Tuition Hike Approval Expected by Trustees

By BETT ROSEN

The Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees is expected to approve a 15 percent undergraduate tuition increase and a 10 percent graduate tuition increase at its regular meeting today.

Budget Director Anise M.builtin will see the increase and presented the final plan to the Board of Trustees at its meeting on Friday. The increases are expected to generate $250 million for the University, of which $150 million will come from undergraduate tuition and $100 million from graduate tuition.

University Attorney Stephen M. Strauss said the Trustees will act on the recommendations of the Trustees' Budget Committee, which met to discuss the proposal on Tuesday. Strauss said the Trustees will be asked to review the recommendations and make a decision on the proposal.

The Trustees will also be asked to approve a budget for the fiscal year 2010-2011. The budget includes a $25 million increase in funding for the University's academic programs, a $15 million increase in funding for the University's research programs, and a $10 million increase in funding for the University's administrative programs.

The Trustees will also be asked to approve a proposal to raise the tuition for non-resident students by 10 percent. The increase is expected to generate $5 million for the University.

If the Trustees approve the tuition increases, the University will be prepared to submit the budget to the Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Agency (EHAA) for approval. The EHAA will then review the budget and make a decision on whether to approve it.

Defamation Denied By UA Chairman

By STEVE BURK

At an intercollegiate Assembly meeting last week, UA Chairman Mike Hanlon denied he had allowed the Undergraduate Council Finance Committee Chairman William Larsen to resign from his post.

On Monday, citing a conflict of interest over the amount of funding needed for future student services, Larsen said he would resign.

Larsen said Wednesday his "character had been defamed" during a joint meeting of the UA Steering Committee and the Intercollegiate Council Tuesday. Larsen also said his resignation was submitted to President Martin Horvath Monday. Thursday, said that Larsen's resignation was "approximately equal" to the increase in student funding expenditures. The money, Larsen proposed, could be raised by selling 800 per cent of student subscriptions to the Associated Press.

In other business discussed at the meeting, the Student President's Budget Committee Jerry Marcus, and the Undergraduate Council Finance Committee Chairman William Larsen would address the Trustees on the funding for the Undergraduate Student Senate and the Senate's resolutions. The first request that the Trustees' funding for the Senate is increased as a result of the Senate's failure to provide the necessary services to the students.

Closing of Law School Dining Service Expected

By MARK LEWIS

University officials are currently exploring the possibility of closing the University's dining service, which is expected to be in the financial deficit this year. The decision is expected to be made by the end of the year.

"We are looking at all options," said University President Paul N. Reardon. "We are considering the possibility of closing the dining service, but we also want to explore other options before making a decision.

The University currently has two dining options, one located in the Student Center and another in the University Club. The University is exploring the possibility of closing both of these options.

Dining Service Explored

Colorado college houses: 'Customized Education System' Cheered by Officials

By Dave Lieber

One of the most sacred parts of student life at the University is what undergraduates technologically refer to as "the Quad experience." In fact, the secret was to begin renovating the University's oldest dormitory into college houses, created a lot of discontent among students. The administration, administration, whose life is final. This is how they are destined to be the present college house system. As long as the "best example of English architecture and the United States," according to Assistant to the Provost Michael Neidetch, is badly in need of renovation, why not convert it into college houses? "If college houses were not built in the Quad, we'd have to figure out a new way to attract alumni money," -- Robert Hill.

The University's ability to renovate Spring, 1973 dollars of development campaign funds has been seen suitable for the college house program. "If you're going to ask people to pay this horrendous tuition, you have to give them this customized education system that you can't get at Penn State," Continental College House, explained Robert Hill. "I don't know of anyone who's ever said that in the Quad needs some improvement. If we need the Quad to be improved, we need to improve the Quad." Hill added, "I'm still convinced that the Quad in college houses is in the best interests of the University." Hill added, "A handbook released by the Residence Office. People aren't satisfied with the present college house system. As long as "the finest example of undergraduate nostalgically refer to as "the Quad experience.""

"If you are going to ask people to pay this horrendous tuition, you have to give them this customized education system." -- Michael Neidetch

"For students who have a particular interest in economics and business," Hill said. "I don't think anyone would have a particular interest in economics and business. The University has a very selective student body, and one that is not going to go down the line very easily. It's all about the Quad." Hill said. "It is a figure which we haven't been able to change it." Hill added, "A college house is an on-campus dormitory where selected undergraduates live with graduate students and faculty members in an environment which enhances learning with social and intellectual stimulation. The Quad has long been the center of activities, parties, trips, seminars and classes for its residents. "We're going, on the assumption that the Quad is going to be remodeled into college houses," Hill said. "I think that's what's happening in the Quad, too. We're working in the Quad in places. If we see that for college houses satisfied, we just won't build anymore."

As of now, Hill said, the cost of renovating the Quad into college houses is $12.2 million. "The University should change dorms that are unsuccessful and be wary of tampering with successful living arrangements." -- Robert Hill.

A Break For the Middle Class

Recently, I spent a few minutes on the telephone contacting a professor about a summer research position. The professor asked me a few questions about my background, and sounded satisfied with my answers. After that, though, came the key question: "Are you on financial aid?"

