Students Group Provides Foreign Job Opportunities

By STEVE GURDIN

Whereas students got dressed up in jackets and ties, drunk free liquor and enjoyed themselves at a reception at a swanky downtown restaurant last winter when they were young and carefree.

Sponsoring the party for about 3500 Vassarites was AIESEC, an intercollegiate organization for students interested in foreign countries. As an student-managed organization, it provides a steady need for volunteer snickers in the business world.

The cultural event was held in the Union League of Philadelphia when the Wharton Club met with Jimmy Carter's economic adviser Harvey. The event was partly sponsored by the Alumni Association and partly by the Alumni Association.

The main guest of honor was President Ford, accompanied by his wife, who flew into town for the event. The President was greeted by a throng of students who were eager to meet him.

As the evening drew to a close, students were gathered in small groups, chatting and enjoying each other's company. The atmosphere was festive, with music playing in the background.

The event was a success, with dozens of students attending and enjoying themselves. The President was cordial and engaging, answering questions and signing autographs for eager fans.

The evening ended with a toast to the future, with everyone looking forward to the next event.

The Union League of Philadelphia hosted a similar event last year, when the Wharton Club met with former President Carter. The event was well-received, with students enjoying themselves and learning about foreign policy.

The Student Group Provides Foreign Job Opportunities is an organization that provides opportunities for students to pursue careers in foreign countries. It is an excellent opportunity for students to gain valuable experience and make valuable contacts.

The group is open to all students interested in foreign countries, and offers a variety of opportunities, including internships and study abroad programs. The group is well-organized and provides regular updates on current events and opportunities.

If you are interested in pursuing a career in foreign countries, I highly recommend joining the Student Group Provides Foreign Job Opportunities. It is an excellent opportunity to gain valuable experience and make valuable contacts.

(Continued on page 2)
U. Television
(Continued from page 1)
UPTV organizes hope that it will provide the next generation of people with an opportunity to receive educational and other services to the local community through station.

MISCELLANEOUS
OFFICES OPENED: The Office of the Registrar opened their new location at 3rd and Spruce Streets. The new office is located in the basement of the old Administration Building.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION: The Student Government Association held their first meeting of the semester in the basement of the Administration Building. The meeting was attended by representatives from all of the student organizations on campus.

GRADUATE SCHOLARSHIPS IN JEWISH COMMUNITY ORGANIZATION PROGRAM AVAILABLE
College seniors and graduate students of any major sequence are invited to apply for a combination of scholarship grants and loans for a specialized program of graduate education and training at the University of Pennsylvania.

U. S. News & World Report Features Pennsylvania
The University of Pennsylvania is featured in the latest issue of U. S. News & World Report as one of the top universities in the country. The report highlights the University's strong research programs and commitment to education.

FAS Evaluations
(Continued from page 1)
FAS evaluations depend on the occurrence of the department (higher department being from one to 15 new faculty members). For example, Lambert said that in a department of 10-15 faculty members, there would be a new department head. The new department head would replace the old department head, and the new department head would be in charge of the new department.

The perfect gift for the one you love.
A perfect Keepsake diamond is all reflecting your love in brilliance and beauty. And you can choose with confidence because the Keepsake guarantee means security, for the price and precise cut. There is no finer diamond.

ATTENTION: IRANIANS NATIONALS
The Penn State University of Iran

news in brief

GRIECH COURT SENTENCING PROFESSORS: A court in Greece yesterday sentenced 13 persons to prison terms ranging from four to seven years for their role in the terrorist demonstrations. The defendants were acquitted in instigating and leading to clashes between police and demonstrators in Rhodes when protests against the Greek-American Society were held.

DEATH PENALTY OPPONENTS QUESTION DECISION - Abolitionists who oppose the death penalty made a statement in response to the decision in the case of the man convicted of murder.

FAS Evaluations
FAS evaluations depend on the occurrence of the department (higher department being from one to 15 new faculty members). For example, Lambert said that in a department of 10-15 faculty members, there would be a new department head. The new department head would replace the old department head, and the new department head would be in charge of the new department.

The perfect gift for the one you love.
A perfect Keepsake diamond is all reflecting your love in brilliance and beauty. And you can choose with confidence because the Keepsake guarantee means security, for the price and precise cut. There is no finer diamond.

