Rackin Accord Terms Due Today

Instructor Promoted; English Dept. Ties Denied

By SETH ROSEN

An out-of-court settlement granting Phyllis Rackin a promotion to the rank of associate professor, and denying her affiliations with the University's English Department, was reached recently by the department's statement against the controversial action and University President Eliot Flitt.

In the statement, to be published in today's Atlantic and Stellar, Rackin has been accused of promoting a pro-Bigot's legal aid fund which would have about a third of the university's legal aid fund. The University has repeatedly refused to release its records to the University's legal aid fund. Rackin and Stellar both denied Rackin's assertion that Rackin was not a member of the legal aid fund. In addition, Rackin stated that Rackin had not been accused of any violation of the university's legal aid fund.

Rackin brought suit against the same time, the administration in May, 1979, charging that she had been accused of tax discrimination in University income. The settlement includes civil rights and promotion.
