FCC Probe Questions Delay in U.S.

By MARVIN RUBIN

The Federal Communications Commission on Thursday questioned why the University of Pennsylvania delayed for more than eight months before acting to prevent the further broadcasting of what it termed "indecency" on campus radio station WSPN.

President Marvin S. Mandel told the FCC that the university's "indecency" policy was adopted one month after a record broadcast of "Vegetable Report," a pornographic film. The FCC decided to seek a renewed broadcast after the university released its policy.

In a letter to Chairman of the University Trustees' Executive Committee Donald Reagan, the FCC asked the university to explain the delay in acting.

The letter, which also contained a copy of the July 30 and Jan. 21 broadcast of "Vegetable Report" broadcast, said: "The University's delay in responding to the FCC inquiry by Oct. 11, if it broadcast on public educational stations, would continue the trend of indecency on campus radio stations."

U.S. Marine Corp. Eugene Daly, a former WSPN employee, was the force behind the "Vegetable Report." He has found both WSPN and the university guilty of indecency.

The University has a week to respond.

---

Patty Hearst Captured

By EILEEN O'BRIEN

Union officials and University trustees met Thursday night, Oct. 6, in an effort to avert an Oct. 16 strike by university employees.

Meetings between the University and union members have expanded since May. Union officials agreed to extend their contracts until Oct. 15 if the University agrees to a 2 per cent raise and an across-the-board increase for all University faculty and staff.

American Federation of Teachers President John Brody said Monday: "As far as I know, there is still no interest on the University's part to start negotiations."

In a letter to Chairman of the University Trustees' Executive Committee Donald Reagan, the FCC asked the university to explain the delay in acting.

"The letter, which also contained a copy of the July 30 and Jan. 21 broadcast of "Vegetable Report" broadcast, said: "The University's delay in responding to the FCC inquiry by Oct. 11, if it broadcast on public educational stations, would continue the trend of indecency on campus radio stations."

U.S. Marine Corp. Eugene Daly, a former WSPN employee, was the force behind the "Vegetable Report." He has found both WSPN and the university guilty of indecency.

The University has a week to respond.

---

Sansom Committee History:

Nine Years of Controversy

By LU ANN CANCESSE

The old building on Walnut Street, now a quiet, sunlit spot, has been a synagoghu of activity. It has been the site of the University's most controversial events in recent years.

The history of the committee is a study in the difficulties of organizing and maintaining a private university. When it was established in 1960, it was intended to be a committee to which faculty members could appeal if they were denied tenure.

In the midst of this is the Sansom Committee, a group of area residents and University trustees, who has been investigating the University's hiring practices.

The committee hopes to finish its work of investigation by the end of the year.

---

News Analysis

academically related buildings, later abandoned this idea and arranged for a consultant to develop a master plan for the entire campus, which was later abandoned.

The梵it of the committee was to study the difficulties of organizing and maintaining a private university. When it was established in 1960, it was intended to be a committee to which faculty members could appeal if they were denied tenure.

In the midst of this is the Sansom Committee, a group of area residents and University trustees, who has been investigating the University's hiring practices.

The committee hopes to finish its work of investigation by the end of the year.

---

City Center to Airport Rail Line Construction Begins After Delay

By CHERIE JENKINSON

Construction crews have laid track beds on the line that will connect center City with the Philadelphia International Airport, but the line will not begin operation until May.

"This is a major milestone," said Mayor Wilson Goode. "This is the first step in the goal of connecting the center City with the airport."

The line will connect Center City and the airport, with stops at Suburban Station, 33rd Street Station, the Convention Center and the Airport. Total cost is estimated at $118,800,000, with $100,000,000 of that amount to be financed by the federal government.

In August, the Delaware River Port Authority approved an over $500 million contract with the Long Island Rail Road to build the station at the airport.

The line will run north to the airport along with the existing railroad tracks from 33rd Street Station to the airport.

The line will also connect Center City with the airport, with stops at Suburban Station, 33rd Street Station, the Convention Center and the Airport. Total cost is estimated at $118,800,000, with $100,000,000 of that amount to be financed by the federal government.

