U. Rejects Experimental Application

BY CAROLE BAKER

The University announced Tuesday that it will not give a consent to an experimental application form normally used experimentally by other colleges.

Carter, assistant professor of anthropological studies, said she was informed of the rejection by telephone Tuesday morning.

"It's a real disappointment," Carter said. "I was hoping that we could reach an agreement on it."

By CAROLE BAKER

The University has rejected an application for an experimental application form normally used experimentally by other colleges.

"It's a real disappointment," Carter said. "I was hoping that we could reach an agreement on it."

Carter, who is a member of the anthropology department, said she was informed of the rejection by telephone Tuesday morning.

"It's a real disappointment," Carter said. "I was hoping that we could reach an agreement on it."

The rejection is the latest in a series of recent actions by the University and other institutions to limit the use of experimental application forms.

NEW GROUP SEEKS WALNUT DEVELOPER

By FRED SCHNEIDER

The University has decided to create a new group to help seed the development of the Walnut District.

The group, called the University-Walnut Project, will be composed of representatives from various departments and offices on campus.

''We are committed to seeing that development of the Walnut District proceeds in a manner that meets the needs of the University community and the broader community as well," University Development Committee Chair Vartan Gregorian said in a statement.

The University-Walnut Project will be headed by a group of faculty members and administrators who have been involved in development efforts in the past.

The group will be tasked with developing a comprehensive plan for the development of the Walnut District and will be able to make decisions on its own.

University Development Committee
To Solicit Funding from Charities

BY STEVEN A. MARCHIE

The University Development Committee has formed an alliance to solicit funding from charities.

The alliance will focus on soliciting funding from charities that are interested in supporting the University's mission.

"We are excited to partner with charities that share our commitment to advancing knowledge and improving the world," said University Development Committee Chair Vartan Gregorian.

The alliance will be led by a team of experienced development professionals who are dedicated to ensuring that the University's needs are met.

The University Development Committee has a long history of successful fundraising efforts and is confident that this partnership will be successful.

University Development Committee
To Solicit Funding from Charities

BY STEVEN A. MARCHIE

The University Development Committee has formed an alliance to solicit funding from charities.

The alliance will focus on soliciting funding from charities that are interested in supporting the University's mission.

"We are excited to partner with charities that share our commitment to advancing knowledge and improving the world," said University Development Committee Chair Vartan Gregorian.

The alliance will be led by a team of experienced development professionals who are dedicated to ensuring that the University's needs are met.

The University Development Committee has a long history of successful fundraising efforts and is confident that this partnership will be successful.

University Development Committee
To Solicit Funding from Charities

BY STEVEN A. MARCHIE

The University Development Committee has formed an alliance to solicit funding from charities.

The alliance will focus on soliciting funding from charities that are interested in supporting the University's mission.

"We are excited to partner with charities that share our commitment to advancing knowledge and improving the world," said University Development Committee Chair Vartan Gregorian.

The alliance will be led by a team of experienced development professionals who are dedicated to ensuring that the University's needs are met.

The University Development Committee has a long history of successful fundraising efforts and is confident that this partnership will be successful.
Activities Council Increases Efficiency and Funding

Tuesday, November 9, 1976

money it must appropriate.

of allocating $300,000 to student activities, the council gets its job done with a time it could/approach $50,000. Part of this from the students services budget of the Vice-President, while the

with the majority originates from the student general fee.

As a result, the council has been able to

of students or campus.

you want to provide an opportunity for some of the

'were not interested in seeing that the best members, however, that many of their council members contend, however, that many of their under the assumption of the

that the council's philosophy towards in the handling of special interest group relatively intact over the years.

Although many students are not of the opinion, the council's 000, seems to have worked hostilely with the council in its job.

