World Peace Symposium Held At U. Museum

BY MERYL DIAMOND

"To facilitate the establishment of world peace, important international institutions must come together to create a climate that makes for a more harmonious world. The United Nations, for example, is working on various measures to promote peace and understanding among cultures. In addition, the International Court of Justice plays a crucial role in resolving conflicts peacefully.

The purpose of the symposium is to discuss the ways in which we can work towards a more peaceful world. Specifically, we want to explore the role of international law and practices in preventing conflicts. By examining past examples, we hope to gain insights into how we can apply these lessons to our current world.

The symposium will be held on Friday evening next to the main entrance to the University Museum. We urge everyone to attend and participate in this important discussion.

Women's Locker Room Facilities Will Expand During the Summer

BY JERRY GRUBER

Women's locker room space will be expanded during the summer, doubling the size of the present women's locker room.

According to Andy Geiger, assistant director of Athletics, the University has acquired the use of 500 spaces in Kipps Court for undergraduate housing next year, of which 140 spaces will be for women.

The committee report noted that women will be allocated space in the new women's locker room, as they are in the men's locker room.

The committee's recommendation is to install a new women's locker room, which will be increased by partitioning the men's locker room and giving part of the space to the women.

The committee also recommended that the University replace the present women's locker room, Geiger explained.

news in brief

Black Caucus Bridges Platform—A three-day course of black Congressional political and legislative leaders meets on a "sounding board," they said, the Democratic convention must adopt a plan to gain black support for its presidential candidate. The platform included provisions for a full employment bill and a reform in urban policy, voter participation, national health insurance, criminal justice reform, finance, minority business development, rural and small town development and energy development.

Congress Contemplates Campaign Reform—Congress this week is expected to act on an amended federal campaign law reform, prompted partly to locate the financial need for most major presidential candidates. The Senate is expected to act on the bill as early as Monday and the House will follow. The Democrat leaders believe the reforms would be needed to prevent the Federal Election Commission to further campaign law reform—aid to the Democrats if they may continue in the future.

Quad Renovation

...they can't limit the number admitted without a p.i. without eliminating most of the private prep schools," he added. "If we become too dependent on the p.i. to do this, we better develop a private school."

Admissions Committee student member David Lowrie said that this process is to see how people are happy. It's clear from the studies that these accepted have special admissions do not perform well here.

Majority Recruiting Director Carol Galivan unknown to the facts that, to the committee has not presented sufficient data to support the claim that the students are doing well. The high percentage of students who are not p.i.'s..."contradict" previous policy stating that the non-educationally deficient component contains a minimum of 4 percent on the number of law.

Electronic History

BY JOHN DAVIESHED

Great expectations for the city's new Bicentennial museum are tied to the first major new building work in the opening of the Living History Center in a favorable public response.

In addition to the Living History Center, other museums opening in 1976, primarily in consideration of the bicentennial, are the New York's Shorner and Mariners Museum, the American History Museum, the Bach Institute, and the Museum of American History and Fine Art.

But only the Mariners Museum, the Living History Center and Design for Fun are currently open to the public. Construction of the Bach Institute is expected to begin in 1977, and the others may be several years away. But the Bicentennial Center, still under construction, has been delayed even further, and is not expected to open until late 1978.

As the cornerstone of Philadelphia's 400th anniversary celebration, its purpose is to provide a showcase for the city's history and culture, and to attract visitors from all over the world. The center is expected to attract millions of visitors over the next five years.

The Living History Center is located at the intersection of Chestnut and 6th Streets, on the site of the old Market Street, and is scheduled to open in May 1976.

The center will house a number of exhibits, including a reconstruction of Independence Hall, a re-creation of the U.S. Capitol, and a replica of the Liberty Bell.

In addition to the exhibits, there will be a number of performance spaces, including a theater, a museum store, and a restaurant.

The center will be open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., with extended hours on Friday and Saturday.

The cost of admission is $3 for adults, $2 for seniors and students, and $1 for children.

And For the Whole Family To Enjoy...

Not only will the stars and stripes be on display at this year's Bicentennial celebration, but the city's attractions will be open late into the evening.

Many of the city's museums and attractions will be open until 9 p.m., and some until 10 p.m. The city's main landmarks, such as Independence Hall and the Liberty Bell, will be illuminated, creating a festive atmosphere.

The Fourth: Fireworks, Flags, and Fanfare

By STEVEN A. MARQUEZ

Fireworks are scheduled to be shot off from Independence Hall, and the city will host a parade featuring floats and marching bands.

President Ford is scheduled to arrive in Philadelphia on July 4th, and will attend the festivities at Independence Hall.

The city's major landmarks, including Independence Hall, Liberty Bell, and the Liberty Tower, will be illuminated, creating a festive atmosphere.

The city's main attractions, such as the Philadelphia Museum of Art and the Philadelphia Zoo, will also be open late into the evening.

The city will also host a massive fireworks display at 8 p.m., and the city's skyline will be illuminated, creating a festive atmosphere.

While the North Faced Vietnam and Watts...

By Chris Jennewein

While the party regulars watched with cold-shoulder condescension, Jimmy Carter assembled the Democrats' legendary "Grand Coalition"—something the party hasn't been able to do since John F. Kennedy. But the victory was not so much a tribute to Jimmy Carter's dynamism.

The last decade has been a tragic chapter in the making of the United States. Between the time the last evacuation helicopter left Saigon and the S&L bust, the country had its nose to the ground. Everyone agreed we need a new set of goals, but nobody agreed on what they should be, or how we should get there.

The last election was over one of obvious-both my shoes were tied.

Saints Consider Crocker

By DENNIS STONE

In the first round, these two teams fought for the lead up steadily at the start, the wind and rain added to the woes of the players. Twenty-two inches of rain had fallen, and winds were at 15-20 miles per hour. Even the best players struggled against the elements.

The game began with the Bears in possession of the ball, and early on, they managed to take the lead. However, Crocker fought back, scoring a goal to level the scores. The halftime whistle blew with the scores at 5-5, and both teams were level.

In the second half, Crocker quickly took the lead, scoring two goals to grab the initiative. The Bears tried to respond, but Crocker's defense was rock solid, and they managed to hold on to their lead. With just a few minutes left on the clock, Crocker scored once again to put the game out of reach. The final score was 10-5 in favor of Crocker. The Bears will now have to regroup and prepare for the upcoming matches, while Crocker will look to build on this victory.