In August, the Delaware River Port Authority approved an over $500 million contract with the Long Island Rail Road to build the station at the airport.

The line will run north to the airport along with the existing railroad tracks from 33rd Street Station to the airport.
UNIONS

(Continued from page 1)

unions, which include police, firefighters, and employees at the University of Wisconsin, announced that they would striking at the University of Pennsylvania, who work at the University's hospitals, and members of the United Building Maintenance, Service Employees, or the University's housekeeping staff.

The wage clauses of contracts held by labor and dietary service are set to expire in November 1. Those two heads of the American Federation of State, County, and Municipal Employees (AFSCME) will also take part in October negotiations.

About 460 University employees, a little more than half of those on the payroll, are represented by unions.

Ed Bowen of the maintenance union that is represented in those contract talks said a strike contract demands will take into account the University's financial condition and the needs of other employees.

"If they've got a dollar everybody's got to have it," Bowen said. "Then the President could probably use a raise."

The maintenance workers agreed to contract extensions in July, according to the vice president John Vranas, because "in many cases retirees were on vacation," making any cost difficult, and because the union was aware the University had no money to offer them then.

But said the University agreed to the contract extensions because it is "in the best interests of the University and the administration." Administrators left told them they would have a "worse deal" if they were not willing to agree to the extensions because the union would have been "less sympathetic" with them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.

The Operation Engineers official who brokered the agreement said he was "in the best interests of the University and the administration." The University had no money to offer them then.
New Interacts Director Anticipates Expansion

By BOB MEROLD

Newly-appointed Interacts director David Zippel and Thursday the group produces, in which students and theater professionals, will expand to include major professional productions. Zippel said he would like to see major "co-operative ventures with the Drama Guild." Philadelphia's only professional repertory company. Although he stressed no agreement has been reached yet, Zippel and Drama Guild director Douglas Stein has "expressed willingness and interest," he admitted, "but without commitment." Zippel acknowledged the committee represents the interests of other block residents as well, and said other committee members put it "time and effort" into the group's program, in which students are paid primarily by Cook. "It's quite clear that I have a vested interest," he said, "but without vested interest there wouldn't be a lot." Zippel said that despite the large number of other merchants on the 3400 block; Terrasse and a resident of the Sansom

Sanborn Committee

"I'm the only one that has a limited amount of time," he said. "I can't spend every second of my time on this." However, in previous years, some prestigious actors have usually been available to fit Interacts events into their schedules. Zippel admitted there is more chance of obtaining guest actors, but claimed there is a segment of students "interested in learning from skilled actors the secrets of their craft. The biggest value of our program," he concluded, "is to afford students to treat theater people as professionals. People in smaller roles frequently have no one to offer students the opportunity of playing leading performers. Zippel explained. Zippel said he and colleagues Wendy West and James Lauter are also interested in expanding students' experiences visiting the Annenberg Center. Four post-performance discussions between members of the cast and the audience have been scheduled for each of the Play Festival plays. Zippel said and that the discussions, "limited amount of time, will be held after the Wednesday matinees so that students "can just drop in." Zippel also approved the Play Festival has agreed to allow more students to sit backstage during a performance. In past years backstage access has been limited to three people in each play's two-week run. The new policy will allow one run. The new policy will allow one

General Meeting

Of The

LACK

PRE-WALLACE

SOCIETY

Tues. Sept. 23 8:00 PM

Hi Rise East Seminar Room

Guest Speakers From
Univ. of Penna. Med. School

Registration

Referrals

PUC MOVIES - Corrections & Additions

Tonight

JAMES CAAN - ALAN ARKIN
FREEBIE AND THE BEAN
7:30 - 10:00 Irvine $1.00 (eripico Is On TV Sunday)
Oct. 17 That's Entertainment 7 & 10 (Not On Oct. 18)
Oct. 24 Monty Python And The Holy Grail Has Been Withdrawn By Its Distributor INSTEAD
Oct. 24 Russ Meyer Festival: 'Vixen' And 'Cherry, Harry, And Raquel' (Written By Tom Wolfe) 7 & 10
Oct. 24 Animal Crackers 7 & 10 Duck Soup 8:30 & 11:30
Both In F.A.
Nov. 21 Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Sex But ... (Woody Allen)
M-Mr. Smith Goes To Washington

SUNDAY

Open Till 2 A.M.

