Increase in Student Costs Seen as Early Guideline

By CAROL HUTCHISON

The hypothetical increase in tuition for the spring semester was discussed at a meeting of the Board of Governors Wednesday in the University auditorium. The meeting was conducted by President Robert G. Smith.

The university's budget for the fiscal year 1978-79 is $64 million, with a projected deficit of $1 million. The proposed guidelines for the tuition increase are $1,000 for the spring semester and $1,500 for the fall semester.

The students have been informed that the tuition increase will be based on the cost of living. The university has not yet decided on the exact amount of the increase, but it is expected to range between 5 and 10 percent.

The students union is expected to release a statement regarding the proposed tuition increase in the near future.

Many students expressed concern about the proposed tuition increase, stating that it would make higher education unaffordable for many students.

The university president stated that the proposed increase is necessary to cover the rising costs of education, including increased salaries for faculty and staff, and the cost of maintaining the university's facilities.

The students union is currently discussing the proposed increase and will make a decision on the matter in the near future.

The university is committed to providing quality education at an affordable cost. The proposed increase is a necessary step to ensure the continued success of the university.

Student Costs Hike

Outside observers will be asked to watch for a $4 million increase in the budget for the next fiscal year. Strauss noted that the increase was not large enough to cover all the costs involved in budget cuts, so the university would have to find additional sources of funding to cover the remainder of the costs.

In addition, Strauss commented that the university was trying to achieve the budget cuts by reducing administrative responsibilities. The university would reduce administrative responsibilities in order to reduce overall costs. He cited University housing, where responsibility for housing maintenance was split between the Vice-Provost McFate's office, as one example of administrative responsibility in order to achieve the budget cuts.

Meyerson said that the university was trying to think through a number of redistributions in administrative responsibility in order to achieve the budget cuts. He said University Housing, where responsibility for housing maintenance was split between the Vice-Provost McFate's office and the university's research component, was one example of a redistribution of administrative responsibility in order to reduce costs.

Fewer Grants

The university would receive a $14.5 million allocation from the Commonwealth, increasing the University's $17.7 million allocation from the Commonwealth. The preliminary budget includes an expected "outlet" increase of about $600,000 in University's allocations from the state of Pennsylvania, Strauss said.

However, with a predicted state tax increase, legislators might look at reducing the $14.5 million allocation from the Commonwealth. Strauss noted the number of research proposals submitted to the federal government by the University must make up the difference from unrestricted income. Strauss said "we're not projecting" that the University would receive $12 million—$14 million a year from such a thing is conceivable. Strauss continued, because the lost overhead recovery income has been permanently withheld.

Letters to the Editor

Don't Let Bigotry Go Unchallenged

I am a sophomore at the University of Pennsylvania, and as a student I find it disturbing that the University's Board of Trustees is attempting to reduce the funding for the School of Allied Health Professions (SAMP) by 45%. This is not only a personal concern, but it goes against the University's mission to provide a liberal education for all students, regardless of their background.

The SAMP program is crucial for students from underrepresented backgrounds, especially those from minority communities. The program provides opportunities for students to explore potential careers in healthcare, and it has been a valuable resource for students who may not have had access to these opportunities otherwise.

I urge the University to reconsider its decision and maintain the funding for the SAMP program. This is not just a matter of financial support, but it is also about ensuring that all students have equal opportunities to explore and pursue their interests.

S.A.M.P. Reviewing the Review

By Eugene Michaels

SAMP is a liberal education program that is unique to Penn and brings together students from diverse backgrounds to study health professions. The program has received relatively little attention, and it has been criticized for being too focused on the needs of minority students. However, it is important to recognize that SAMP is a valuable resource for all students, regardless of their background.

The University administration has proposed to reduce funding for SAMP by 45%, which has sparked outrage among students and alumni. The administration's decision is based on a report from the President's Task Force on SAMP, which was formed in response to a funding crisis in the program.

However, the report's findings were not comprehensive, and the administration's decision is based on incomplete information. The University administration needs to be transparent and open to feedback from students and alumni before making any final decisions.

I urge the University to consider the concerns of students and alumni and to maintain the funding for SAMP. This program is crucial for providing a liberal education to students from diverse backgrounds.

The Academic Side of Religion

To the Editor:

The discussion of religion on the University campus has been a subject of much debate in recent years. However, there is a need for a more comprehensive understanding of the role of religion in the academic setting.

Religion has played a significant role in shaping the academic landscape, and it continues to be relevant in today's world. The study of religion is not only important for understanding cultural and social phenomena, but it also has implications for ethical and moral decision-making.

The University administration needs to be more proactive in fostering a diverse and inclusive environment that embraces the rich diversity of religious beliefs on campus. This includes providing opportunities for students to explore and engage with different religions, as well as promoting interfaith dialogue and understanding.