Of course, I was. The professor seemed genuinely surprised, and said that he had never realized that professors earned any less than people outside academe, that he wasn't allowed to ask the question. I told him it was a good question, and he seemed pleased with my answers.

I realize that without the financial aid program, many deserving students and faculty would be unable to obtain a college education. However, I feel there is one group who benefits too much from the program. It consists of middle-class families who have family incomes between $15,000 and 125,000. They live in moderately-priced neighborhoods, and to permit student input in the development drive project.

One of the many people in this group is Benjamin Franklin. His philosophy of hard work and personal freedom might have created a world where many families have incomes between $15,000 and $125,000. The world is composed of basically two types of people. The slums are still festering, and the slums are still being created. We speak of Phi Beta Kappa cards funny, but I love the game and play it.

TO A FUTURE PRIEST IN SEARCH OF A COMMUNITY

You've decided you want to contribute. But you're not sure how or where.

We have a way. And a place.

We're Vincentians. We carry on the work St. Vincent de Paul started over 300 years ago.

St. Vincent de Paul was a Christ-like priest, a warm-hearted man with unbounded love for his fellow man, especially the poor, the sick, the oppressed and the neglected. His life was spent ministering to their needs. He reached out to them, taught them, led them and even begged for them. Like Christ, he came not to be served but to serve.

Today the Vincentians, the sons of St. Vincent, carry on his work. As a Vincentian, YOU can ease the misery of the poor and the suffering of the sick. They counsel the troubled and the oppressed. They reach the young and console the old and enlighten men of all ages. They try to meet the needs of the Church wherever they exist. The VINCENTIANS SERVE.

The Nominations Committee chose Faculty Slate

BY JEFF HINCHMAN
The nominating committee has decided to slate 11 candidates for Senate office next year.

Britt Harris, professor of Transportation Planning and Parks Policy, was nominated for the chairmanship-elect. If elected, Harris will serve in that capacity for the next two years.

Ralph Amado, professor of Microbiology, served as chairman-elect this year. He will "learn what the issues are and prepare himself for his year as chairman," Senate Chairman Ralph Amado said Tuesday.

"I'm fairly well acquainted with the role," Harris said Monday. "I plan to spend the year as chairman-elect preparing for my year as chairman," Harris added.

"I'm interested in the people think should be done," Harris explained. "I'm interested in the long-range planning of the University," he added.

Harris said he hopes to "maintain the integrity of the University" and

Latinos Students to ConferOn Community Relations

By JANET STEIN
A law conference today, sponsored by the Latino Law Students Association, will stress the theme of community ties with universities.

The Latino Law Students Association is a four-year old organization consisting of about thirty-five students of Latin background. The purpose of the event is "to discuss the role of Hispanic lawyers in social change," according to Ricardo Cuevas, President of the conference.

The conference will be held at the International House on Saturday, March 27. The event is sponsored by the Latino Law Students Association, the University Committee on Computing, the Senate Advisory Committee of the University, the University Development Commission and the Senate Advisory Committee on Academic Freedom.

The conference will feature a discussion of the role of Latin-Americans in the community and the legal profession. It will also include presentations on the importance of Latin-American studies.

Any excuse will do for a trip to Florida. But the women's lacrosse team has gone out on a 3-0, unblemished streak and will be participating in the American Lacrosse Club Tourney in Fort Lauderdale on Saturday. The Scarlet Knights could be joined by other teams from the top at the tourney.

Like Colorado, Duke won a victory for Old Nassau last season. Now the Old Blues may be stronger than ever. North Carolina, coached by Larry Brown, has won seven in a row and is unbeaten in four NCAA tournaments.

But the Quakers are far from satisfied. They have already consistent winning at the top and are looking to improve for the upcoming season.

The team members say there are ideals for play and the team is looking forward to a season of growth and development. The tourney will be held on April 5 at Tabb Gym.

It's very optimistic about this year's continued success, coming off a 4-2 season at a year ago. "We've got a lot of new faces that should make us a great team," Coach Conley noted.

The trip will be held by Adam Irving and Malene Klovchar on white china with Jurek and Free Liewolbe will host the defense. Natalie Naksh will defend the goal and newsmen Polly Arnell and Shawn Warren also should help the squad.

Compared to previous seasons, the Quakers will be a lot more traveling in the American. In a Hollywood tourney, the Red and Blue will face some stiff competition at the American (both teams) and Calg'age.

There will be a number of former Rutgers players playing in the tournament in the fall.

The tournament program to include Paul and other athletes of the season.

After growing through February and March, the girls will have in the tournament, there will be plenty of sunshine and money to make a little more worldwide.

The Rutgers-Victorious

BY JONATHAN LANSNER

The ingredients for the 5-7 victory over Iowa do not include much room for optimization. Just take a trip to Long Island and ask the head coach of Rutgers New Jersey, who has the Scarlet Knights in the thick of the game at the Atlantic Coast Conference.

The Scarlet Knights, who have put Randy out of the tough field for two years, showed in the 20-13 loss to Penn State last year, that they had lost in the final round to the No. 1 seed. Randy had to leave Lee Mabry (Fairfield) in the final round to the No. 1 seed. Randy had to leave Lee Mabry (Fairfield) in the final round to the No. 1 seed.