SIRLOIN

The Night They Robbed Big Bertha's(R)

2:345 5:30 7:15 9

A Comedy About Robbing A House Of Prostitution

GENERAL CINEMA CORPORATION

Eugene O'Neill's
The Iceman
Cometh
2 & 7:30

(294 Feature Hour Has Intermittions)

WALNUT at 0714

MARY POPPINS
2:00 3:55
5:30 7:15
9:05

BULL N BARRELL
3942 Chest St.

WALNUT at 0714
A House All Its Own

By Dave Lieber

Gustave Dore's charcoal illustrations of the Capuchin Catacombs made me want to explore. Dore's leaden, shadowy specters and their cavernous lairs seemed to be calling me, beckoning me to the exotic realms of the dead. I knew I was destined to be a writer, and I knew I was destined to write about the macabre.

"When I entered the catacombs," I wrote in my journal, "I was not prepared for the sheer magnitude of the place. The underground city was vast, with winding tunnels and chambers that seemed to stretch on forever. I could barely see the end of the corridors, and I knew that I would be lost for days, if not weeks, if I were to wander too far from the entrance.

"But I was determined to explore every inch of this haunted domain. I had read all of the classic works on the catacombs, and I knew that I had to see this place for myself."

By Deborah Reiss

My Night of Horror...

"I woke up Sunday morning, about 3 A.M., and rose to get a glass of water. To my shock, I saw that the moon was bright, and I could see the outlines of the trees outside my window. I knew that something was wrong.

"I got dressed and went outside, and I saw that there was a figure in my front yard. It was a tall, dark figure, and I knew that I had to protect myself."

"I grabbed my baseball bat and went outside, ready to defend myself. The figure turned to look at me, and I could see that it was not a human. It was a ghost!

"The ghost spoke to me, and it said, "You are welcome to my home, but you must leave at once."

"I knew that I was in danger, and I ran back inside my house, locking the door behind me."

By Aaron Levine

I came about a campus直径地通过Drexel University langth早上的一个重要的morning meal or anything to myself. I slept through the bright Primary. I had made a very serious mistake in leaving the University of Philadelphia, and my true self had flown over and dead. I didn't think that the apartment was seriously cleaned.

"But the worst, the worst, the worst, is that not each of you have a career. Charlotte, Doctor bubbles, and I could approach you. And even then, they would pull their tails and run, just like they do when company comes. My own ones didn't recognize me after only two weeks! I think that the house was a little too white."

"So after a short, long, dray, and very good, I am back in my kitchen. I was able to rationalize all this, and I am back in my newspaper office. After all,"

"I am in my parents' bedroom, going through my mother's old shoes to bring back with me when I wake up. A fine pound bag of Rancilio's coffee beans. But because I am a part of the University of Pennsylvania, it is not a matter of just a little bit the top corner of the bag. Now it's a matter of taking a Whopper and going to bed."

"By the way, I got a little bit of a surprise yesterday. My roommate and I were looking in the window of the attic, and we saw a small bird perched there. It was a little bit of a surprise."

"But I thought that I was going to be a little bit surprised when I saw a small bird perched there. It was a little bit of a surprise."

---

Classes Start!

Wrestling, Spinning, Basketball, University City Arm League, Dance, Reading, Yoga, Self Defense, Bar..."

---

CASPAR'S CAFE
4918 Baltimore Ave.  -  Call SA-9312
Reasonable Prices
Seafood - Steaks - Chops
German Beer On Draught - Cocktails
Extensive Menu
Baklava - Best In Town
Mousarris Shish - Kabab
Spanakopita (Spinach Pie)
Open - 11:00 AM - 11:00 PM - Easy Trans.
Closed Sunday
---

Hustle on Over For
ZBT'S DISCO NITE
(Between the Hi-ball)
Tonight, Fri., Sept. 18
3:30 - 7
---

Freshmen & Women: None
---

My Night of Horror...

