In the Annenberg Bicentennial Series this year. He only 4,000 have been recorded for the week reported last week. Managing Director Stephen Goff noted that "subscription sales are up; the housing market, attractively priced, is performing well in the city." He added that when the Center announced it would have an season last spring, many theatergoers purchased tickets for the Dean's Gala at the Walnut Street Theater instead.

"Philadelphia people," Goff said. "We thought that the Center's programming for the coming year, we were unable to sell tickets for the Bicentennial Series. Our programming plan for the coming year, we thought we would not be able to sell tickets for the beginning of the season, Goff noted. However, "subscriptions are up this season," he said. Goff added, "we anticipate a full house for the season." The Center's programming plan for the coming year, we thought we would not be able to sell tickets for the beginning of the season, Goff noted. However, "subscriptions are up this season," he said. Goff added, "we anticipate a full house for the season." The Center's programming plan for the coming year, we thought we would not be able to sell tickets for the beginning of the season, Goff noted. However, "subscriptions are up this season," he said. Goff added, "we anticipate a full house for the season."
Wharton Award to Honor Graduate Student Teaching

By ELIZABETH SANGER

The Wharton School has announced that it will begin giving the newly established Wharton Advisory Board Outstanding Teaching Award to honor the excellence of a graduate student.

Graduate students who teach are generally eligible for the Teaching Award, the principal University award for teaching excellence. However, they usually have no prospect for any ensuing relationship with the University.

The award will be presented by the board after it receives nominations from students and groups, including the Wharton Student Services and Undergraduate Studies.

Nominations may be submitted immediately in the Wharton dean's office with March 15. The winner will be announced in April.

Grades

(Continued from page 4)

The percentage of A's in Communications 220 last semester received A's. The average grades of other popular University courses last semester included: Psychology 1-2.57; Math 140 - 2.97; Economics I-3.80; Accounting I - 2.45; Finance I - 2.5.

Although University officials have expressed concern over the grade inflation problem, university spokesman Gary A. Johnson said that this is not a particular problem for this department. "We have not noticed any significant change," he said.

J.K. Beer Distributors

4533 Baltimore Ave.

Open 6 Days A Week M-Th 11:30-9:30, Fr. Sat 11:30-7, Sun. 11:30-7

Home of Fine Mexican Food

Tacos - Burritos - Enchiladas - Tamales - Chips - Beans - Rice

Complete Dinnerers $1.90 To $2.99

Mexican Lunch $1.45

Corner of 39th & Chestnut

Now Serving American & Mexican Breakfast.

3 Eggs, Potato, Toast & Coffee $1.00

7 Days A Week At 7 A.M.

Factory Outlet

1736 Chestnut St.

Free U.

(Continued from page 1)

The Wharton Student Services and Undergraduate Studies will give the newly established Wharton Advisory Board Outstanding Teaching Award to honor the excellence of a graduate student.

The award will be presented by the board after it receives nominations from students and groups, including the Wharton Student Services and Undergraduate Studies.

Nominations may be submitted immediately in the Wharton dean's office with March 15. The winner will be announced in April.

Attention Graduate And Professional Students

Interested Persons Are Needed

To Serve On The Following University And Council Committees:

- Bookstore
- Community Relations
- Council of Intercollegiate Athletics
- Educational Policy Committee
- Fellowship Affairs
- Graduates in the Making Awards Committee
- Library
- Major Branding
- Nominations for Faculty Affairs (The Wharton School of Finance)
- Undergraduate Affairs
- Women's Athletic Association's Athletic Council
- Women's Athletic Association's Athletics Committee
- Women's Athletic Association's Finance Committee
- Women's Athletic Association's Graduate Council

For Application Forms

To: Walter George, Director, Graduate Student Affairs

Attention Graduate And Professional Students

Interested Persons Are Needed

To Serve On The Following University And Council Committees:

- Bookstore
- Community Relations
- Council of Intercollegiate Athletics
- Educational Policy Committee
- Fellowship Affairs
- Graduates in the Making Awards Committee
- Library
- Major Branding
- Nominations for Faculty Affairs (The Wharton School of Finance)
- Undergraduate Affairs
- Women's Athletic Association's Athletic Council
- Women's Athletic Association's Athletics Committee
- Women's Athletic Association's Finance Committee
- Women's Athletic Association's Graduate Council

For Application Forms

To: Walter George, Director, Graduate Student Affairs

Contact Lenses

Eyes Examined

Dr. Leon Silverfield

Orders Filled Immediately

1513 Chestnut St.

martins shoes

Largest selection of

Clarks

TREK

Boots

Bas

WEJUN

Up Country

OLOF

Diggers

Clogs & Boots

FRYE Boots

All at reasonable prices!

1731 CHESTNUT ST.

Attention Graduate And Professional Students

Interested Persons Are Needed

To Serve On The Following University And Council Committees:

- Bookstore
- Community Relations
- Council of Intercollegiate Athletics
- Educational Policy Committee
- Fellowship Affairs
- Graduates in the Making Awards Committee
- Library
- Major Branding
- Nominations for Faculty Affairs (The Wharton School of Finance)
- Undergraduate Affairs
- Women's Athletic Association's Athletic Council
- Women's Athletic Association's Athletics Committee
- Women's Athletic Association's Finance Committee
- Women's Athletic Association's Graduate Council

For Application Forms

To: Walter George, Director, Graduate Student Affairs

Contact Lenses

Eyes Examined

Dr. Leon Silverfield

Orders Filled Immediately

1513 Chestnut St.

martins shoes

Largest selection of

Clarks

TREK

Boots

Bas

WEJUN

Up Country

OLOF

Diggers

Clogs & Boots

FRYE Boots

All at reasonable prices!

