Local Groups Back Quotas During Rally

By SUSAN ELMAN

Members of WHUR, WHMU, and WHMC, all part of the University of California at Los Angeles, held an informal discussion last Tuesday to determine how to react to the University's decision on QUOTA. The decision to phase out racial quotas is a response to the Supreme Court's ruling last week that upheld the University's admissions policies.

The Supreme Court ruled that the University's admissions policies, including its use of racial quotas, were constitutional. The University's decision was based on the court's ruling and is expected to have an impact on the University's admissions policies in the future.

The rally was held in the Student Center and was attended by several members of the University community, including students, faculty, and staff. They expressed their support for the University's decision and their commitment to its mission.

Faculty Senate's Tenure Decision Will Determine Fate of Proposal

By JACOB GREEN

The Faculty Senate will make a decision on the future of the University's tenure system, which has been a topic of contention for several years. The Senate will take into account input from the University community, including students, faculty, and staff, as it makes its decision.

The University's tenure system has been criticized by some as being too lenient, while others argue that it is too strict. The Senate's decision will have a significant impact on the University's ability to attract and retain top faculty members.

Communications Study Cites Poor Promotion Of University's Assets

By JESSICA MARGULIES

A recent study of the University's communications efforts has found that the University is not effectively promoting its assets, including its programs, faculty, and research. The study recommends several strategies to improve the University's communications efforts.

Work-Study Is Cleared Through HEW Review

By RICHARD E. GORDON

The University's work-study program has been cleared by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW), which had been reviewing the program since last year. The program, which provides financial assistance to students in exchange for work, has been praised by many as an effective way to support students and improve the University's finances.

Philly's Destruction Brings Joy to Alumnus O'Malley

By CAROL HUTCHINSON

Kerry O'Malley, a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, returned to his alma mater last Saturday to attend a football game. O'Malley, who is now a successful businessman, was liner to return to the University and support his alma mater.

The University's football team has been struggling in recent years, but O'Malley's return was seen as a boost for the team and the University. O'Malley's visit also brought attention to the University's efforts to improve its athletics programs and facilities.

Leland's Latest

By ALBERT LEE

Leland's, a popular University bookstore, has announced that it will be closing its doors at the end of the semester. The store, located in the Student Center, has been a fixture of the University community for many years.

The closure is due to financial difficulties, and the University has announced that it will be working to find a new location for the store. The University is committed to maintaining its commitment to student success and ensuring that students have access to the resources they need to succeed.
Rally for Racial Quotas

Raymond Molez, a member of the University’s Latin Law Student Association, said, "These need to rise for the last 10 years. That is the all-affirmative action programs. Unless you have affirmative action programs you won’t have enough people in your action programs.

The protesters also voiced concern that the black student will be affected all affirmative action programs, not just those which minorities are.

Many of the minority students informed in the protest said that they hope to go to graduate schools and in some cases post-graduate schools. And some of them might not be picking the most qualified people if they are those that are needed.

I was back for the All-Star game was one of the few time the story is past.

RUSSIAN PURCHASE OF L.S.D. PROMPTED U.S. ARMY TESTS—Reports last week that the Soviet Union had bought 15 million pills of L.S.D. from U.S. laboratories which were obtained under the Freedom of Information Act by attorneys for an ex-soldier interrogated with L.S.D., indicated that Soviet interest in the drug prompted the Army intelligence board and chemical laboratory to begin experiments in 1955.

Reports of an official, who prompted the Army intelligence board and chemical laboratory to begin experiments in 1955.

U.S. Army tests with the drug, documents disclosed Sunday. The documents, which were obtained under the Freedom of Information Act by attorneys for an ex-soldier interrogated with L.S.D., indicated that Soviet interest in the drug prompted the Army intelligence board and chemical laboratory to begin experiments in 1955.

According to the newspaper, such large federal deposits were rare or nonexistent in Georgia banks. The deposits were first reported by the Long Island newspaper on Oct. 11, 1977.

The Man Who Walks To Work

By Dave Lieber

Washington Post

Japan is one of the few countries in the world where pedestrians have the right of way. In fact, the traffic police often stand by and watch as drivers patiently yield to pedestrians. This is a culture where walking is valued and considered a form of transportation.

Walking is not only a way to get around, but it also has many health benefits. It can improve cardiovascular health, decrease the risk of obesity, and even reduce the risk of certain types of cancer.

In Japan, walking is not just a mode of transportation, but also a social activity. Many people enjoy walking with friends, family, or even alone to enjoy the scenery and fresh air.

Despite these benefits, walking is not always an easy task in Japan. The country is known for its hilly terrain and often crowded sidewalks. However, these challenges do not deter the Japanese people from walking.

In conclusion, walking is an important mode of transportation in Japan, and it offers many health benefits. It is a way of life that is deeply ingrained in the culture and is enjoyed by many people.

The Daily Pennsylvanian

It is quite possible that the Los Angeles Lakers will win the NBA title fromtotal collapse. Can you imagine the pressures that could have transpired but for the Phils and the Phillies fans expect?

The Lakers have been favorites for the NBA title ever since the season started. With a roster full of stars, including Kobe Bryant and Shaquille O'Neal, they have been the team to beat. However, the road to the title has not been easy.

The Lakers have faced some tough opponents, including the Boston Celtics and the San Antonio Spurs. But they have managed to come out on top each time.

In the end, it will come down to who can handle the pressure. The Lakers have the talent and experience to win it all, but they will need to stay focused and avoid any distractions.

Tiger Runners Break Spell

CINDY HENRY

Ten years is a long time, especially in sports. Ten years ago, when Princeton led the Ivy League in football, one could hardly find a soul in the nation who didn't think the Tigers deserved the championship. Johnner Ormby led the 1972 team in scoring, and the defense was bolstered by Lawrence "Lance" Koschke and Bob "the Bear" Sweeney.

But those were the Tiger years, and as we look back, the 1982 team is the one to remember. Now, in 1992, the Middies are back, and they have the potential to be something special. The team has a solid defense, with Steve Dickstein and Mark Farnham leading the way. The offense is strong, with Steve Wener and Mark Halpin.