ATTENTION: IRANIANS NATIONALS
The Penn State University of Iran

news in brief

GRIECH COURT SENTENCING PROFESSORS: A court in Greece yesterday sentenced 13 persons to prison terms ranging from four to seven years for their role in the terrorist demonstrations. The defendants were acquitted in instigating and leading to clashes between police and demonstrators in Rhodes when protests against the Greek-American Society were held.

DEATH PENALTY OPPONENTS QUESTION DECISION - Abolitionists who oppose the death penalty made a statement in response to the decision in the case of the man convicted of murder.

FAS Evaluations
FAS evaluations depend on the occurrence of the department (higher department being from one to 15 new faculty members). For example, Lambert said that in a department of 10-15 faculty members, there would be a new department head. The new department head would replace the old department head, and the new department head would be in charge of the new department.

The perfect gift for the one you love.
A perfect Keepsake diamond is all reflecting your love in brilliance and beauty. And you can choose with confidence because the Keepsake guarantee means security, for the price and precise cut. There is no finer diamond.
ELECTION ‘76

Election Day: Where the Candidates Stand

Unemployment, Inflation Hotly Debated in Campaign

Monday, November 1, 1976

Despite similarities of youth, past looks and tones into historical facts, the two Pennsylvania Senate candidates—Bill Green and John Heinz—are coming off differences of opinion on the economy. However, the campaign has been conducted in a non-partisan manner; neither of the candidates has made personal attacks or charges.

ECONOMY—Probably the most-debated issue of the campaign—shows a clear difference between the two candidates. Carter, while acknowledging Ford's proposals are serious, argued for a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Ford supports the current policy of the federal government.

Carter supported the philosophy that the government's policy is not to create jobs but to stimulate the economy. He said that the current strategy is not working. Ford favors a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

Ford's campaign has been characterized by a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

ECONOMY—The most-debated issue of the campaign—shows a clear difference between the two candidates. Carter has argued for a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Ford supports the current policy of the federal government.

CARTER: "I am not sure that we have ever had a program of tax cuts that has been successful. We have had one, but it was not successful. We have had a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

Ford's campaign has been characterized by a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

ECONOMY—The most-debated issue of the campaign—shows a clear difference between the two candidates. Carter has argued for a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Ford supports the current policy of the federal government.

CARTER: "I am not sure that we have ever had a program of tax cuts that has been successful. We have had one, but it was not successful. We have had a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

Ford's campaign has been characterized by a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

ECONOMY—The most-debated issue of the campaign—shows a clear difference between the two candidates. Carter has argued for a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Ford supports the current policy of the federal government.

CARTER: "I am not sure that we have ever had a program of tax cuts that has been successful. We have had one, but it was not successful. We have had a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

Ford's campaign has been characterized by a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

ECONOMY—The most-debated issue of the campaign—shows a clear difference between the two candidates. Carter has argued for a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Ford supports the current policy of the federal government.

CARTER: "I am not sure that we have ever had a program of tax cuts that has been successful. We have had one, but it was not successful. We have had a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

Ford's campaign has been characterized by a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

ECONOMY—The most-debated issue of the campaign—shows a clear difference between the two candidates. Carter has argued for a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Ford supports the current policy of the federal government.

CARTER: "I am not sure that we have ever had a program of tax cuts that has been successful. We have had one, but it was not successful. We have had a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.

Ford's campaign has been characterized by a program of tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs. Carter has said that he would favor tax cuts to stimulate private sector jobs, but he has not specified how much he would favor.
Elections

Many potential voters are approaching tomorrow's election with little enthusiasm, and perhaps less confidence that either of the major party candidates for President can provide leadership that will make a difference in the nation's affairs.

The future is a more attractive place to be when the words of the Republicans and Democrats alike are punctuated with sermons, misleading statements and muddy tactics. But on Tuesday the voters must come down all their comfortable perches on the Issues, and bite into their election ballots.

Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter do represent different ideologies, and they do offer different approaches to the nation's problems. Similarly, the candidates for Senate from Pennsylvania, Republicans John Heinz and Democrat William Green offer us a choice.

