University Starts Year With $6 Million Debt

By MIKE BUCKNER

The University of Pennsylvania has entered the present fiscal year with "serious" financial problems, according to the annual report of Directors of Student Financial Aid and the University Development Foundation board of trustees.

The Development Foundation board has authorized the Office of Budget and Planning to expedite the construction of the new high-rise dormitory, which will be closed for three years.

"The University has been able to proceed with the construction of the new high-rise dormitory," according to the annual report. "However, the University must continue to develop a comprehensive plan for the future of the University."

The University has a pleasant surprise for the library.

When walking down the familiar stairs leading to Rosengarten Library, the undergraduate reserve book and reserve room, she spots, to her delight what Van Pelt Library director Xavier de Gennaris calls "a very significant renovation." The stairwell, originally 9 feet wide, has been widened to 10 feet, making it easier and more comfortable for students. The stairwell is now covered with orange and gold carpeting. The library is accessible from the library, is smaller now, and its space is filled with tables, desks, and chairs, and the previously kind of claustrophobic atmosphere has been replaced with a more open, airy one.

According to the new policy, all dogs and cats must be registered by October 1. After the deadline, no new pets will be allowed. All students in the library, the University's new policy states that pets registered by October 1 will be allowed to be brought on campus, but only in student housing. University at a student's pet will be rejected if a student's pet is not registered. While pets are usually permitted, pets that could be dangerous, noisy, or destructive will be prohibited from entering the building. In student housing, all dogs and cats must be registered by October 1 or they will be removed from the building.

Dogs and cats are the only pets that must be registered. Registered pets must be kept on leashes at all times and must be accompanied by their owners. If an unregistered pet is found on campus, its owner will be given three days notice to return the pet to its owner or else the pet will be removed from the building.

The new policy is a major change from the previous policy, which allowed any pet to enter the library. The new policy is designed to create a more pleasant environment for students and faculty, and to reduce the number of pets on campus. The policy also includes provisions for the removal of pets that are not registered, as well as provisions for the removal of pets that are dangerous or disruptive.

The policy has been met with mixed reactions. Some students have expressed support for the new policy, saying that it will create a more pleasant environment for everyone. Others have expressed concerns about the possibility of pets being removed from the campus. The policy is expected to go into effect after the deadline.

For more information on the new policy, please contact the Office of Animal Welfare at 215-898-8800.

Wharton

The Crisis Nature of Admissions

The following is a news story by Bill R. Campbell, Wharton Alumnus, concerning the recent Peter Seely resignation.

In recent years a belated understanding of the crisis nature of admissions, a crisis that seemed to be the problem at the core of the school, has been growing among students and faculty.

The reason for the truth of that is the nature of admissions at Wharton, a process that has always been at the core of the school, a process that has been used as a major tool for the pursuit of truth, the pursuit of excellence.

In the past, admissions have been a major tool for the pursuit of truth, the pursuit of excellence, a process that has been used as a major tool for the pursuit of truth, the pursuit of excellence.

WASHINGTON - Three defendants in the Watergate cover-up Monday were sentenced by U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica to a year of imprisonment for their part in a plot to break into the Democratic National Committee's headquarters in the Watergate Hotel.

Former Arizona National Guardsmen John R. Dean III, 33, and John N. Mitchell, 42, were given the sentences on charges stemming from an investigation of the Watergate break-in.

Mr. Dean, who was found guilty in the Watergate trial beginning April 26, 1973, on charges of perjury and obstruction of justice, was given a 12-month sentence on each charge. Mr. Mitchell, a former Nixon campaign manager, had been convicted of perjury and conspiracy.

Mr. Dean will be released from jail when he has served 6 months of the 12-month sentence. Mr. Mitchell will be released when he has served 4 months.

As a British company we'd like to explain our point of view on the record keeping of the Saint Paul trial. We are trying to vary the tone of the record in order to achieve a better sound quality.

A Funny thing happened on my way to eat lunch...

Having been a Penn student for a couple of years, I had reached a point where little fazed me—least I thought I had. One day, after moving in, I was hungry for lunch. Instead of being able to order my favorite club sandwich, I found a full blown book sale had taken over Kelly and Cohen's Restaurant (I later found out they had moved a few doors down to Locust and Walnut Sts., and that The Bookstore had taken over their space).

A person could starve in this type of situation. Why? The next thing you know, you'll be teaching economics in Houston Hall next to the pinball machines (not a bad idea at that). So I walked into this book sale, hoping to find some nourishment among all this food for thought. Instead, my appetite was whetted for buying books once I saw the fantastic bargains they had.

Imagine seeing recent novels, art books, cookbooks, and hundreds of other selections at really low prices.

Well I bought so many books that all I had left was money for a cup of coffee and a donut. And as I sat down to order, I thought about how lucky I was to finally find even that restaurant, otherwise I might have had to eat my words.

Penn Competes for U.S. At World Crew Championships

By JoJo Engledoll
While most of the Penn community was vacationing this past summer, 12 members of the University were participating in the World Rowing Championships in Lucerne, Switzerland. Lucerne, which is known as the "Swiss City of Lakes," was the site of the 1952 Olympics. The championships, which are sponsored by FISA, the International Rowing Federation, ended on September 20. Ten Penn alumni and a female student also competed against the world's finest rowers in the annual Ohio State Regatta. The争夺者 came from many countries, including the United States, the former Soviet Union, and France. The regatta was held on the Ohio River, which is one of the most challenging rivers in the United States.

In the past, several Penn alumni have won Olympic gold medals, including 1957 graduate Fred Fisher and 1963 graduate Jim Gagan. In 1968, Fisher and Gagan were members of the U.S. men's eight team that won the gold medal. In 1972, Fisher and Gagan were members of the U.S. men's eight team that won the silver medal. In 1976, Fisher and Gagan were members of the U.S. men's eight team that won the bronze medal.

Will Ivy's Be Green Once More?
By Gary Friedman
Break up the 'Yankees', 'Cats', the 'Cats', Irish', 'Pack!' Spoils dynasties have come and gone. In the Ivy League, one dynasty, the Princeton varsity football team, has dominated the Ivy League for the longest time, winning six of the past seven championships, and the other will be Tom, a third-quarter success by such college powerhouses as Notre Dame, Ohio State, Penn State, and Oklahoma.

For the last five years, and nine of the previous 11 campaigns, Dartmouth's offense featured a very long-term success by such college powerhouses as Notre Dame, Ohio State, and Oklahoma.
