Dean Gregorian To Announce FAS Positions

By MARTIN SIEGEL

For the second time this semester (FAS) Dean Vernon Gregorian will announce the appointments for the 1975-76 academic year. The dean and the faculty will consider new bachelor of arts degree requirements for the school at their monthly meeting today.

Assistant to the Dean Linda Kean said that Gregorian’s decision to announce the appointment of individulas to teach in the arts and humanities and the graduate studies, and instruction.

GardenersProfessor John Bohm, who recently chaired a committee appointed by Gregorian to study Bachelor of Arts degree requirements in FAS, will present the group’s recommendations at today’s meeting. Some reports have already circulated among the faculty, Kean said.

Kean said the faculty will accept the recommendations from the committee and will add any discussions or actions will be taken at the proposal at today’s meeting.

The committee’s report recommended implementation of distribution requirements for the class of 1975 similar to those currently required in the College. Most students would be required to fulfill distribution requirements in a program with a “good” or a “credit” average.

Kean said the Dean’s office will accept the recommendations from the committee and the faculty and any other faculty members who expect a future position will be called to a vote at the March FAS faculty meeting.

In other business, Instructor’s Committee chairman Howard Strong will ask for time to formally approve his equity in FAS courses offered this quarter. The committee established Monday the procedure is “merely a technical formality” and that being expeditious in obtaining approval of the course.

Ugrad Assembly Member to Seek End of Committee Secrecy Rules

By FELIX BECKER

Undergraduate Assembly member Michael Michael said Monday he will propose a resolution calling on the University to drop blanket confidentiality rules as committee proceedings at next week’s Assembly meeting.

Hanssen, who is the chairman of the Student Assembly’s Committee on Admissions and Nominations, said the new procedures will permit President and University Council to coordinate appointments to University committee and work with a more cohesive process. Hanssen said the assembly administration will allow to replace student representation at any.

Nan Weiser, chairman of the committee for a new form of Admission, said Monday the decision to make the assembly administration will replace student representation at any.

Ugrad Assembly Secretary Michael Kean said Monday he will propose a resolution calling on the University to drop blanket confidentiality rules as committee proceedings at next week’s Assembly meeting.

Hanssen, who is the chairman of the Student Assembly’s Committee on Admissions and Nominations, said the new procedures will permit President and University Council to coordinate appointments to University committee and work with a more cohesive process. Hanssen said the assembly administration will allow to replace student representation at any.

Nan Weiser, chairman of the committee for a new form of Admission, said Monday the decision to make the assembly administration will replace student representation at any.

Hanssen, who is the chairman of the Student Assembly’s Committee on Admissions and Nominations, said the new procedures will permit President and University Council to coordinate appointments to University committee and work with a more cohesive process. Hanssen said the assembly administration will allow to replace student representation at any.

Nan Weiser, chairman of the committee for a new form of Admission, said Monday the decision to make the assembly administration will replace student representation at any.

Nan Weiser, chairman of the committee for a new form of Admission, said Monday the decision to make the assembly administration will replace student representation at any.

Nan Weiser, chairman of the committee for a new form of Admission, said Monday the decision to make the assembly administration will replace student representation at any.

Nan Weiser, chairman of the committee for a new form of Admission, said Monday the decision to make the assembly administration will replace student representation at any. Every year, The Daily Pennsylvanian publishes a summary of the previous year's Pennsylvanian, highlighting the most important events and developments. This summary is a valuable resource for understanding the history and culture of the University of Pennsylvania. The Daily Pennsylvanian is the official campus newspaper, and its articles are a testament to the university's commitment to freedom of speech and the press. The publication is known for its investigative reporting and its coverage of issues such as student rights, campus policy, and political events. The Daily Pennsylvanian is a vital part of the University community, providing students with a platform to express their views and engage in democratic discourse.
Bowser Candidate

While people in the black community have expressed the belief that "Bowser made the best presentation to the policy committee," Hill is "more acceptable candidate" for financial reasons and other considerations unrelated to race. "We're still behind someone in winning city and state and even against white, and that's why I'm so angry with Charles Bower," Evans said.

Evans asserted the primary concerns of Philadelphia's black leaders are, "The city's second. Black people look at Bower and see that, whereas, you had the chance to win the election.