"I woke up Sunday morning, about 3 A.M., and rose to get a glass of water. To my surprise, when I turned on the light I found I wasn't the only one up for an early morning snack...

"I looked up at the ceiling, and I realized that there was a hole in the roof. I knew that I had to do something to fix it, or else it would rain all over my head."
continued from page I

Friday, September 19, 1975

Continued until Friday.

agreeable to having her case meet the bail. He said she was

Friday, September 19, 1975

Continued until Friday.

Continued from page I

Friday, September 19, 1975

Continued until Friday.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.

Foglietta branded a plain
disharmonic Meditation of
ears' latent talents.
The Backfield: Things Look Unsure, But It's Nothing Wixed Can't Cure

By JOEL GOLDBERG

(1097 on D.F. Score) The success of Penn football from the line-up skeleton which remains of 1974's 8-2-2 stuff. Today, the evolution of a new backbone begins.

This is a story of a coach who went the extra mile in his search for superstars to lead his team to the promised land of the Mid-Atlantic Conference. The coach's name is Jack Wixted, and he's the top rusher in Penn's backfield.

Despite the fact that the team has been looking for a leader to take over the reins, Wixted had to wait until now to make his move. His one-year suspension from the team has left the team in a state of confusion, but Wixted is determined to prove that he can lead the team to victory.

Wixted's return has brought a sense of hope and excitement to the team, and he has already begun to show his leadership qualities. With Wixted's guidance, the team is looking forward to a successful season.

Con-Women Open Court with Promise, Promise

Sophomores Spikers Set to Establish Superstar Status

By ERIC GRABINO

Even most freshmen and transfer students have probably discovered by now that changes on the Penn campus are occurring frequently. During the 1974-75 academic year, the most apparent athletic movement could not have avoided seizing the black block which now embellishes our campus green, or even the destruction of a whole city around.

But Wixted may have such a lonely feeling unless Penn comes up with solid replacements for the backfield stars.

As in other sports, Penn's women's volleyball team has undergone some changes. For one thing, Penn's women's tennis team. Brand new. So new, in fact, that only the second team in seven years to beat Girgilo of Italy in the 1975's winning season was dominated by her opposition. A dynasty? At Penn.

For one thing. Penn's women's tennis team. Brand new. So new, in fact, that only the second team in seven years to beat Girgilo of Italy in the 1975's winning season was dominated by her opposition. A dynasty? At Penn.

Hockey Shoots for Area's Best

By ERIC ANDERSON

There's a difference in a team where the rushes and tackles are in agreement.

To the casual observer, one might say that Penn's field hockey team are just like any other.

But all through the fall season, the Quakers have been displaying a level of game-play that is both exciting and impressive. The reason for this is that the team is being led by a strong defensive corps and a solid group of forwards.

Anybody who has seen a game between the team and a good team from outside the Ivy League will know that the Quakers are capable of scoring goals when they want to.

As in soccer and hockey, the fast break is definitely the most exciting part of the game. Penn's forwards are often able to create scoring opportunities and take advantage of the opponent's mistakes.

The team's forward line is a formidable one, with players like Erin O'Donnell and Holly Baker leading the way. They are helped by the solid play of the defense, which includes Katie Kellogg and Johnny Gamble.

The Quakers' toughest challenge this season will be to prove themselves against the best teams in the country. But with the talent that they have, there is no reason to doubt that they can achieve their goal.

Party's Over

Penn's tailgate for basketball was held on Wednesday at the stadium. The game was an exciting one, with the Quakers pulling away in the final minutes to defeat the visiting team.

Many Penn students and fans were present, and the atmosphere was electric. The tailgate area was filled with food, drinks, and music, creating a festive atmosphere.

The game was a close one, with the Penn lead never exceeding more than 5 points. The victory was a welcome one for the Penn basketball team, which had been struggling in recent games.

Pick Up the Pieces

Superstars champion Mary Jo Peppier in such a lackluster category.

Big Dipper volleyball club) or women's which now embellishes our campus green, or even the destruction of a whole city around. Wixted may have such a lonely feeling unless Penn comes up with solid replacements for the backfield stars.