FAS Dean Defends Transfer Admissions

BY THEREDBO
Faculty and student member of the FAS Planning Committee, Professor Robert E. Hahn, announced Thursday at a faculty meeting that the university has received a number of applications. "People are asking for a five percent a year pay increase," he said. "They can't do it, they started giving them something in order to finish but no new students will be able to finish."

Maintenance and Security Workers End Nine-Day Strike at Columbia

BY DANIEL M. AHER
Striking security and maintenance workers' tentative agreement was reached Thursday prior to a faculty meeting. The faculty's vote is not expected to be final until "sometime in late December," a source said. The new contract, according to the source, would be in effect for one year. The strike was planned to begin at 6:00 AM Wednesday, the university's main library. Some buildings around campus, including the university's main library, would be closed until the strike is over. The tentative agreement was reached between the university and the Striking Security and Maintenance Workers' Union, which represents workers at Columbia University voted to accept the agreement. "People are asking a little bit more," he said, "but we also want to keep the sick leave issue.

Carroll Defends M.P.A. Phase-out, Students Call for Decision Review

BY STEVEN DUBROW
William McGil, M.P.A. program director, defended the M.P.A. phase-out to a meeting of the FAS and Urban Policy and Social Development students. M.P.A. students are concerned about the program's future. McGil said the M.P.A. phase-out is necessary. "It will allow us to maintain the balance with the policy," he said. McGil also said the M.P.A. students need to be educated about the program's phase-out and that undergraduates should be informed about the program's future. The meeting was attended by M.P.A. students, faculty members, and university officials.

Campus Polls for Idealism of Sixties

BY MARYANN CAMPOL
Former FAS professor, Anthony Campolo, recently returned to campus to discuss the political climate in the United States and the impact of the sixties. "The sixties were a time of great change," he said, "and in many ways, we are still experiencing those changes today."

The average salary of male full professors at the University, however, increased by 14.4 percent from 1972-73 to 1973-74, with full female professors increasing by 17.8 percent. The average full-time faculty salary increased by 13.4 percent from 1972-73 to 1973-74, with full-time female professors increasing by 18.7 percent.

The campaign for Idealism of Sixties focused on the role of the sixties in American political and social history. "The sixties were a time of great change," Campolo said, "and in many ways, we are still experiencing those changes today."

"We have a lot of work to do, but we also want to keep the sick leave issue."

"Our campaign is a way to show the university that we care about the issues," Campolo said. "We want to make sure that our voices are heard."

Many times in the short future—maybe even now—you are going to be involved with publishing some material to be distributed to the public.

That material might be a newspaper or a magazine. It might be a brochure or a pamphlet or a program or a flyer. It might even be your resume.

Whatever it is to be printed, you want it to be the best there is. There is no better way to guarantee the quality of your publication than to produce it with phototype. There is no place less expensive than DP Graphics to purchase phototype.

DP Graphics is the composition shop of the DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN. We have been typesetting for the newspaper several years. We also have the most modern equipment and our staff is well trained.

We think you should take advantage of us!

Rashid Ali, the Italian-born tenor saxophonist who has made the University his home for almost a decade, may have chosen to stay in Annenberg for a while longer.

"I've been here for about six or seven years," he said as he finished a recent rehearsal with his quintet. "It's a pretty good place for me."

But there are very few like Susanna Hackett who rejected traditional mime. This native of Europe, who will perform at the C.A. Thursday through Sunday, says she left the famous Marcel Marceau's training feeling "unsatisfied and unsatiated."

"I hear this, you're listening to Johnny's Dance Band. Made up of six males and one female singer, the band is composed of musicians from the Philadelphia area. This group is part of the aggregation that presents the music of the 1920s and 1930s. They play both old time country music and "raucous comedy." The two groups have their origins in the early 1970s. They have appeared in Philadelphia and throughout Pennsylvania and in the surrounding area.

Marcel Marceau's University for Mime in Paris is one of the most popular in the world. Like all prestiged schools, it has a good job market, and they apply students worldwide.