It's a case of recognizing diverse interests'

Architects of the council function is that

"The council functions well" because what it has to do is important,

"The council functions well" because what it has to do is important,

"The council functions well" because what it has to do is important,

"The council functions well" because what it has to do is important,

ACTIVITIES COUNCIL OFFICE ANNOUNCES THE

"The council functions well" because what it has to do is important,

All in all, the council's functions have been streamlined, and many political activities sponsored by his

we've been shortchanged last

"We've been shortchanged last

"We've been shortchanged last

"We've been shortchanged last

"We've been shortchanged last

We're looking at what is being

If you consider purchasing a

A Special After Performance Discussion

A Special After Performance Discussion

A Special After Performance Discussion

A Special After Performance Discussion

A Special After Performance Discussion

A Special After Performance Discussion

A Special After Performance Discussion
Save SAMP

It appears likely that the University Council will vote Wednesday on a resolution to keep the School of Allied Medical Professions (SAMP) open. We believe one is the time for the University Council to display its appreciation for the planning of the SAMP.

Earlier, we suggested that the merger of SAMP with another medical school would disintegrate. We believe that this merger, which we have consistently opposed, would be a disservice to the University. The SAMP is an important component of the University's teaching and research program.

Although we acknowledge the contributions of the SAMP, we believe that the University Council has a responsibility to consider the future of the SAMP. We urge the Council to consider the benefits of keeping the SAMP open.

It is Time to Stop Studying When...

By Bruce Levine and Sam Domsky

I'm a library student, and I'm not alone. The library is a popular place for students to study, with a mix of freshmen and seniors. Many of them stay until late at night, sometimes until the library closes.

But why do people spend so much time studying? One reason is that many students feel pressure to perform well in their classes. Another reason is that they may be struggling with their coursework.

However, there are also benefits to taking breaks. For example, taking a short break can help improve memory and concentration. It can also help reduce stress and increase productivity.

For me, I find that a brief break is helpful. I take a short walk, stretch my legs, or check my email. It helps me to refocus and get back to work.

So, next time you're studying, remember to take a break. It's important to take care of your health and well-being.

On Curbing Criticism

By Keith Epstein

I'm a student at the University of Pennsylvania and I've been involved in various extracurricular activities. I've been a member of the Debate Team, a member of the Men's Basketball Team, and a member of the Student Government Association.

But despite my involvement, I've had my fair share of criticism. Some of it has been constructive, but some of it has been quite harsh.

I think that criticism is an important part of growth and development. It helps us to learn from our mistakes and improve our skills. But at the same time, we need to be careful not to let criticism get us down.

So, how do we deal with criticism? One thing I've found helpful is to try to understand where the criticism is coming from. Is it based on facts or emotions? Is it helpful or harmful?

Also, I find it helpful to seek out feedback from others. Sometimes, other people can give us a different perspective on our work.

Overall, I think that criticism can be a valuable tool if we use it wisely. By understanding the nature of the criticism and how to handle it, we can use it to improve ourselves and our work.
I Tuesday, November 9, 1976

AMY CARTER TO ATTEND WASHINGTON PUBLIC SCHOOL—President Carter and his family spent his working vacation with advisors in the sun of Southern California playing golf and enjoying a rest with the family. Each was reported to be healthy, in good spirits and getting fresh air. Ford elect Jimmy Carter spent yesterday vacationing in seclusion from reporters.

I village rather than em mating from unfolds was radioed from village to public radio, the president had to stage."

 things are presently in an "incipient

 FAS Electives

 (Continued from page (continued)

 distribution of disciplines.

 "We will be giving more thought to the way the college is organized in this area," he said. Students and faculty will be consulted to see whether we are doing right. If so, it is hopefully improved," he added. Noting that the committee has a "charge," he added that things are presently in an "incipient stage."

 Colloquium

 (Continued from page 2)

 problem with the emphasis the state is placing on commuting, "accommodation for its low status." The amount of time in residence is crucial to "getting credit," he said, adding that the more traditional courses.

 The college's "new project" was undertaken, he said. The Algiers residence hall, built in 1968 was taken as a "textbook example of a campus problem" the Committee on teaching and the University General Education Committee were able to tell. The college was unable to provide more than one professor per class, he said, and the lack of town was "whipping boy." The new college's number was reported to be "in the teens but is rising," he said.

