Provo's Office Terminates Aid To SCOE Guide

By CAROL BUCHJONES

Financial difficulties are now for next year's Student Committee on Educational Affairs (SCOE) Guide.

The Guide will no longer be published, according to a statement from Provo's office, which was the publisher of the Guide in 1951.

The decision was reached after a study which showed that the Guide's financial support was insufficient to meet its operating budget. The study, conducted by the Provo's office, indicated that the Guide's expenses exceeded its income, making it impossible to continue publication.

Provo's Office will no longer support the Guide, and it is expected that the Guide will be terminated.

The Guide was intended to provide information on the educational resources available at the University and to serve as a reference for students, faculty, and staff. It contained sections on course offerings, degree programs, and research opportunities within the University.

The Guide was also intended to inform students about the availability of financial aid and resources for students facing financial difficulties.

The decision to terminate the Guide has sparked debate among University stakeholders, with some arguing that it is important to continue providing this resource to students.

University Trustees Approve Tuitions

By LARRY FIELD

The University Trustees have approved major increases in tuition for the 1952-1953 academic year.

The increases were approved after a series of meetings among the Trustees.

The tuition increases were necessary to cover the rising costs of operating the University.

The increases included a 20% increase in tuition for Pennsylvania residents, a 10% increase for out-of-state residents, and a 5% increase for graduate students.

The Trustees also approved an increase in the cost of the student health fee.

Communications Major To Be Studied by FAS

By MARTIN MIEDEL

A new interdisciplinary communications major has been established at the University.

The major, which is a joint effort between the School of Arts and Sciences and the Annenberg School of Communications, will be available to students.

The new major will offer a unique opportunity for students to study the field of communications from a variety of perspectives.

Students will be able to choose from a wide range of courses offered by both schools, allowing them to specialize in areas of their interest.

City Commences Work On Walnut St. Park

BY BRENDA MEnNen

Construction of a park on the 300 block of East Walnut Street began Monday as the improvement covers from the sidewalk to the City Park Authority (BDA) dumped several truckloads of topsoil on the site. The area should be topsoiled and seeded by the end of the week, said spokesman Miami Austin said Monday. An BDA worker explained the process to reporters Monday morning, and covered one area, adding that the process is complete in park could be opened in 15 minutes.

The park was originally planned to last summer as an interim improvement before construction of an historic office and shopping complex is vacated. Austin said the planning board has been delayed several times because the Sanicon Committee, a group of local residents and merchants, wants to see the site approved by the Sanicon Committee, a group of local residents and merchants, before any new park development.

A group of park area business owners concerned last week was not able to establish a definite starting date for the park. The board has been delayed because they dented some dirt. The group, which is developing the park, has not yet been established, Austin said. However, contracts for workers to build the park site may still have to be awarded, he said.

The University has agreed to provide a park for other public area. However, the site is adjacent to the current A.B.A. land, which was purchased from the city for the BDA.

The BDA purchased the land from the city for $1 million. The park will be a public open space and will be available to all community residents. The BDA was reacting to the motion as they "dropped the dirt in the day after the park was started," Austin said. The board was interested in the park, he said, because it was "a little concerned about the timing of it." The group, which had been involved in the project, and the park in the area, he said, will be involved in the project. The BDA was also involved in the project, he said, because they have been involved in the project. The board was also involved in the project, he said, because they have been involved in the project. Another Danger to Ugrad Students

By Mike Kadish

In April, your reporter on the University Council's proposed Advisory Group, which appeared in the April 4th issue of The Daily Pennsylvanian, did not mention even one instance of the proposed committees affecting academic freedom. During this period as lecturer at the truly democratic university, I have frequently had to compromise my beliefs, there appears to me no reason to believe that anything will change if the faculty of the university already exists in the Academic Freedom Committee. As in the RKNPs case, the administration has established a committee to handle individual situations that properly fall under the purview of existing groups. I will call on the University Council to reject this Advisory Group. It would be a farce if the committees charged with eliminating unwanted resources were thought to be a waste of time and effort.

Mike Kadish (Wharton) is a member of the Undergraduate Assembly and a University Council President.

Notes on the Unemployed

By Grant Hanessian

The state unemployment office at 12th and Woodland is a flat tire waiting to happen. At least twice a week the line there is longer than the line on the Blue Line, you have to wait for a long time to change your Employment Security. That is it out.

Inside it, instead, institutional green light "Long lines are no longer news to them and walks with them, saying, "Do you know about it, man?" or "Have you heard, friend?"

You are not really into it," he says, turning to someone he can read her body language.

"You are not getting a job," one woman says. "Why don't you talk to the people who are doing it?"

"My wife has a job, but..."

He is not really sure what to do . . .

"I was at the office today," another man says.

His wife has a job, but..."

Amidst potential chaos, the international community is grappling with the repercussions of events in Cambodia. The fall of Phnom Penh, the capital, to the Communist forces has left behind a wake of uncertainty and turmoil. The United Nations, which has been forced to make rapid decisions on Cambodia's Buddhist New Year's Day and Phnom Penh's fall, is now faced with the challenge of providing assistance to the city's lone supply link to the outside world. The advent of a substantial number of foreign people here will undoubtedly prompt a different role for the University, as its leaders have been forced to make significant changes. Whether Meyerson decides to accept the post or not, the decision will have to be made before Kirschner's successor can be selected. The extent to which the administration's charge that "the central administration has been 'spilling' on program policies" is true has yet to be determined.
Seitz, James Mirror Track Success

By DAVID HABERGR

Are Mike Seitz and Ed James Penn's track boys really mirror images of each other? Not exactly, but one could be forgiven for thinking so. They are both sprinters running duplicate limes in each event they enter. The only thing different is the 100 and 220. Mike Seitz would like to improve on both---a 9.4 in Saturday's 100 yard dash and a 20.3 in the 220. Mike James' times are 9.3 and 20.3 respectively. Either of these times would be competitive in the Ancient Eight.

The tandis start is not a great one. "The only thing different is the 100 and 220. Mike Seitz would like to improve on both---a 9.4 in Saturday's 100 yard dash and a 20.3 in the 220. Mike James' times are 9.3 and 20.3 respectively. Either of these times would be competitive in the Ancient Eight."

Though Mike Seitz chose to come to Penn for four years, he still feels that he has just begun. "The tandem start is not a great one. 'The only thing different is the 100 and 220.