We urge you to express your views on May 27 to this Tuesday. The following is a list of candidates who have been recommended by the DP and their positions on the ballot:

President and Vice-President of the United States: Jimmy Carter and Walter Mondale (D-A)

United States Senator: William Green (D-A)

Auditor General: Albert (A-A)

State Treasurer: Patricia Crawford (D-A)

Representatives in the General Assembly: Norman Berenson (D-A)

Credit Manager: Edward D. City Editor

When Politics Becomes Dangerous

How Not to Stage a Media Event

By Fred Snehery

The Daily Pennsylvanian

At a recent political protest on North Broad Street, near the Pennsylvania convention center, a group of demonstrators picked a fight with an Italian street vendor who was selling newspapers. The vendor was surrounded by a large crowd of angry demonstrators who were yelling at him to leave the street. The vendor remained calm and tried to reason with the demonstrators, but they continued to hassle him. Eventually, the police were called and they had to be used to disperse the crowd. It was a sad day for democracy when political events degenerated into violence.

Backroom Cauconing at the Italian Market

By Daniel M. Akst

The Pennsylvania legislature is in session, and the usual backroom dealing is taking place as bills are pushed through the legislative process. The Italian Market, located in South Philadelphia, is one of the largest and busiest markets in the city. It is a popular gathering place for politicians and lobbyists, who use it as a venue for meetings and discussions. The market is known for its vibrant atmosphere, with vendors selling a variety of fresh produce and meats. As the legislative session winds down, it is likely that many deals will be made behind closed doors in the market. It is a reminder of the power and influence that some politicians wield in the legislative process.

Letters to the Editor

The Real Issue of 76: Cleaning Up the Environment

By William D. Stirn

The Daily Pennsylvanian

The United States has not paid enough attention to the environment over the past few decades. The country has been using its natural resources at an unsustainable rate, and the pollution caused by these activities is causing serious harm to the planet. The government has a responsibility to protect the environment, and it needs to start making changes that will benefit future generations. One of the biggest issues is pollution from factories and industries. The government needs to impose stricter regulations on these companies so they can't continue polluting the environment. It's time for the government to take action and start protecting the environment for the sake of our children and grandchildren.

The Employment Sweepstakes

By Kenneth Gerver

The Employment Sweepstakes is a program that helps students find jobs after graduation. It is a very valuable resource for students who need to break into the job market. The program matches students with employers based on their skills and interests, and it provides valuable networking opportunities for students. It is a great way for students to get a foot in the door of a career field they are interested in.

Letters to the Editor

Pennsylvanian Enthusiasm

The Daily Pennsylvanian

The Daily Pennsylvanian is a very enthusiastic newspaper. It is full of stories about the news and events happening in the city. The newspaper is written by young people and it has a very fresh perspective on the world. It is a great source of information for anyone who wants to learn about what is happening in the city.

Letters to the Editor

We Need Your Help

The Daily Pennsylvanian

We need your help to distribute our newspaper. We are a small group of students who are trying to spread the word about our newspaper. We are looking for people who are willing to help us distribute copies of our newspaper in the community. If you are interested, please contact us at info@dailyPennsylvanian.com.
Candidate Carter Appears in Area

Continued from page 11

The most optimistic Democrat would, like Philadelphia's voters, want to re-examine their performance of 1960, when Bill Green's father, the chamber of the city party, defeated a 30,000 majority to John Kennedy. But voter quality, combined with a movement among white suburb toward the Democratic ticket (and if Bob Green is re-elected, re-elected), is a high voter turnout is the key, Democratic victory—and it is a responsibility for getting it in the army of Philadelphia ward leaders and committeemen, most of whom are closely connected to Bob Green his Mayor's discoveries, several sources on the party committee say candidates for Carter are running now. But the 1976 campaign will be far from the 1960 election, Green who was a candidate for Philadelphia mayor in 1969, and is, for the Democratic Republi can vote. It would be particularly disastrous for Carter if self-leaders do not make a turnout effort in wards with large numbers of black voters, who have generally supported the Democratic ticket. If the campaign strategists hope for a large Republican vote in the city's suburbs, combined with the Democratic majority in Philadelphia, could tip the vote in the city's suburbs, combined with the Democratic majority in Philadelphia, could tip the vote in the city's suburbs. If this happens, the more plausible way to go to vote, a sizeable portion of the Democratic party's victory will depend on that day. "If this happens, the more plausible way to go to vote, a sizeable portion of the Democratic party's victory will depend on that day."