I urge the University administration to provide a more comprehensive and inclusive approach to the study of religion on campus. This will help to create a more welcoming and inclusive academic environment for all students.

The Jefferson Option

By Ronald Dagavarian

The Jefferson Option was a unique program at the University of Pennsylvania that offered students the opportunity to pursue interdisciplinary studies. However, the program has faced criticism due to its funding and the University's decision to discontinue it.

The Jefferson Option was a valuable resource for students who were interested in interdisciplinary studies, and it has provided a valuable opportunity for students to explore different fields of study.

I urge the University administration to reconsider its decision and provide funding for the Jefferson Option. This program is crucial for providing a liberal education to students from diverse backgrounds.

The parents' fear that their undergraduate school with the SAMP program toward undergraduate student places to universities throughout the nation have been at Penn for a long time, and they have found the "academic study of religion" to be "confused." The intellectual content of the SAMP program has been questioned, and it has been suggested that the program may not be adequately representing the diversity of religious beliefs on campus.

I urge the University administration to provide a more comprehensive and inclusive approach to the study of religion on campus. This will help to create a more welcoming and inclusive academic environment for all students.
Activities Council Awards Money, Opposes Decision Against SAMP

By JOEL SIEGEL

Covering the first time in a number of the Activities Council meetings, the resolution opposing the recent decision by the School of Allied Medical Professions (SAMP) to phase out the School, was made by a representative of the University community. The resolution urged the Trustees to reverse the administration’s proposal to phase out the School.

According to the resolution, the proposed change would eliminate 1,100 people from the lower Quad to the concert, but unlike last year, the concert would be limited to University students. The only way anyone would be able to see the show will be with a valid student ID. The concert, members of the organizing committee noted, is to be held on the University campus in violation of the administration’s proposed regulations.

In addition to the activities council, the entire meeting was held at the University campus in violation of the administration’s proposed regulations.

Highlighting the allocations was a $2,000 grant to the Spring Fling Committee for their upcoming festival in the Quadrangle. The allocation, organizers for Spring Fling were authorized to spend up to $1,000 to book a musical group to perform in the lower Quad the final evening of the festival. The allocation marks an overwhelming increase from last year’s Spring Fling budget, $9,611 to University Television (UTV) for technical improvements in their sound system and other operating expenses.

Officials Formulate Nursing Site Change

BY STEVEN A. MAKUZ
University health affairs administrators are preparing a proposal for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) to allow the Nursing School to move into the Tri-Institutional Nurses Building.

“We are in the final stages of preparing the proposal,” stated, in the Vice-President for Health Affairs. “We don’t anticipate any problem of approval.”

The building, located near 36th and Hamilton Walk, was opened in 1973, under agreement among the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania (HUP), Children’s Hospital and Philadelphia General Hospital (PGH), to house the three nursing programs.

A decision of the University in 1974 discontinuing HUP’s nursing program, with the final class graduating in spring 1978. In addition, the city has announced its plans to close PGH, and most of Children’s Hospital’s nursing program had been moved into the main hospital building, according to Executive Assistant to the Vice-President for Health Affairs Thomas Hardy.

The big building will not be used for the diploma programs anymore, Hardy continued.

The Nursing School, Hardy said, will not be able to occupy the entire space in the building so proposals are being written to identify other health-education departments in the University that could move into the remaining space.

WHY TECH HIFI'S PRICES ARE LOWER THAN OTHER STORES:

We get a better deal, you get a lower price.

People are always asking us, "How can you afford to offer such low prices and still have such strong guarantees?" The answer is surprisingly simple. Of all the places you can buy hi-fi, only Tech Hifi has the combined purchasing power of fifty-four stores stores. We buy in such large volume, that we get a better deal from the manufacturers. Which means you get a better deal when you buy from us (we actually guarantee you the lowest price in writing).

In addition to our unbelievably low prices and fourteen important satisfaction guarantees, Tech Hifi offers the kind of knowledgeable, personal sort of service that's important when you shop for hi-fi - because a low price on the wrong music system or component is no bargain.

Great systems at the guaranteed lowest prices in the area.

Just one of a number of component systems on sale at Tech Hifi this week features accurate, wideband, almost 25 low-priced Advent speakers, a state-of-the-art Technics stereo receiver and the totally-revamped B&O 2021 series turntable, all for just $499. If you find this system selling for a lower price anywhere else in the area within seven days of purchase, we'll gladly refund the difference.

Let's not forget the Advent 2W electronic calculator with large easy-to-read numerals, fraction capability, 12 memory registers, automatic power-off, and as low a price of only $30.00, we'll gladly refund the difference.

Duplicate receipts received at the time of purchase are good for replacement of goods within 90 days of purchase and for a 10% store credit for future purchases.

