of Israel.

But he said he expects problems in forming a new government coalition and may be forced to call new general elections.

A leading dove, Rabin indicated he would continue Mrs. Meir's efforts to reach further peace settlements with Egypt and a troop disengagement agreement with Syria.
