Council to Hear Provost’s Report At First Session

Reports by several key administrators have been scheduled to be presented at the first University Council meeting this afternoon.

Philip DeLaury, Dean of the College of the Arts and Sciences, and Vartan Gregorian, and new Vice President for Graduate Studies, are scheduled to address the group.

Vartan Gregorian is expected to comment on trends in the social sciences and humanities in the light of changes in the philosophy of education. The council is also scheduled to address the group.

Wharton Resolution Paves Way For Special Seminars This Spring

by Martin Siegel

The Wharton Faculty Tuesday passed a resolution opposing the university’s proposal to charge students higher tuition for special seminars this spring.

The resolution, passed unanimously, was drafted last spring by the faculty that special seminars, such as Wharton, should be charged for.

Several limitations restrict the faculty’s ability to choose these seminars.

The resolution was passed Tuesday.

Stellar Reaffirm U. Commitment toBlacks

By MARK CORN

At a press conference at the University of Pennsylvania, the University's chancellor, Michael A. Shell, announced that the University had reaffirmed its commitment to Black students. Shell said that the University had taken steps to ensure that Black students would have equal access to educational opportunities. He also announced that the University would increase its financial aid package for Black students.

Gwen Sams, secretary of the Black Student Union, said that the University's commitment was a positive step. "It's about time," she said. "We've been fighting for this for a long time." She added that the University's commitment would help to create a more inclusive and diverse campus.

Shell also announced that the University would expand its Black studies program. He said that the University would offer more courses in African American studies and increase its faculty diversity. "We want to make sure that our students have access to the best possible education," he said.

The announcement was well-received by students. "This is a big deal," said J. Smith, a senior. "We've been waiting for this for a long time."

The University of Pennsylvania is one of the few institutions of higher education that has a significant Black student population. The University's commitment to Black students is part of its efforts to diversify its student body.

Memories Highlight Prisoners' Works

By Linda Lee Walker

Memories and photographs of the world outside the present, art and photography by two Philadelphia prisoners, Vincent Friese and Frederick Roberts, that is now on exhibit through October 23 in the C.A.S. "Prison Art" is the second in a series of exhibits at Annexen, the E. R. Foundation Residential Gallery. The exhibit is open Monday through Thursday 10am to 10pm, and Friday and Saturday 10am to 1:30pm. The exhibit runs through October 23 and is open from 10 am to 5 pm daily. The act and the influence of her art on the world is being followed by Franklin.

Franklin and his Mosaicism Oil's Reflect Her World Travels

By Deborah Hines

Charlotte W. Franklin, a black artist and art teacher in the Philadelphia public schools, has brought her "mosaicism" oil paintings of scenes from Peru, Japan, the Sahel, and Mexico to the Philadelphia Museum on the South Street of College Hall. The twenty paintings on display are of African and Mexican mosaic combined with geometric backgrounds and the influence of her art on the world is being followed by Franklin.

Concrete Towers Host Banjos, Bluegrass

By Lorri Feldman

On the ground floor of the two towers located on Broad Street between the 14th and 15th streets, there are two exhibits. It is the Graduate Towers Music Festival, a time to take a break from studies and meet friends.

And it's also a happy hour, with beer and wine set up in the lobby. A beer and soft drink will be 50 cents, and wine and mixed drinks are 60 cents.

The musicians are mostly university students, but most of the music is rather relaxing. But in the second-floor gallery, the musicians are more serious, and banjos, as well as various instruments.

The music festivals started during the summer of 1973 when the Grad Towers administration purchased the PA system. Grad students and another musician, George Oto, and Nick Landmark have managed the festivals since then. The entire staff, including all the musicians, volunteers, and students, as well as various instruments.

New York Alumni Group to Begin
Increased High School Recruiting

By ELLEN GINSBURG

NEW YORK- The University's New York alumni association has begun a drive in which alumni representatives bring information to and recruit outstanding students in New York City schools.

Speaking at a meeting of New York alumni in Manhattan Club Monday, Assistant Admissions Director Arnold S. Rosoff said the drive is the number one program to be launched by the University's alumni organization in New York City. Rosoff said.

Alumni representatives will visit public and private schools in the city, Brooklyn, Manhattan, and Staten Island to answer students' questions about admission procedures, explain the University's options, and describe student life. The representatives will stress the "superior" education and the school's academic excellence.

Despite his involvement in the conflict, Fikes does not plan to license his career. "If things work out well, I'll start training," he said. He has a job in mind, but he won't reveal details until after the season is over.

Activities Council Will Examine Membership

By RICHARD BRAZIL

The Student Activities Council voted Tuesday evening to establish a committee to investigate the present standards for the recognition of activities. Council Steering Committee Chairman Charles C. Cumberlidge said the council will form a committee to investigate the present standards for the recognition of activities. Cumberlidge said the council will form a committee to investigate the present standards for the recognition of activities.

Quaker Booters Deadlocked By Strong La Salle Defense

By ED WEST

It's been a peculiar two years for Pennsylvania basketball. The name Quakers of pre-1972 are nothing like the memories you may have of this school. The team hadn't been back to the NCAA tournament for 17 years, and was quite a disappointment to many.

In one way, it was better than expected. The team that was expected to dominate the Ivy League last season was not quite as good as the talent it had in the 1972-73 season. But it was still a good team, and they were able to put together an effective defense and offense in the tournament.

This season, the Quakers have been back to the NCAA tournament, and they've shown that they're a team to be reckoned with. They've been playing some of their best basketball in a long time, and they're looking to continue their success into the future.

The defense has been taking the lead as the Quakers have been stingy on both ends of the court. The team's defense has been one of the best in the country, and they've been able to hold opponents to low scoring totals.

What's in Store for '74?

We've got a good offense and a better defense. People think that because of that, we're going to sink through the season. Adolph Belliveau, now back.

Marting, quarterback, 1971 captain.

Two Quaker programs have been happy with a plus-.500 season and a first division ranking. The team begins the season with a 1-0 record, and it's looking good for a strong season this year.

Your personal goal should be to cover your bases and try to get a hold of the ball. There is no guarantee that you will make it happen. There is no guarantee that you will get off the ground. You are going to have to work hard, and you are going to have to be dedicated. You are going to have to do the hard work, and you are going to have to be able to do it.

The test of Fikes' program includes the confidence of the players, some of whom have been playing their best basketball in a long time. Some of the players are now on the rise, and they're looking to make a strong impression this season.

Many programs have been in a state of transition before the first big game of the season nears its opening. Some teams are now making a comeback after being down last season. Some others are trying to get off the ground and start fresh. It's a new season, and there are new opportunities to show what you're really made of.

It's a new season, and there are new opportunities to show what you're really made of. It's a new season, and there are new opportunities to show what you're really made of.

What's in Store for '74?

There are a few things that are going to make it different from all those other seasons. The team that wins this season is going to have a better system of discipline and will be able to hold its own against the best teams in the league.