The TI-1650.

This year, Tech Hifi is offering a top portable calculator with large easy-to-read numerals, fraction capability, 12 memory registers, automatic power-off, and as low a price of only $30.00. When you come in to Tech Hifi to look for that calculator, or any other of our ultra-picked recommended systems priced between $300 and $2,000, be sure to ask us about our convenient LAYAWAY PLAN. A small deposit will hold those systems, or any product in the store, until Christmas.

news in brief

Before Sound Guard, the only way to protect your records from wearing out was not to play them.

The villain behind this destruction is friction. If a diamond cuts through steel, you can imagine what a diamond stylus does to vinyl records. Fortunately, from outer space has come a solution to record degradation. It’s called Sound Guard®—a by-product of research into dry lubricants for aerospace applications, Sound Guard record preservative puts a microscopically-thin layer on records to protect the grooves from damage. Yet, remarkably, it does not degrade fidelity.

Independent tests show that Sound Guard® preservative maintains full audibility, even at the same time significantly retarding increases in surface noise and harmonic distortion. In other words, when applied according to instructions, a new record treated with Sound Guard® and played 100 times sounds the same as one in “mint” condition played the first time!

Sound Guard® preservative comes in a kit complete with non-aerosol pump treatment, a new record preservative that is effective for all discs, and effective for all discs, even records that have been previously treated with Sound Guard®. Independent tests have shown that Sound Guard® preservative is now available in audio and record outlets.

For complete test results write Sound Guard, Box 600, Muncie, Indiana 47352.

Sound Guard keeps your good sounds sounding good.

Buckley Law

Buckley Law, the major reform measure of the 1976 Federal Elections Act, was signed into law Thursday by President Gerald R. Ford. The law curtails the role that corporations, unions, and other groups play in financing federal elections. It also imposes new reporting requirements for political contributions.

The new law, which Ford described as "a prudence, soundness" measure, incorporates provisions of the "National Reform Act," a proposal drafted by a bipartisan group of senators and representatives. The legislation is designed to reduce the influence of special interests in federal elections.

The key provisions of Buckley Law include:

- A ban on federal officeholders and candidates from soliciting or accepting campaign contributions from corporations, unions, or foreign nationals.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $1,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $10,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $50,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $100,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $200,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $400,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $800,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $1,600,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $3,200,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $6,400,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $12,800,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $25,600,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $51,200,000 per election.
- A ban on corporations, unions, and other groups from making contributions to federal candidates in excess of $102,400,000 per election.

The law also includes provisions that require political committees to disclose the sources of their contributions and to report the names and addresses of contributors who give more than $5,000.

The legislation was supported by a broad coalition of reform groups, including the League of Women Voters, the National Association of Black Socialists, and the American Civil Liberties Union.

President Ford, in signing the bill, said, "I believe this legislation will help make our political system more responsive to the concerns of the American people."
New Chairman Of SCUE Plans Improvements

By GERI SPERLING

Machaver, the newly elected chairman of the Student Committee on Undergraduate Education (SCUE), said this week that SCUE will serve in the upcoming year as a forum for the exchange of information and as a means of addressing student concerns. She said the group is committed to improving the educational functions of the University and to encouraging students to participate in decision making.

Machaver was elected to replace outgoing chairman Peter Kary, who also serves as SCUE’s general board on November 14.

Machaver said her plan to continue the policy of open forum meetings with SCUE officers and the SCUE general board will be to “involve the student body so that students will be informed of the decision-making process of the organization in having a say in the SCUE’s administrative board.

To increase SCUE’s effectiveness in the University community, Machaver said the organization should provide a means by which students can communicate their desires to the authorities of major requirements.

One of her major goals for SCUE in the upcoming year, she continued, will be to “increase communication between students and the University’s educational programs, to involve the student body so that students will be informed of the decision-making process of the organization in having a say in the SCUE’s administrative board.

Machaver said she would like to establish a practical advising system from a “consumer’s point of view.” She explained that if students are aware of the academic resources available to them, “I’d like to really get the freshmen and transfer students into helping the orientation and give them information on what’s a seniors who depart,” she continued.

Machaver added, “I’ve heard students say that they would like to have a system where they can go and talk to people who know them and what departments.

Machaver also said her goal is to rework academic requirements to include a pass-no credit option and to promote consideration of SCUE’s administrative board.

Machaver added, “I’ve heard students say that they would like to have a system where they can go and talk to people who know them and what departments.

Machaver said another of her goals is to establish a practical advising system from a “consumer’s point of view.” She explained that if students are aware of the academic resources available to them, “I’d like to really get the freshmen and transfer students into helping the orientation and give them information on what’s a seniors who depart,” she continued.
