Lingering Stain of Harold McGrath

By Dave Lieber

The cartoon on the DP editorial page today is one of the most insightful pieces of lag and logic in which I've ever engaged. It is being waged by a cab called "Downtown" which is dwarfed by the plants in human form, two of which are N.Y. City officials, and one is a cab. The entire print, which is titled "The Daily Pennsylvanian," is crying out, "Please, please, please, let's just get along."

Would the DP have allowed a commentary such as this to be published under the auspices of the University Fraternity Affairs Office? Not if I have anything to say about it, which I do, totally totally.

The university recently conducted a campus survey and revealed that 10 percent of the student population had going on at the time of the inquiry. This percentage is significantly lower than the national average of 8 percent.

Furthermore, the university released a statement saying that they were committed to making the campus a safer place for all students.

In conclusion, it is imperative that we continue to prioritize safety and well-being on campus.

Letters to the Editor

A Sense of Outrage at Journalistic Irresponsibility

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the recent article in the Daily Pennsylvanian regarding the McGrath incident. As a long-time member of the University community, I believe it is important to address the issues presented with respect and sensitivity.

Regarding the McGrath case, the university has taken appropriate measures to ensure the safety and well-being of all members of the community. It is crucial that we support these efforts and work together to create a welcoming and safe environment.

Sincerely,

A Concerned Member of the University Community

Academia and Liberal Guilt in Timidity

The recent article in the Daily Pennsylvanian discussing the McGrath incident highlights the need for a broader and more nuanced understanding of responsibility in academia.

It is crucial that we recognize the interplay of power and privilege at play in academic settings. This includes understanding how biases and social norms may influence research and decision-making processes.

Furthermore, it is essential to acknowledge the role of institutional structures and norms in shaping the behavior of individuals within academic institutions.

In conclusion, it is imperative that we continue to prioritize transparency and accountability in academic settings. This requires us to be mindful of our biases and work towards creating a more inclusive and equitable environment for all members of the community.

Sincerely,

A Member of the University Community
Surviving Siamese Twin

Remains in Critical State

By MARK SELTZER

An infant who survived an operation last week separating her from her twin was described as "critical but stable" Monday by doctors at Children's Hospital of Philadelphia.
The twin, born on September 15, was conjoined from just below the collar bone to the stomach and shared a single heart. Only three other Siamese twins sharing a heart have ever survived the separation.

"According to Karen Duffy, an official of the Children's Hospital of Philadelphia, two Siamese twins sharing a heart have been recorded in medical history and, according to Everett Koop, a noted authority in conjoined twins in a four-hour operation last Tuesday, Chief Surgeon of the Children's Hospital. The frosh seemed to be learning something when they opened the game with a 14-0 lead. Naturally, Ed Schaeffer, a freshman quarterback, made the mistakes that are expected of a frosh quarterback. But the frosh offense did manage a few points in the first half. However, the frosh offense did manage to keep the ball in the game.

The Leopards opener was a 3-1 losing effort to the Quakers in Franklin Field. The Quakers made the biggest of the young season.

Speeding Midshipmen

BY JOHN EBERHARD
The Daily Press Staff
Annapolis, MD—From the very first whistle, the Speeding Midshipmen raced on all over the field and played with immeasurable enthusiasm. Yale's coach, Mr. Brown, was particularly impressed by the team's performance. He noted that the Midshipmen had stolen the game from the Elis in the first half, only to have Princeton come back in the second half and take it away from them.

In the first half, Yale's defense was formidable, preventing Princeton from scoring. Yale's goalie, Mr. Hunt, was a force to be reckoned with, blocking shots with ease. Yale's forward, Mr. Eckert, showed great skill in his play, scoring two goals for the team. Princeton's coach, Mr. Gamble, was disappointed with his team's lack of effort in the first half. He said, "We didn't come out with enough fire in our eyes. Yale was on fire, and we couldn't keep up." But in the second half, Princeton fought back, scoring two goals to tie the game. The final score was 2-2, and the game was declared a draw.

Harriers Balance Drowns Bulldogs

BY BECKY DIAMOND
Perhaps the lack of confidence in the Penn community was never really there. It was just a lingering in Tim Tipsimer's persona. This weekend, in several weeks there has been a difference in the way the Harriers have played. Against Princeton, both teams were neck and neck before the half. At halftime, the Harriers had a 2-0 lead, and they were clearly the better team. The Harriers maintained their lead throughout the game, and Princeton couldn't do anything but watch as they lost.

Quaker Oats

PROFESSOR PAUL BARTLETT was quoted in the article as saying, "The Quaker Oats team is a strong team this year. They have a lot of experience and are really working hard to improve their game." The team is expected to do well this season.