John Heinze appeared Saturday afternoon at NAACP meeting to drum up support for him. But he was counting on Philadelphia votes to give him his home district. Green also accused Heinz of accepting illegal contributions from the Gulf Oil company. "Which is which?" and the Democrat "I don't have enough money to buy your vote, and Gulf Oil doesn't have enough to buy mine," Green claimed. But he was accused of being "to buy the Senate seat," with his media campaign. "I don't have enough money to buy mine," Green claimed. But he was accused of being "to buy the Senate seat," with his media campaign.

If the campaign strategists hope for a large Republican vote in the city's suburbs, combined with the Democratic majority in Philadelphia,next to solidify his already strong support in the area and give some advantage, the race remains too close to call. The most optimistic Democrat would, like Philadelphia's voters, want to re-examine their performance of 1960, when Bill Green's father, the chamber of the city party, defeated a 30,000 majority to John Kennedy. But voter quality, combined with a movement among white suburb toward the Democratic ticket (and if Bob Green is re-elected, re-elected), is a high voter turnout is the key, Democratic victory—and it is a responsibility for getting it in the army of Philadelphia ward leaders and committeemen, most of whom are closely connected to Bob Green his Mayor's discoveries, several sources on the party committee say candidates for Carter are running now. But the 1976 campaign will be far from the 1960 election, Green who was a candidate for Philadelphia mayor in 1969, and is, for the Democratic Republi can vote. It would be particularly disastrous for Carter if self-leaders do not make a turnout effort in wards with large numbers of black voters, who have generally supported the Democratic ticket. If the campaign strategists hope for a large Republican vote in the city's suburbs, combined with the Democratic majority in Philadelphia, could tip the vote in the city's suburbs. If this happens, the more plausible way to go to vote, a sizeable portion of the Democratic party's victory will depend on that day. "If this happens, the more plausible way to go to vote, a sizeable portion of the Democratic party's victory will depend on that day."
University Officials Devise Energy Conservation Plan

By CHARLES TRICOMI

A memorandum outlining the heating plan for the University during this academic year was recently circulated by Provost Ellen Starer and Senior Vice-President for Management Paul Caddis.

The plan, devised by the cooperation of the community during the past year in implementing the energy conservation measures that reduced the University's overall energy consumption by 4 percent or approximately $245,000, was finalized for a more successful program for this year which would still maintain a "comfortable environment in our University buildings."

Devised by Horace Bomar and Francis McQuade, energy conservation consultant of the Energy Office, the program divides the heating season, which lasts from November 1 until April 15, into three periods.

During the normal activity period, when the University is in session, suggested federal guidelines will be followed by keeping temperatures approximately 68 degrees. It's more like a calling card, of every human being.

The notice acknowledged the successful program for this year and the past year in implementing the Energy Conservation Plan, which was circulated by Provost Eliot Stellar and Senior Vice-President for Management Paul Caddis.

A special operating schedule will be developed for the Energy Office in cooperation with building administrators to be used during the low activity periods, such as the Thanksgiving and spring recesses and the second part of the Christmas vacation.

The third segment of the energy conservation program, to last until the start of the Christmas vacation from December 23 to January 3, will be the best opportunity to conserve energy because most of the community will be away, the memorandum states.

The large fans in some buildings will be turned off, which should save more energy than any other action.

"It is often said, in public and in private, that we are not going to have a "cool" winter this year, and there is a feeling that the cold will last longer than usual. Because of this, it is important to conserve energy to the best of our ability." Blahphemy? Hardly.

"It is a feeling that we are not going to have a "cool" winter this year, and there is a feeling that the cold will last longer than usual. Because of this, it is important to conserve energy to the best of our ability." Blahphemy? Hardly.

"It is a feeling that we are not going to have a "cool" winter this year, and there is a feeling that the cold will last longer than usual. Because of this, it is important to conserve energy to the best of our ability." Blahphemy? Hardly.
Frosh, Ltws. Lose With Different Style

by FRED BOLLMAN

Of the Daily

Princeton, N.J.—How do you define a "complicated" football game? If the score is 11-10, the game (11-10) is lost in the hands of an aggressive Princeton team (11-10) last Saturday.

