Grad Hospital Workers Hold Rally
Pressing for Speedy Unionization

By JOAN CRECO
Approximately 150 Graduate Hospital workers, including maintenance and service personnel, marched in front of Warden's House in protest of the hospital's failure to negotiate a union contract.

"There is a need for us to have a voice in the decisions that affect our lives," said Nick DiMaggio, a member of the hospital's maintenance staff.

The hospital administration has refused to negotiate with the workers, citing a lack of funds. The workers have been without a contract for over a year.

"We are not asking for anything unusual," said DiMaggio. "We just want the opportunity to be heard and to have some input into the decisions that affect our lives."

The rally was organized by the Graduate Hospital Workers Union, which represents maintenance and service personnel.

"We are not going to give up," said DiMaggio. "We are going to keep fighting until we get what we deserve."

Dance Troupe Demonstration

Those who visit the Donald Price Theater this afternoon will have an advance peek at the performance by "To the Body," a subissue of the body" by modern dancers, according to Minneapolis Dance Theater, director and co-founder of Minneapolis Dance Theater, a multi-media dance company.

Flintcliff and Fellow co-founder Brigitte Herrmann will present a lecture-demonstration called "Dance Here and Now," of her school's work.

Kathleen牌子 has been performing and directing for four years in Lancaster, Pa., since he feels comfortable with the role as he has an "affinity for old people" in the Beckett lecture.

Fischbeck hopes that students will be encouraged by the inter-demonstration to participate in the dance programs offered by the University.

"Everyone should participate in dance to some extent," he said. "Dance is a form of communication through the body. If as such, should be taught to everyone just as verbal language is, from the very beginning."

Singer Kay Carney Gives Musical Revue

By PAUL J. DUNN

Most people consider "love" to be the fascinating book and television dramatization based on the Black American's search for his African heritage. However, "love" is the subject of Kay Carney's musical revue which opened last weekend at the University of Pennsylvania. The show was sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania and the African American Association.

The show was a prime example of the off-Broadway movement created, according to Carney, "to share with others the sorrows and pleasures of life." The two-hour show includes music, dance, and spoken word.

The show opens at 8:00 PM and 11:00 PM. Tickets are $1.50 and are available at the box office.

Art Exhibits

Women's Cultural Trust Galleries: Pennsylvania's Early American Dancing

"18th Century" is an exhibition of paintings, prints, and drawings by women artists in Pennsylvania. The show opens at 8:00 PM and runs through March 6.

Community Affairs

On Thursday, March 3, a film series will be held at the University. The films, which are open to the public, are sponsored by the University of Pennsylvania. The show opens at 8:00 PM and runs through March 6.

The prospect of growing old may be depressing to some, but for Kay Carney, it is a reality. Carney, who teaches at the University, feels comfortable with the role as she has an "affinity for old people" in the Beckett lecture.

Fischbeck hopes that students will be encouraged by the inter-demonstration to participate in the dance programs offered by the University.

"Everyone should participate in dance to some extent," he said. "Dance is a form of communication through the body. If as such, should be taught to everyone just as verbal language is, from the very beginning."

The audience will be able to observe and perhaps participate in the choreographic and improvisational techniques that are taught.

Panel discussion, research presentations and a short play or lecture on dance and health will be held.

Laser Music

This Friday evening, Penn Union Council will present a laser music spectacle in Irvine Auditorium. The music and light production will be shown at 8:00 PM and 11:00 PM. Tickets are $1.50 and are available at the box office.
Choosing Alternatives to University Housing

By Mark Parter

Now that Decision Day is over, many students have distributed in Residential Alternatives to University Housing. The University is providing additional on-campus and off-campus housing. New students are particularly attracted. Last year, 600,000 University students attended.

that decision and moved off campus, and the number is likely to be the same. Because of student dissatisfaction with University housing and the perceived benefit of saving money on their rent, many students choose off-campus apartments in the University. However, some students are willing to keep on-campus housing.

In fact, West Philadelphia, with South Philadelphia, is in the process of finding an alternative. The University is providing additional on-campus and off-campus housing. New students are particularly interested. Last year, 600,000 University students attended.

COAST GUARD BOARD A SOVIET VESSEL-The U.S. Coast Guard yesterday boarded two Russian fish trawlers suspected of violating a new law banning unlicensed ships from fishing within 200 miles of the U.S. mainland. The vessel violations were committed by the Soviet vessel, which had caught fish not off-limits to U.S. vessels, according to a spokesman for the Center. However, both ships were in the same building where the disease was being investigated.

Hospital Demonstration

(Continued from page 1) "The demonstrations are occurring at a crucial time," Nicholas said. "in order that we may have a demonstration of the strength of the United States against anti-union forces." Nicholas said that the demonstrations are being held in union centers in the school's clinics.

Another reason Nicholas cited for the demonstration was the presence of non-union health care workers. "The demonstration also served to demonstrate the strength of the United States against anti-union forces," Nicholas said.

Funding

(Continued from page 1) The demonstration was also argued to prevent "a vicious anti-union campaign," by the administration, Nicholas said. "The university has a right to self determination," Stayton said, "but the hospital has a right to exist and disappear employees from the hospital."

Career Day

Carrick's Hat Trick Drops Tigers, 7-3

BY ANDY BOBBY

PROVIDENCE, R.I. — It took a while for the Quakers to wake up on Friday night at Baker Field. But once they did, they exploded en route to a five second period goal in a span of 57 seconds that was enough to lift Penn to a 7-3 victory over Princeton.

In the first quarter, the Quakers could do no wrong as they outshot Princeton 14-4 and held a 2-0 lead. But in the second, Princeton broke through and got on the board when John Kilburn took a pass from Trevor Kibler and beat Penn goalie Mark Cullity giving the Tigers a 1-0 lead.

Ten minutes later, Penn's Tony Price would break the scoreless tie and give the Quakers a 1-1 tie heading into the second period. The game would then continue as a stalemate with both teams refusing to give ground until it was all over.

In the second, the Quakers would outshoot Princeton 12-7 and the third the Tigers would outshoot the Quakers 11-8, but it was too little too late.

Penn goalie Mark Cullity was outstanding in goal on Friday night, recording his second straight shutout. He finished the game with 38 saves.

In the third, Princeton would cut the lead to 2-1 on a goal by Tony Price, but the Quakers would counter with a goal by Tom Whitehead to give them a 3-1 lead.

In the final minutes of the game, Princeton would add two more goals, but the Quakers would add two more of their own to give them a 7-3 victory.

The Quakers, who are now 12-9 on the season, will next play on Sunday night at Cornell. Princeton, who is now 11-10 on the season, will play Columbia on Sunday night.

In the first period, the Quakers would outshoot Princeton 6-4 and have the best chance at the goal when Princeton goalie Mark Cullity stopped a few shots on goal.

In the second period, the Quakers would outshoot Princeton 10-7 and have the best chance at the goal when Princeton goalie Mark Cullity stopped a few shots on goal.

In the final minutes of the game, Princeton would add two more goals, but the Quakers would add two more of their own to give them a 7-3 victory.

The Quakers, who are now 12-9 on the season, will next play on Sunday night at Cornell. Princeton, who is now 11-10 on the season, will play Columbia on Sunday night.
