Shultz Ordered File Search, FBI Official

By BERNARD SCHLABBER

A Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) official of the Justice Department today reported that Bill Shultz had taken the FBI to court to block the release of a file, which the Justice Department had been given in a court order or a discovery proceeding which contained evidence that Shultz had engaged in serious criminal conduct.

The Justice Department had previously concluded that Shultz had engaged in serious criminal conduct.

But Shultz has not been charged with a crime.

The Justice Department's conclusion was based on information obtained in the course of an investigation which revealed that Shultz had been involved in a series of illegal business transactions in the United States and abroad.

The FBI had been investigating Shultz for a number of years.

Federal appeals court judges have ruled that the Justice Department could block the release of evidence in a criminal investigation.

But Shultz has not been charged with a crime.

A lot of U.P. students come to Villanova University. (They come for the summer.)

Each year, students from nearly 200 different colleges and universities spend part of their summer at Villanova University, attending one or more of three different sessions, taking one or more of over 400 different courses, in one or more of over 20 different disciplines. For the summer of '77, Villanova will sponsor three sessions:

June 1 thru June 29
June 30 thru August 4
June 1 thru August 1

REGISTRATION BEGINS MARCH 28

The outstanding selection of courses is held on Villa nova's green suburban campus, is offered both day and evening, is coeducational, is available to both residential and commuting students (transportation right on the campus), and to both graduates and undergraduates.

Come, spend the summer with us.

Barefoot in Fairmount Park

By ELLIOTT TUCKER

Lacot Walk is nudged. The quaker magnolia trees are in full bloom. And the mud has vanished. Despite the recent downpours, spring has arrived. Spring equinox at the University is often coupled with a slight blip of depression - that nagging rhetorical question, "Why do I have to pick a city school?" It forever persists. If you have been struck with spring depression, don't despair. One short visit to Philadelphia's Fairmount Park is sure to cure your malady. The park is surrounded by a Japanese garden complete with oriental plants, perhaps you'd enjoy the park's Japanese Exhibit House. Learning About Security Deposits

By Joseph T. Mordovcan

According to the Pennsylvania Fair Housing Commission, any security deposit paid by a tenant is for the landlord's use in the event the tenant breaks the terms of the lease. A landlord may not make any security deposit back from his last tenant without giving the tenant a receipt and explaining the reasons for the return.

ANSWER: A tenant is entitled to a receipt for any security deposit, whether it is paid in cash, check, or money order. The landlord is required to give the tenant a receipt and display the proceeds for the tenant's use in accordance with the law. The landlord must also provide the tenant with a written statement of the security deposit charged.

Electrician by profession, Mordovcan worked for the Philadelphia Bar from 1968 to 1971, during which time he was at the Legal Aid Society of Philadelphia. He is a member of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, the Pennsylvania Trial Lawyers Association, and the American Bar Association. He is also a member of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

In response to the anonymous letter, in the 25 years of handling security deposits, the author has found that tenants are often not aware of their rights or options under the law. He believes that tenants should be informed of their rights and options under the law, and that tenants should be encouraged to exercise their rights and options under the law.

The author is a member of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, the Pennsylvania Trial Lawyers Association, and the American Bar Association. He is also a member of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals and the National Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Defending the Election

By Ellen Ginsburg

As a student at the University of Pennsylvania, I was involved in the election process in a variety of ways. I was a member of the University’s Student Government, and I volunteered to help with the voting process.

On the morning of the election, I went to vote at the campus library and found a crowd of students waiting in line. The line was long, but everyone seemed excited to vote.

Several weeks ago I went to see a concert at the Spectrum. A man was standing in front of me and asked if I was interested in buying drugs. I said no, and he walked away. I was relieved that I had not been approached.

POLL REPORT: A recent Daily Pennsylvanian poll indicated that the percentage of students who voted was lower than in previous elections. The author attributes this to apathy among students, and believes that more efforts should be made to encourage students to vote.

I was walking down 34th Street last week when a group of students approached me and asked if I was interested in buying drugs. I said no, and they walked away. I was relieved that I had not been approached.

In conclusion, I believe that more efforts should be made to encourage students to vote, and that more resources should be devoted to voter education. I hope that the next election will be a success.

The执教 man crushed law, partially retired, with gloves in hand, and a grin in his eye when he was talking about the new kid at Penn. Hollenback as Rick Krieger, catcher and outfielder, may be a common event on the fields of the West Philly, but even the most partial follower of the Quakers, or any of the other Ivy League teams, has never heard of Hollenback before.

The New Jersey native played with a grin on his face all of last season, and he's still playing with the same glee this season. He's not a flashy player, but he's a solid one who can hit, run, and field. Hollenback has a good batting average and a good on-base percentage, and he's one of the better fielders in the Ivy League.

As for his future, Hollenback is looking forward to the rest of the season and the challenges that lie ahead. He's excited about the opportunity to play at a high level and hopes to continue his success with the Quakers for the rest of the season.

"The games I'll remember most are the Army game my sophomore year," said Chris Zinkham, the Quaker captain. "It was a tough one, but we ended up winning. The team was really working together and we were ready to do our best."

"But we also have some good ones this year," he added. "The game against Princeton was great, and we also beat Cornell."

"But the big game is coming up against Yale," he said. "We're really looking forward to that."
