Budget Cuts, Lay-Offs

The Friday, March 21, issue of the Temple News, page 1.

Temple's personnel director, Scott Sidel, said Tuesday that the faculty is expected to make a recommendation to the university on the budget proposal during the fall.

Sidel said the administration had considered a number of faculty members' suggestions, and that the personnel director had been involved in discussions with the faculty."The faculty has been involved in discussions with the university," Sidel said. "The faculty will be able to make a recommendation to the university on the budget proposal during the fall."

ICA Show Exhibits Lively Art Act

By MARY COHEN
An exhibition of paintings, drawings and sculptures by artist Cy Twombly was opened Friday at the University's Institute of Contemporary Art located on the first floor of the Fine Arts Building.

Cy Twombly is of the Abstract Expressionist school of painting, and his works are full of seemingly random curves and shapes and of the feeling that often convey a message with striking forcefulness.

"Those all-over, automatic handwritings of line drawings, although subtly compared to the drawings of children, bear the mark of an accomplished draftsmanship" which Twombly, unparalleled in his time, has also developed, Delichtenly, who organized the exhibition.

Included in the exhibit are five "mosaics" - Twombly's favorite pieces of sculpture. These- wonderful inventions, made out of everyday materials, the boards and doorknobs, acquire a life of their own. Twombly, a native of Virginia who has lived in Italy since 1950, is well-known for his introduction of a new concept in painting. His idea is that a painting is an event, that the work has been displayed less frequently in America.

The exhibition, continuing through April 27, includes 16 large paintings and 8 works on paper (drawings, pastel drawings and collages). Gallery hours are 9 A.M. to 5 P.M. weekdays and noon to 5 P.M. weekends.

Ensemble Sponsors Jazz Band Festival

By BOB SPEAKER
A Big Band Jazz Festival will be presented by the Penn Jazz Ensemble Tuesday, March 15 at 8 P.M. at the Zellerbach Theatre of the Annenberg Center.

Members of the Ensemble in the Gladstone State Jazz Lab Band will perform along with special guest soloist Louis Bellson, a former resident of Philadelphia, and tour leader. The Ensemble is supported by the financial assistance of the Federal Arts Program, the Ford Foundation and the Pennsylvania Humanities Council.

The editors of A Voyage Out, a new women's literary magazine, released its first issue recently. The editors commented, "A Voyage Out is a forum for these explorations. They hope to make it an annual production. The first issue is a well-balanced collection of poetry, prose, book reviews and interviews," stated by photographer Emily Delehanty, who organized the exhibition.

The next day, the) will perform at the opening of the month-long Magic It Festival in Independence Mall. Tickets for Tuesday's Festival will be $5 or $10 with a school or faculty ID. Tickets are available at the Annenberg Center Box Office, 366 Walnut street.
Desperate Straits

The recent announcement by President Meyerson that there will be a $211,000 deficit this year in the University's operating budget is a sobering one. The University is in a financial emergency, and yet so many of us are complacent. There is a tendency to blame the University for the deficit, but the blame lies with us. It is our responsibility to help the University survive this financial crisis.

The deficit is not the result of poor management or lack of planning. It is the result of a lack of understanding on the part of the student body and faculty. The deficit is not the result of a lack of resources, but rather a lack of utilization of those resources. We must begin to understand the seriousness of the situation: at last night's faculty meeting, Director of Financial Aid, Mr. John Smith, pointed out that the budget deficit is due to the lack of student attendance.

This is a huge deficit to be overcome. The University's fate is in our hands. President Meyerson has spoken eloquently about the importance of the students' role in the University's financial survival. If we don't do our part, the University might have to make drastic cuts in programs.

We can't make the cuts ourselves, but we can help by attending classes and participating in University activities. We can also help by donating to the University's emergency fund. Every dollar counts, and it can make a difference.

Let's work together to help the University survive this financial crisis. We owe it to our future and to the students who come after us.
Cambodia Aid Bill Loses Support

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Ford was told Tuesday he would have to appeal for $135.6 million in military and economic aid for Cambodia unless the administration dropped its demand that Congress appropriate $30 million in emergency aid to help the country. The White House made the request Tuesday night, hoping that the aid would be approved as part of a compromise agreement with the Senate. The House, however, is expected to vote on the aid bill Wednesday, and the Senate is scheduled to consider it later this week.

N.Y. Doctors Strike Affects Hospital Care

NEW YORK (UPI) - Hospitals hit by the nation's first doctors' strike turned Tuesday away many non-emergency cases because medical care could deteriorate if the walkout continues. It was predicted the strike could spread around the country.

The doctors, members of the Committee of Doctors and Residents, walked out of 20 municipal and private, nonprofit hospitals Monday night to protest their round-the-clock work load.

A-3 SUPPORT STAFF UNION JOIN AFSCME

At a time of double-digit inflation and approaching double-digit unemployment, University employees need a strong union to protect their rights and make their needs known. The University's financial troubles should not be passed on to those who can least afford it. Tuition is rising; salaries are shrinking with inflation; lay-offs mean fewer people to get the same amount of work done. Only by uniting can Penn support staff have a strong enough voice to change this situation.

University administrators may not be intentionally unsympathetic to support staff needs, but they do treat us as dispensable budget items. For too long we have been "protecting the University" from our needs for decent salaries and job security. University administrators have been taking care of themselves; but no one is taking care of the A-3's. A-3's themselves are the only people who will do that; a union will put on a more equal footing with the University administration so that we can bargain for what we need and deserve.
Emerson said the most difficult problem the administrator who takes over her responsibilities will face will be to ensure sufficient allocations to student affairs during the University's economic crisis.

"Much of what we do in student affairs can't be measured," she said, "but we can't overlook the intangible things that make this University different from a factory type of place. It may be that you can't see immediate results, but you'll ultimately see the consequences. If you begin to neglect student services, the quality of life will suffer."

SEPTA

SEPTA, set up to provide information on alternative means of transportation in and out of the city,

Commuter service on the Perkiomen and Reading Railroads has been expanded during the strike, and the Red Arrow division of SEPTA is still operating.

As a special service to the city, Yellow Cab drivers are picking up multiple fares to aid stranded travelers.

The chief issue in the strike is money. A state-appointed fact-finding commission has recommended transit workers receive a total wage hike of $1.06 per hour over the course of two years.

The lazy way to take care of your contact lenses.

You may not even be lazy. Just very busy. Who has time for a solution to wet contacts, another for soaking, still another to clean them and maybe one for cushioning? It gets pretty complicated to say nothing of the expense.

Now there's Total. The all-in-one contact lens solution that does it all. Total wets, soaks, cleans and cushions your contacts. And you only have to use a single solution. Try Total! See how much more comfortable your contact lenses can be and cleaner and a lot easier to use.

There are two good ways to buy Total - the 2 oz size Total soak*, clean*, cushion and the 4 oz size Total*. 2 oz has a free, mirrored lens storage case, and the new economy 4 oz size saves you 25%.

Total is available at the campus bookstore or your local drugstore.