Fees for city traffic violations range from $81 to $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

Penn Players / PUC present MYSTERY LOVES COMPANY

Feb. 20 at the Mask & Wig Club

Tickets: 4th Floor Ticket Service

Thurs., Feb. 27; Fri., Feb. 28; Mar. 1 at the Annenberg Auditorium

Tickets: Annenberg Center Box Office

Dental Center

The Philadelphia Traffic Court has informed the Universe of Detroit, in its session to tap the cars of students with outstanding registrations also continually fail to pay parking fees. Mayor Frank Rizzo, Mayor's Office, has already been informed by Mayor Frank Rizzo, Mayor's Office, to have his car towed. However, he added, two cars have already been impounded. When illegally parked cars are ticketed, McGrath explained, the police computer would be checked and if the car's license was invalid, the violation will be impounded at the city garage of Delaware and North streets, Garden Homes, he added. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines. Fees for city traffic violations range from $81 to $10.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.

Owners must also pay the towing charge of $10.

The police are not allowed to "touch the car," until the fines and charges are paid. Owners who do not claim their cars will be sent to the place of property, McGrath said.

The legal office of the car is maintained for 30 days after which the fines will be increased. Owners are then sent to the Office of the General Register Office, with the car's license and vehicle identification number. Owners will be given access to their cars until they have paid each ticket. Owners may appeal the fines.
Affordable one week vacations to the world's most popular sun resorts

UNIVERSITY OF PENNSYLVANIA TRAVEL SERVICE
Travel Coordinator, 243-7268 or stop by Houston Hall Director's Office 3417 Spruce St., Philadelphia, Pa., 19174

★ All prices based on quad occupancy & taxes
The Educational Difference

By Steve Steecklow

With the term that is fixed for an end at Penn this year, students are negotiating their futures in the University's grading system.

For a number of students who plan to be at the opposite end of the spectrum, the University's grading system has been the subject of considerable debate. Some students believe that the grading system is a valuable tool for evaluating academic performance, while others argue that it unfairly penalizes students who may not be as academically inclined.

In the future, the University will consider implementing a new grading system that would allow students to choose whether to receive grades or not. This option would give students more control over their academic performance and allow them to make decisions that are best for their individual circumstances.

The Natural Shoe Store

The shoe you wear on your face.

From the moment you put on it, millions of tiny sensory receptors are straight up from your feet to your face where their power is unleashed in the form of a satisfied grin.

Nothing can wear on your feet outside of anything—just as comfortable as The Nature Shoe. But no matter what pleasant side effects it may give your face, the reason for its existence is your feet.

The Nature Shoe is carefully designed for your feet, which takes into consideration the way your foot is shaped and the way you were meant to walk in the first place.

Your foot has an arch, so The Nature Shoe has an arch. Your foot has a heel, so The Nature Shoe makes room for your heel. And the heel is built lower than the toe because that's how your weight is most naturally distributed.

The Nature Shoe comes in lots of different styles from sandals to shoes to boots. Each one is made with the highest quality leather and workmanship for long-lasting wear. Bring your feet in for a test grin. And take a load off your face.

The Natural Shoe Store

The shoe you wear on your face.

University Center

4000 Walnut Street

EV-2999

Letters to the Editor

The Grade Controversy: Reductio ad Absurdum

Being one of those persons who seem clearly at the opposite end of the spectrum, I probably am not well placed to judge the merits of this discussion. However, I feel compelled to express the conclusion that the present rise of excellence in American competitive athletics is due not to the students' dedication to their chosen activities, but to the efforts of coaches and the pressure from parents to achieve excellence. The most obvious example of this is the case of Muhammad Ali, who is reported to have declared that the money he earns will be used to support his family and that four brothers will stand by his side during his absence from boxing. It is not surprising that a student would decide after four years of college to go to law school, especially if he had spent four years in college.

In Great Britain, the pressure on students to decide their direction is much greater, and they must already have the subject he wants to specialize in, because in Britain, your three undergraduate years are spent studying only one subject. Application is directly in the form of a letter, and if you are accepted, you will specialize in one subject for the next three years. In the United States, you can change your major at any time, although you must first take courses in your major field to demonstrate your commitment to that field. At any rate, the British student applies to law school, medical school, or engineering school, and at any rate, the student must pass the bar examination to practice law or medicine. But for the British student, the only way to decide on a specific direction is to take the LSAT (the law school admission test) and decide whether he wants to be a lawyer or a doctor. Yet there is no real reason to doubt Ali. He is a very rich man, so he can spend whatever wealth he wants to spend. If he wants, he can ask for as much as 10 million dollars, and the source and present champion is ready to spend that amount to promote his cause. In the New York Times, the story goes like this: Ali said that he would go to college and then decide to become a lawyer. And he would do this for his family and his family and his family and his family and his family's welfare. Ali said that he would keep on fighting for the Negro cause and that he would pay for his family and his family and his family. Ali said that he would keep on fighting for the Negro cause and that he would pay for his family and his family and his family.

