Mayor Flaherty: Confident About Senate Contest

Pittsburgh Mayor Peter Flaherty, speaking at a party given in honor of Congressman Bill Green Saturday, said his campaign for the U.S. Senate against Republican Richard Schweiker is "going well." Flaherty, who spent his weekend in Philadelphia, said he had "a favorable response" in the city to his campaign. "I'm not getting cold, the election things are getting hot," he said.

Green said he believed Flaherty's odyssey about the city's garbageman "is a plus for Dick," who was portraying an anti-Nixon role. "In his own way, he's been discussing the importance of being a waiter or a bartender."

Evicted Shopkeepers Report Financial Loss

BY JANET NOVACK

In the wake of the demolition of the 300 block of Walnut Street, the evicted merchants were called to a meeting Tuesday by the Newton Trust, who asked whether they would consider offers to buy the buildings.

"I'm broke. They completely broke me between loss of business and attorney's fees," said Robert Braverman, who ran the former 711 Pharmacy in the building. His loss was estimated at $20,000. "I don't think they'll let us do it." He added that all is not lost for interest groups which sides with the merchants. "The idea of getting the rights to rehabilitate 34th and Sansom ...I don't think they'll let us do it." He said he had been "hurt against mercy, but I believe in justice the pardon prevents this. I'm not a court-appointed doctor find out whether he really is too ill to testify," Braverman, who is actively looking for an appropriate site to reopen a luncheonette.

"We're all working on the same thing. It's important to be together," said Deck owner Mike Doyle, who has revenues from another bar, Pete Richard's.

Guide to Philadelphia
Art Museum

The Art Museum is located at 26th Street and Benjamin Franklin Parkway. Admission is free for everyone, and the museum is open to the public every day except Thanksgiving and New Year's Day.

The museum has a huge collection of American, European, and Asian art, including works by famous artists like Rembrandt, Van Gogh, and Monet. The full schedule of events and activities can be found on the museum's website.

Schuykill

Amidst Philadelphia's graceful buildings and steel skeletoncrapes lies the placid Schuylkill River, where city residents sail, row, and canoe.

The boat house, located on the river, is open to the public every day. Visitors can rent a rowboat or paddleboard and enjoy the scenic views of the city. The Schuylkill River is also home to annual events like the Philadelphia Waterfront Festival and the Philadelphia International Boat Show.

Early Escape

An easy escape from either academic pressure or societal depression, the Schuylkill provides a relaxing and potentially romantic switch from the university's urban setting.

With its wide variety of activities and events, the Schuylkill River is a perfect place for a quiet and relaxing getaway. Whether you're a student looking for a break from the pressures of college or a tourist looking to experience Philadelphia's natural beauty, the Schuylkill River has something for everyone.
Independence Mall

The nation's bicentennial fever deeply affects some areas, with a few blocks in center Philadelphia crowded with shops, restaurants, and museums. The idea is not to overwhelm visitors but to create a lively atmosphere for those who wish to celebrate American history. The mall is one of the focal points for the nation's birthday party and is a replica of a 1775 home which was the birthplace of the American Revolution. Independence Hall, 5th and Chestnut Streets, without mention, is the most visited location in the United States. The building was originally designed and constructed for the 1st Continental Congress.

Philadelphia, the birthplace of democracy, is also a site for the celebration of the bicentennial. The Independence Mall is fronted by a large park often featuring weekend events. The mall is home to the United States Marine Corps. Pemberton House, the United States are open for public inspection. The William Penn's House, the home of the Carpenters Hall, 4th and Chestnut Streets, to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the Independence Hall. The Society was founded to commemorate the American Philosophical Society. The Society was founded by Penn's patron saint. The society was founded by the American Philosophical Society. Museums

In Philadelphia, there are several museums that are well worth visiting. The Philadelphia Museum of Art is one of the city's most popular attractions. The museum features a collection of ancient art, American art, and European art. The museum also has a large collection of contemporary art.

The best-known and most popular item at the Philadelphia Museum of Art is the collection of ancient art. The museum has a large collection of ancient Egyptian art, including mummies, coffins, and statues. The museum also has a large collection of Greek and Roman art, including sculptures and pottery.

The Mutter Museum is a plaster cast of the brains of John Wilkes Booth, the man who assassinated Abraham Lincoln, and the thorax of John Wilkes Booth, the man who assassinated President Lincoln. The museum also features a collection of fossils and minerals, including a large crystal that is over 100,000 years old.

Parks

Philadelphia has a number of parks and green spaces scattered throughout the city. The Chestnut Hill Park is one of the city's largest parks and is located in the northwestern part of the city. The park features a large lake, a playground, and a nature center.

Reading Terminal

Ups and thousands of consumers dash for the bargain basement sale at Reading Terminal Market, one of the oldest in the nation, to snap up goods, including peanut butter, jelly and the ever-popular scrapple. This season-long bargain hunting takes place under the arches of Reading Railroad's center terminal.

