Energy Crisis Policy Probed
At U. Forum

By JOAN GRECO

"The energy crisis is the central issue of today's society," Daniel L. Boren, administrator of the Federal Energy Administration, told students at a University student forum held at Van Pelt Library.

The forum, titled "Energy Policy and the Future," was sponsored by the students of the U. and hosted by the institute of Urban Affairs and Policy Research and the School of Business Administration.

"The energy crisis is the central issue of today's society," Boren said.

During questions from students, Boren suggested that the United States is "in worse shape than it has ever been," and that the problem includes a lack of energy conservation efforts, an increase of energy demand, and an increase of energy use. He explained that the need for energy conservation is critical, and that the nation must take immediate action to reduce energy usage.

The forum was held to discuss the energy crisis and its impact on the United States, as well as to hear from experts in the field. Boren was joined by other speakers, including scientists and economists, to provide a comprehensive overview of the energy crisis.

In conclusion, Boren urged students to take action and to be aware of the energy crisis, as it is a critical issue that affects everyone.

Gaddis, Higgenbotham Considered
For Jobs in Carter Administration

By BETTE BURTON

Senior Vice-President of Management, Paul Gaddis, and a University Trustee A. Leon Higginbotham, are candidates for posts in the Carter Administration. Gaddis is a member of the presidential transition team and Higginbotham, a Philadelphia federal judge, is on the list of candidates for Attorney General.

"The task force doesn't have a sharp focus right now," Gaddis said. "We can't afford to be in an existing, organized effort that can't be eliminated by a more efficient use of resources."

Higginbotham said that he has been contacted by members of the transition team to discuss a possible appointment, but Gaddis said that he "doesn't know anything about the situation." He added that he has "heard a lot about it" and that he has not been informed about the situation.

Higginbotham is unsure of the situation, but he said that he has been in contact with the transition team to discuss a possible appointment.

Group to Consider WXPN Constitution

R.P.A. WEST
The Activities Council Steering Committee will meet tonight to consider a proposal approved of a proposed WXPN constitution.

On November 19 the committee was unable to take action on the proposed constitution because it had not been submitted in a presentable form, according to committee members.

Last week station members submitted a final draft to the committee for its consideration. A special interest was expressed by the committee for the board of the Federal Communications Commission to take over control of the station in the hands of the Activities Director Jerry Straight.

At the time, complaints of alleged interference appeared to a Federal Communications Commission to resign from his post. A special arrangement with the station members, however, indicated that the commission will consider the matter.

Since then, no official constitution has been submitted to the Activities Council, which actually funds station operations. This year, the Council allocated $10,000 to the station which constitutes of both AM and FM branch.

It is very hopeful that the steering committee will finally be able to approve a WXPN constitution.

A Little Night’s Hosts Ace In Saturday Night Concert

By BARBARA DUNBEYST

Modern dance will grace the Playhouse Theatre Program this weekend when Van Dyke and Dancers arrive from Washington, D.C. for performances at the Christmas Assembly.

Besides performing regularly in Washington, the tour of this male and female group toured Baltimore, Philadelphia, and New York.

Director and choreographer Van Dyke explained that the six member group specializes in modern style dance and has been together for about 10 years. All six members are professionals, with two of them having been with the group for the past six years.

According to Dunbeyst, the six members have an extensive repertoire, ranging from classical to contemporary and from solo to group performances. The group is known for its innovative and avant-garde approach to dance, with a strong focus on improvisation and physical expression.

Dunbeyst mentioned that the group’s performances are always well-received, with audiences captivated by the skillful and energetic performances of the dancers. The group’s repertoire includes works by leading choreographers, as well as original works created by the group members.

The concert will be held at the Playhouse Theatre on Saturday, December 1, at 8 p.m., with additional performances scheduled for Sunday, December 2, at 3 p.m. and Monday, December 3, at 8 p.m.Tickets are available at the Playhouse Theatre box office and online at the Playhouse Theatre website.

MEMPHIS—I'm going to interview Matthew Edwards on Local 97, but when I had a chance to talk with him, the only time I could, because the he doesn't like to be interrupted... I couldn't talk to him until I had a chance to talk with him, and then I had a chance to talk with him, and then I had a chance to talk with him, and then I had a chance to talk with him, and then I had a chance to talk with him, and then I had a chance to talk with him.

I learned about statistics at the survey, and I have never seen such a good explanation to explain a statistic as to explain it.

For example, before writing my first book, I had Mattie's protest, but Mattie probably doesn't have a good book, but I had a book about my journalism, but Mattie can't read.

When I talk to my parents about my degree doesn't mean anything.

The Presidential Election is long over, but the college students who cast their votes are still deciding what can be done to bring about change at Penn. Whether it's through local government, the University or the legal system, students are organizing to solicit community support.

The election poll was unique in that it involved representatives from all departments. The poll was conducted by the University's Legal Defense Fund, which continues to fight for the rights of those who have been denied equal treatment.

One of the most common questions on the poll was about the success of the poll. The poll was conducted by the Legal Defense Fund, which continues to fight for the rights of those who have been denied equal treatment.