 Ford elect Jimmy Carter said last week he would enroll his 9-year-old daughter in the University's nursery school. Steve's School, built in 1968 as Washington's first school for the children of freed

 Theodore Roosevelt sent his son, Quentin. She would attend the seven-room the non-major portion of the FAS distribution of disciplines.

 (Continued from page 1)

...it's where you drink in the center-spread lady Ava Cadell.

 The March Hare

 ...is a small, cozy shop doing cutting, styling, coloring

 Deryl's expert cut, plus two appearance shampoo, a cold center-air, your color or traditional set is just

 $14 Complete

 (Deryl formerly with Elizabeth Arden & Nala Sheilds)

 Badminton

 Wine & Cheese Party

 The March Hare

 The Writing Program & Afro-American Studies

 present

 The Exiled South African Poet

 Dennis Brutus

 author of A Simple Lust, Sines, Knuckles, Boots.

 Letter to Martha and other books

 Wednesday, Nov. 10 4 P.M. Philomathean Rooms

 4th floor College Hall
Finley's System Reaps Profits For Bucksters

Hard-hitting, strong penalty killing, and crisp forechecking were evident in last Saturday's afternoon as the Penn hockey team fought its way to a 2-0 win. Did they play? Of course! It was a no-brainer, but the way in which head coach Finley had the bucks hustling, one could easily imagine it to be in a tough match between two rivals. Finley, the head honcho, had all the personnel dressed in deep blue, the Penn uniform, and the players were seen fighting against the odds with their usual hustling and driving to the net. Finley had exhibited his scoring ability as a thrill-seeker, driving, slicing, and making sure the puck was in the net. Finley's usual near-side angle shot had scored past the feisty goalie.

As Finley was seen talking about his team's scoring ability, a man walked over and asked Finley what he had done to win the game. Finley responded, "I've been practicing, the coaching strategy," he explained. "The main reason for our success is the development of personal talent. If we have a star, the team will do well."

The game was won in the first period, as Finley's System took control early. The team scored two goals in the first 10 minutes, and the game was over.

"We're an American Band — In Band Forms a Giant Tuna Fish" Song is an alternative to the usual band music. The song is sung by the band and is accompanied by a giant tuna fish made of band members. The song is a hit and the band has received much praise for it. As Finley points out, the song is a way for the band to express themselves and connect with the audience.

"The Shape of Things to Come" High school basketball is a tough battle, but the Penn team is ready to take on the challenge. With the return of Henry Johnson to the team, the Quakers are a force to be reckoned with. Johnson is back in uniform, and he has helped the team improve their defense and become a more difficult team to score against.

We're Not the N.Y. Philharmonic, But... By Fred Rohlman

The players, the team, the whole program is coming together, but one thing never changes at Penn football games — you can always expect to see the Penn Band performing. During the game against the Swarthmore College Quakers, the band displayed its usual talent and energy.

"The band plays an important role in the overall experience of attending a Penn football game," said Band Director Bob Matthews. "It's all about the music and the cheerleading.

The Penn Band is known for its unique style of marching, which is often described as "the Penn Band's way of moving."

"The band is known for its unique style of marching, which is often described as "the Penn Band's way of moving."

Rob Matthews, the assistant director, believes that Penn football games are a great opportunity for the band to showcase its talent.

"The band is a big part of the football game," he said. "As the players take to the field, the band provides a great entrance for them."

"The band is a big part of the football game," he said. "As the players take to the field, the band provides a great entrance for them."

The band's performance during the game was well received by the spectators, and it added to the overall atmosphere of the game. The players on the field were delighted with the performance, and it was evident in their body language.

The band's performance during the game was well received by the spectators, and it added to the overall atmosphere of the game. The players on the field were delighted with the performance, and it was evident in their body language.

The band's performance during the game was well received by the spectators, and it added to the overall atmosphere of the game. The players on the field were delighted with the performance, and it was evident in their body language.