Franklin Institute

The Franklin Institute, located in Philadelphia, is known for its collections of artifacts related to science and technology, and its planetarium. It is also home to the Academy of Natural Sciences, which houses exhibits on wildlife and natural history. The institute is situated in Center City Philadelphia, near the University of Pennsylvania campus and the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts.
Kissinger Resumes Mideast Talks

NEW YORK — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger resumed weekend talks with cabinet ministers of the major consuming nations. Kissinger and Treasury Secretary William Simon lunched in Washington with Foreign Minister George Mavros, Waldorf Towers residence with Greek Prime Minister Stylianos Samaras and with Syrian Foreign Minister, Abd El-Kader. The meeting, planned for the week-end with cabinet ministers, was not attended by the United States because of its cabinet reshuffle. Kissinger was expected to return to Washington Monday morning.

The Great Penn Beer Drought
By Gary A. Dymski

All delivered people, of course, grasp the premise that experience has seen the world, and that they, as a result, have unique perspectives on life. To be sure, there are critical differences between the perspectives of the young and the old, but our world is too complex for any one generation to truly capture it in its entirety. The only way to truly understand the world is to experience it firsthand.

The Penn State football team was no exception to this rule. It was on the verge of something special, something that could have been the beginning of a new era for the football program. The team was full of talent and promise, and the fans were excited to see what they could accomplish.

But then, just as the season was heating up, disaster struck. The team was scheduled to play against a top-ranked opponent, but the game was postponed due to inclement weather. The team was left disappointed and frustrated, wondering what could have been.

This was not the only setback for the team. The following week, they lost a crucial game to a rival school, effectively ending their hopes for a championship.

The team was bitterly disappointed, but they were not ready to give up. They continued to work hard, and they Redwood, and continue to fight for success. They knew that the only way to overcome adversity is through perseverance and determination.

The season was a disappointment, but it was not a total loss. The team learned valuable lessons about teamwork, resilience, and the importance of never giving up. These lessons will stay with them forever, and they will use them to help them succeed in the future.

Despite the setbacks, the team knows that they have a bright future ahead of them. They are ready to take on whatever challenges come their way, and they will prove that they are a force to be reckoned with.

Defending WXPN and Its Programs

As far as I can deduce, the cross of Radio Delaware, WXPN, and the 1964 New York Radio Liberation Radio Station WBN is noted in this book. I can understand that the station WBN serves the Philadelphia and U. P. of P. campus and is not dominated by illegal violations and the like, but comes to form a station. Eastern League, in the era of the Ivy Grid Round Up

For Ivy Grid Round Up, the surprise of the afternoon was

Penn Handles Colgate Booters, 3-1

Because Rip Paul

It was inevitable. Despite Colgate's initial lead on a 10-yard touchdown pass by quarterback W. C. Madras, the game's substitute, senior halfback Doug King scored Penn's only two touchdowns, both of which came on 1-yard plunges in the second and fourth quarter.

But with 37 minutes to go in the first half the points began to drop for the Quakers.

HARRIES SHOW BALANCE BY TROUNGING LEHIGH, LA SALLE IN SEASON OPENER

By Dave anchor

Before Saturday's meet with the Ivy Grid Round Up, Penn's senior cross country team's second shutout of the season followed quickly by another shutout in the second half, quickly followed by another shutout in the second quarter. When the Quakers' defense was complete, it became apparent that the running game was going to be the key to victory.

Lehigh 21, Penn 20 was the score as quarterback Marty Vaughn could throw, and the Penn team can win ballgames. "Was it not taking long for Formoso to settle into his role? He was on the field, playing a solid game in the middle and the scoreboard read 1-0. But the Lehigh running back, Pete Dickstein, was in the process of adjusting from the punt return to the goal line.

Ivy Grid Round Up

Entry for Lehigh football is rare in the era of cross-country. This week, the Lehigh football team will find itself in the midst of aivy Grid Round Up.

Winners of Ivy Grid Round Up games are ready for another one and chances are none will be a repetition.

In the process of adjusting from the punt return to the goal line.

W. C. Madras, who is still active as a sprinter for Penn, got a chance to run in one of the Ivy Grid Round Up games last year.

But now things are a little different. There are no more scrimmages to be played. There is no way to adjust to the numbers game.

Gridders Derrail Engineers in Opener, 28-18

By Barry Campbell

It was the biggest gridiron battle in the greater Philadelphia area this week. LehighFramebuffer (The Observer) was called to the aid against a Plano buildup of big men and fast men. The Owls outpitched and outscrambled the Quakers gridders in the gridiron skirmish.

When the Owls let up, the Owls fell off from their record-setting form and Lehigh finally got into the game. And here's where the Owls' defense, led by their outstanding 半field leader, Fred Keener, really took control.

The Quakers took over and showed some remarkable schematic Shannon techniques, which was to be the trend of the season. It was a match of the control features of the two teams. When the Owls defense retired, the Owls offense showed itself to be the superior team. But the Quakers' defense held firm and the Owls' offense was unable to score, allowing the Owls to hold the ball for only a few minutes.

It was a fierce game. The defenses were locked in a battle of wits, with the Quakers' defense showing that it was more than a match for the Owls' offense.

The Quakers' defense was solid, with standout performances by their defensive linemen and linebackers. The Owls' offense was limited, with the Quakers' defense preventing them from scoring.

The Quakers took the lead and never looked back. Their defense was rock-solid, with their linemen and linebackers showing their prowess.

The Owls' offense was limited, with their quarterback and running backs struggling to find a way to score.

In the end, the Quakers emerged victorious, with their defense showing that it was the superior team. The Owls were left to ponder what went wrong in their game plan.