1731 CHESTNUT ST.

Attention Graduate And Professional Students

Interested Persons Are Needed

To Serve On The Following University And Council Committees:

- Bookstore
- Community Relations
- Council of Intercollegiate Athletics
- Educational Policy Committee
- Fellowship Affairs
- Graduates in the Making Awards Committee
- Library
- Major Branding
- Nominations for Faculty Affairs (The Wharton School of Finance)
- Undergraduate Affairs
- Women's Athletic Association's Athletic Council
- Women's Athletic Association's Athletics Committee
- Women's Athletic Association's Finance Committee
- Women's Athletic Association's Graduate Council

For Application Forms

To: Walter George, Director, Graduate Student Affairs

Contact Lenses

Eyes Examined

Dr. Leon Silverfield

Orders Filled Immediately

1513 Chestnut St.

martins shoes

Largest selection of

Clarks

TREK

Boots

Bas

WEJUN

Up Country

OLOF

Diggers

Clogs & Boots

FRYE Boots

All at reasonable prices!

1731 CHESTNUT ST.
Med School: Breaking the Cutthroat Habit

By James Pachence

In her column in last week's issue, Joan Berkowitz, repeatedly addressed to our readers, asked us to consider the reality of medical school's reputation as a brutal place. She was convinced that her experiences were just the tip of the iceberg and that medical school is far from being the happy place one would imagine.

While I agree with her on some points, I disagree with her on others. For instance, I believe that medical school is not as cutthroat as she suggests. While there are certainly some intense competitions and high-stakes examinations, the overall atmosphere is much more collaborative.

Penn Med is one of the most competitive medical schools in the country. However, it is not as cutthroat as some people may believe. The admissions process is highly competitive, and the number of students who are accepted into the program is limited. However, the atmosphere is not nearly as intense as some people suggest.

In conclusion, I believe that medical school is not as cutthroat as Berkowitz portrays it. While there are certainly some intense competitions and high-stakes examinations, the overall atmosphere is much more collaborative. Penn Med is one of the most competitive medical schools in the country, but it is not as cutthroat as some people believe.
Automation Eases the Job Of Penn Recycling Group

By ANDREA GLICKMAN

The Penn Recycling Group (PRG) recently received a paper baler, thanks to the University Hospital. "This baler has allowed both PRG members and the University to save on costs," explained George Pepper, the University’s business manager.

The group took the baler in at 4015 Walnut Street and is now able to recycle much more efficiently. Pepper explained that the baler helps by compressing the paper and reducing the amount of space needed to store it.

The group recently received a paper baler, which was funded by the University Hospital. Pepper said that this will allow them to continue their recycling efforts without having to spend as much money on transportation and storage.

PRG has been able to collect and process more ton of paper since the baler was installed at 4015 Walnut Street. Currently, balder recycled paper is sold for 68 a ton, up from last year’s price of 69 a ton, he explained.

The two-year-old group usually gives the proceeds from its efforts to local charities including Penn Community Park and the Van Pelt Library. However, Pepper said that the University Hospital was the main source of the funding for the baler, and he added that "We saw this as a great opportunity to help the University, and also to benefit the local community."

PRG sells the paper, mostly donated newspapers, in a local junk store, he explained.

The group has installed fire proof bins in several University residence halls where students can deposit discarded paper.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Since redlining discourages middle-income residents from moving into a neighborhood, it leads first to a deterioration and finally abandonment of the area.

The state and federal legislatures recently have taken action against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.

Although the problem is not as severe in University City as it is in the ghetto areas of North Philadelphia, it has begun to affect "whites who are leaving the University except for 50 percent of the rest of the area," Pepper said.

Pepper explained that the cost of the baler installation was offset by the increased revenue from the sale of the recycled paper.

The group receives no funding from corporate entities, which would insure loans against redlining. Congress recently passed a bill that would extend housing mortgages for middle-income small homeowners. The bill, however, has not been signed into law.
By DANNY HERR
Running as it is, the basketball season is not only famous for the rarity of a "final four" or two, but for the legendary Cal Bell, a collegiate basketball player from the 1930s. Cal Bell, a three-time All-American, was known for his skills on the court. He was a leader of the Penn rugby team and was also a member of the Penn men's basketball team.

"If the carpet's as big as his mouth..."-John Engles, right leg heavily taped down after being shot around the knee.

Dorreett either. "I made it a point," Engles noted, in a Will Sonnett no-brag-just-brag tone, "to go down to Hollenback religiously a couple of hours a day, six days a week, for a week to work out the knee."

Senior, "After having the leg shot like that, it was difficult to give myself the confidence to say, 'Well, it will withstand this type of strain.'"

So Engles, the former high school All-American and ECAC Rookie of the Year, insists that he is not going to be the next Dave DeBusschere, he sure as hell didn't want to be another Hankinson or Dave DeBusschere, he sure as hell didn't want to be another Hankinson or Dave DeBusschere.

"I've Just got to set him up for the kill and let him do his thing."-Loyd Daly, who brought the team to third place with a 4:04 performance last year. "Dave's the best shot we have and I think I've given him the ball every time we have a chance to score."-Murray, who did last week's individual school record.

"The tremendous depth and individual abilities which characterize the '73-'74 Quaker team should be capable of bringing in an impressive total of points and rebounds per game."

"I can't do that," said Engles, "but I think I've given him the ball every time we have a chance to score."-Murray, who did last week's individual school record.

"I don't want to be a star," said Engles, "but I think I've given him the ball every time we have a chance to score."-Murray, who did last week's individual school record.