Admission is $2.00. In addition to her performances, Hackett will conduct classes in mime technique in Houston Hall on Thursday and Saturday at 9:30 A.M. and 2:30 P.M. in the Christian Association.

At the University, a one-semester course on mime is offered, and this semester, the course is taught by the French Institute, and in addition to the University students, there are community members and professional actors who are enrolled.

Among the items already stated to be cut back on the scholl are that of drama and mime. Among the many area-presented courses that are offered by the League. Other repertory and "improvisation and performance" programs will continue to be offered.

"I want to make sure that the show is not just a one-time thing," he said. "I want to make sure that people are interested in doing it again."

The Violation Code

An apartment is not good in repair if it is a safety hazard. The Bureau of Licenses and Inspections and the Bureau of Housing and Inspection are responsible for such things as peeling paint. It requires only the essentials. The Code requires such things as a toilet, adequate heat, light, a certain number of electric outlets, and so on. It does not cover more common problems such as peeling paint. It requires only the essentials.

Even though L and I may not agree in all the details, we recommend that tenants report all possible Building Code violations to L and I. Even if the measures L and I take are ineffective, at least L and I will have prior knowledge of the problem. If the problem is a safety hazard, the tenant is responsible for his own injuries, and L and I will have prior knowledge of the problem.

Wharton Fund Drive Proceeding Smoothly

By ELIZABETH SANDER

According to Wharton Dean Donald Caryell, the school "is exactly on target at this point" in the University's development campaign. Thus far, the school has raised over $11 million in its capital drive, a figure which is lagging behind the planned $20 million goal. It is expected to be in the $12 million range by the end of the year.

The plan for raising the $11 million came in the form of a 20-page brochure put out by the Medical School's development office. The brochure reads, "...clinical medicine generally will be made more attractive as a career goal," but is lagging behind the planned $20 million.

"We're just getting started," Associate Dean for Development Richard Lambert said Monday. The brochure, called "One University," was sent to individuals who had given $500,000 or more to the school or promised an amount. It is expected to be delivered to 200,000 people by the end of this year.

The brochure read, "We are very pleased about the school's recent formation." The brochure also emphasizes the importance of the school's recent formation.

The next year may demonstrate the School of Arts and Sciences' potential areas of difficulty. The faculty and administration are looking forward to the school's future.

FAS Campus Plan Reaching Finalization

By STEVEN A. MARQUIS

The University's five-year, $60 million development campaign is continuing its work with the release of the "FAS Plan," which was approved in the spring of 1976. The plan, which includes a variety of development campaigns, is expected to raise 50.75 million.

"We have had an identity problem waiting to happen," said Lambert. "We're just getting started." Lambert also said in hopes to have list of 180 alumni who could be targeted.

The several funds generated by the endowment are expected to grow in value to match-up alumni with interest in FAS-type activities with our drive." Lambert has already received funds for nuclear engineering program, another corporation of $375,000. "We are expecting a gift from another corporation of $375,000," Lambert said. "We're just getting started." Lambert also said in hopes to have list of 180 alumni who could be targeted.

Sports Appeal Taken To WXPN-FM Board

By P. H. Wiest

Representatives of the University's sports interests appealed to the Vice President's WXPN-FM Advisory Board to reverse a station-wide policy that would have eliminated live sports coverage.

Station Director Andrew Gasper, the director of the University Radio and Television Office of the Public Relations department and WXPN-FM sports director made presentations to the board indicating the group's dissatisfaction with the station's decision.

The board, in turn, announced they would consider the full question of sports programming at a later date.

The station's decision to discontinue live sports coverage, according to WXPN-FM Advisory Board Chairman Pat Kaplan, was hers and that of board members, including Gasper, as a group.

Should live sports be removed, WXPN Advisory board members decided to discontinue live football play-by-play for programming at a later date.

However the WXPN Advisory board last month advised the station to continue live football play-by-play for the coming season. At the same time, Gasper and his board comment that they would consider the full question of sports coverage from the station's point of view.

The board did not attempt to draw any conclusions from the presentation but will "consider the matter at their next meeting," according to Kaplan.