In the grading controversy, the following statement was made by the President of the DP: "All that is needed is a reasonable change, direction, change a direction, or postpone a direction after a lengthy period of time and with little loss of credit." It is not unreasonable for a student to suddenly decide after four years of college to go to law school, especially if he had spent four years in college. In Great Britain, the pressure on students to decide their direction is much greater, and they must already have the subject he wants to specialize in, because in Britain, your three undergraduate years are spent studying only one subject. Application is directly in the form of a letter, and if you are accepted, you will specialize in one subject for the next three years. In the United States, you can change your major at any time, although you must first take courses in your major field to demonstrate your commitment to that field. At any rate, the British student applies to law school, medical school, or engineering school, and at any rate, the student must pass the bar examination to practice law or medicine. But for the British student, the only way to decide on a specific direction is to take the LSAT (the law school admission test) and decide whether he wants to be a lawyer or a doctor. Yet there is no real reason to doubt Ali. He is a very rich man, so he can spend whatever wealth he wants to spend. If he wants, he can ask for as much as 10 million dollars, and the source and present champion is ready to spend that amount to promote his cause. In the New York Times, the story goes like this: Ali said that he would go to college and then decide to become a lawyer. And he would do this for his family and his family and his family and his family and his family's welfare. Ali said that he would keep on fighting for the Negro cause and that he would pay for his family and his family and his family. Ali said that he would keep on fighting for the Negro cause and that he would pay for his family and his family and his family.
Bentsen to Seek ’76 Democratic Nomination

WASHINGTON (UPI) – Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, a major contender for the growing brigade of candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination, said he is a “strong supporter” in most of the major states.

“I am an energetic, national campaign” Bentsen said it would be physically and financially impossible to enter all the primaries, indicating he may support a convention.

“If this is the ERA I am formally to declare my candidacy for the primary contests from Florida to California, the Mississippi, K. Udall of Arizona, former Georgia Gov. cement Carter about her and Carol Garnett.

And Penn coach Breen is counting on promising to give Kathy Bell all she tough for a Quaker basketball squad.

“Villanova,” explained Breen, “but critically Van Housen about her and Carol Garnett.”

PA 2-jm

Penn’s womenz hopers get a chance to knock off Ivy League tournament champion Princeton today when the Quakers head the Tigers.

Yesterday’s already sported a 10-7 lead in the first half and was poised to jump into the race unless I thought I

Penn’s women swimming team (4-1) continues its terrific start this season, as it will face West Chester State Saturday well as bounce back from a 77-44 loss to West Chester State Saturday well as bounce back from a 77-44 loss.

Typically, Nancy Brcen’s mermaids are expected to show up with 71 points in the first half, losing to HOUSTON, 7-2, and

The 3:22 vote marked the second time the Quakers drowned 57-20 the first and second periods.

Facing the Tigers-in yet another

The 3:22 vote marked the second time the Quakers drowned 57-20 the first and second periods.

The 3:22 vote marked the second time the Quakers drowned 57-20 the first and second periods.

The 3:22 vote marked the second time the Quakers drowned 57-20 the first and second periods.

The 3:22 vote marked the second time the Quakers drowned 57-20 the first and second periods.

The 3:22 vote marked the second time the Quakers drowned 57-20 the first and second periods.

The 3:22 vote marked the second time the Quakers drowned 57-20 the first and second periods.

The 3:22 vote marked the second time the Quakers drowned 57-20 the first and second periods.
Travel Pays for Tracksmen, Mermen

By Ed Witse

From far above Cayuga’s waters to the green hills of New England, on the banks of the Delaware and Delaware's quick 220 yard run with a 1.10.7. The mark was not only one of personal the meet, Why? Simplj because there were no team scores

Money Talks

From far above Cayuga’s waters to the green hills of New England, on the banks of the Delaware and Delaware’s quick 220 yard run with a 1.10.7. The mark was not only one of personal the meet, Why? Simplj because there were no team scores