Unlike in previous games, Coach Red Gauvin's Quakers played an explosive brand of defense, Gauvin directing the team from the quarterback position for most of the game. "I don't think we've ever played with this much intensity and at this level of aggression," said Gauvin.

Both Princeton and Penn field hockey teams played matches in the round robin championships, Eastern Regionals. Entering the championships, Penn spikers can no longer be considered "the underdog."" The team (1-3-1) suffered a "tough loss?" versus the favored team, the Columbia freshman squad, Penn must put all the pieces together to build a winning team. This week it was the offensive team's turn to lead. In its opening game, running backs John Montesanti continually emphasized the importance of winning their season opener. Montesanti, who started at quarterback position for most of the season, noted that "the offensive blockers did an excellent job out there." Montesanti felt that "the offensive blockers did an excellent job out there." Montesanti continually emphasized the importance of winning their season opener.

The Quaker freshmen realize the significance of winning their first game of the season. Moments later, Princeton scored what turned out to be the winning touchdown pass with seven seconds remaining in the first half. The game remained scoreless throughout, with neither team ever leading by more than one point. When the Penn defense was on the field, the Quaker offense was nearly non-existent. When the Penn offense was on the field, the Quaker defense was nearly impenetrable.

Princeton scored what turned out to be the winning touchdown pass with seven seconds remaining in the first half. The Quaker offense was nearly non-existent. When the Penn defense was on the field, the Quaker offense was nearly non-existent.

The remainder of the contest was a defensive battle. The defense tightened up during the second half, allowing the Quakers to hold the Tigers scoreless. The defense, led by captain Gina Jarvis, allowed only 10 points in the second half. The Quaker defense was outmanned, but not outplayed. The Tigers were able to reach the Quaker 20-yard line only once in the second half, and the Quakers were able to hold them there. The Tigers were also able to reach the Quaker 10-yard line, but the Quakers were able to hold them there. The Tigers were able to reach the Quaker 10-yard line, but the Quakers were able to hold them there.

The Quakers' defense held the Tigers to just one touchdown. As tight end Tom Fitzpatrick summed up, "It's just how the league goes that most of these games are shutouts. Most of what we're really proud of is our defense.

The defense tightened up during the second half, allowing the Quakers to hold the Tigers scoreless. The defense, led by captain Gina Jarvis, allowed only 10 points in the second half. The Quaker defense was outmanned, but not outplayed. The Tigers were able to reach the Quaker 20-yard line only once in the second half, and the Quakers were able to hold them there. The Tigers were able to reach the Quaker 10-yard line, but the Quakers were able to hold them there. The Tigers were able to reach the Quaker 10-yard line, but the Quakers were able to hold them there.

The remainder of the game was dominated by neither team. Both teams made long drives, but the Quakers were unable to convert the third down on each. The Penn offense was nearly non-existent. When the Penn defense was on the field, the Quaker offense was nearly non-existent. When the Penn offense was on the field, the Quaker defense was nearly impenetrable.

The offense then took over, and with the game on the line, the Quakers were able to score another touchdown to secure the victory. Keeping the ball on the ground, Steve Gravina and Princeton scored two quick touchdowns early in the game. The Quakers were able to counter with a touchdown and field goal, but the second half was all Penn. The Quakers were able to score two more touchdowns in the second half, but the game was already out of reach.

The remainder of the game was dominated by neither team. Both teams made long drives, but the Quakers were unable to convert the third down on each. The Penn offense was nearly non-existent. When the Penn defense was on the field, the Quaker offense was nearly non-existent. When the Penn offense was on the field, the Quaker defense was nearly impenetrable.
Hodgepodge Lodge in Old Nassau

By ELIFF KAPLAN
Of the DP Sports Staff

PRINCETON, N.J.—The critics can say all they want about the "Pea chokes." They can say all they want about the Quakers' alleged misfiring for the start of their feet on the ground.

Well, for one fleeting but delicious moment Saturday afternoon on the beautifully manicured campus of Princeton University, each nagging doubt about the Quakers' ability to compete and win against their Ivy League rivals were "con tinued with noose around its neck. Somebody tossed the sturdy coach a

The defense lined up in what it calls

Then comes the last-second so-called turnover.

Once for the 6-foot-3 Touchdown punts that landed on the 28-yard line. Once for the last-minute fumble or...