Rape an Act of Violence, Not Sex, City Prosecutor Tells Audience

By JENNIE MARIE STEIN

The most important thing for women to remember is that "rapes a crime of violence, not sex," a rape specialist with the Philadelphia District Attorney said Thursday.

Speaking before a group of 35, William Hyman, rape prosecution coordinator for the district attorney's office and a former University of Pennsylvania professor who most rapists are "more concerned with compelling the woman to perform oral sex than with rape," Hyman said.

"They say the rape was the act of violence, not the sex," he added.

Furthermore, Hyman said that the greatest concern for rape victims is the prejudice they are often subjected to. Women who report rape may face the prejudice of "men who may have an agenda to get back at their ex," he said.

"If you're a woman, you're going to be questioned if you're not a woman, you're going to be questioned if you're not a woman," Hyman said.

The University of Philadelphia's request is not sure whether the two dollar damage fee from the security deposit is the only amount the University would receive.

Hyman said that the greatest concern for rape victims is the prejudice they are often subjected to. Women who report rape may face the prejudice of "men who may have an agenda to get back at their ex," he said.

"If you're a woman, you're going to be questioned if you're not a woman, you're going to be questioned if you're not a woman," Hyman said.

The University of Pennsylvania's request is not sure whether the two dollar damage fee from the security deposit is the only amount the University would receive.

Hyman said that the greatest concern for rape victims is the prejudice they are often subjected to. Women who report rape may face the prejudice of "men who may have an agenda to get back at their ex," he said.

"If you're a woman, you're going to be questioned if you're not a woman, you're going to be questioned if you're not a woman," Hyman said.

The University of Pennsylvania's request is not sure whether the two dollar damage fee from the security deposit is the only amount the University would receive.

Hyman said that the greatest concern for rape victims is the prejudice they are often subjected to. Women who report rape may face the prejudice of "men who may have an agenda to get back at their ex," he said.

"If you're a woman, you're going to be questioned if you're not a woman, you're going to be questioned if you're not a woman," Hyman said.
Friday, November 11, 1977

Teamsters, U. To Meet

(Continued from page 1)

Officially, no decision had been reached on the Teamsters' request for an NLRB investigation of the workers' charges. The union has vowed to organize picketing efforts against the University's state appropriation until the workers are rehired.

Local 115 President John Morris said Thursday he would press for the housekeepers' rights at the meetings. "We feel we're making inroads," he added.

Executive Director of Personnel Gerald Robinson and Director of Labor Relations George Budd were unavailable for comment Thursday evening.

The panel's recommendations are incorporated into a statewide figure by HEW which then submits a request for all states, in turn, to Congress. Congress has in the past allocated only a percentage of the HEW funding request, thus causing individual states to lose a percentage of HEW money. However, the workers are expected to be released by the end of the month.

The panel's recommendations are be available to the public in the fall of next year.

"We must decide if we're going to do away with this process," Williar said.

The panel's recommendation is expected to be released by the end of the month.

Public Service Employees Union Local 115 President John Morris said Thursday he would press for the housekeepers' rights at the meetings. "We feel we're making inroads," he added.

The panel's recommendations are incorporated into a statewide figure by HEW which then submits a request for all states, in turn, to Congress. Congress has in the past allocated only a percentage of the HEW funding request, thus causing individual states to lose a percentage of HEW money. However, the workers are expected to be released by the end of the month.

The panel's recommendations are be available to the public in the fall of next year.

"We must decide if we're going to do away with this process," Williar said.

The panel's recommendation is expected to be released by the end of the month.

Financial Aid Request

(Continued from page 1)

been processed and subjected to the panel's consideration," Williar said. The panel's recommendation is expected to be released by the end of the month.

The panel's recommendations are incorporated into a statewide figure by HEW which then submits a request for all states, in turn, to Congress. Congress has in the past allocated only a percentage of the HEW funding request, thus causing individual states to lose a percentage of HEW money. However, the workers are expected to be released by the end of the month.

The panel's recommendations are be available to the public in the fall of next year.

"We must decide if we're going to do away with this process," Williar said.

The panel's recommendation is expected to be released by the end of the month.

SAMBATYON PRESENTS:

SHABBAT DINNER

Don't eat alone this Shabbat. We provide Free Challah & Wine. Meet at 6:15. Lower Lobby Stouffer

SHABBAT SERVICES

Creative Readings, Traditional Prayers & Songs. Oneg Shabbat (Challah, Cake) Afterwards. 8:00. 3rd Floor Hillel

Sambatyon Is Liberal /Reform Jewish Students

No One Is Cheaper

REPRODUCTIONS

We offer All reproduction services and the lowest prices on campus

Self Service Xerox (50¢ per copy)

Black & white Xerox

Color Xerox

offset printing (resumes, wedding, etc)

Come In For A Refreshing Drink

Replica I

(these xerox centers)

3736 Walnut St. 386-3200

Replica II

226 S. 40th St. 386-4500

Replica IV

243-7391

"An Unbelievable Dance Experience" Sat. Nov. 12

9 P.M.

Music By Ford

Dining Out

Brunch $1.00

Come And Boogie

At last count he was in charge of 114 mice, 137 frogs and 240, uh...480 rabbits.

spends spare time in library analyzing stitching on medical books.

There's no need to worry about Mel's purchase of Lite Beer. He has several friends who help him pay for it. Can't afford to get caught up.

Everything you always wanted in a beer. And less.

EARN $60-PER MONTH

DONATE BLOOD PLASMA

• Simple Convenient • Profitable

 Earn Weekly Income While You Study or Relax

Consultant Location

Flexible, Comfortable Facilities

INTERSTATE BLOOD BANK

3503 N. BROAD ST.

(215)228-2343

Mel Practiss

Pre-med Student

Lite Beer from Miller. Everything you always wanted in a beer. And less.

POOR RICHARD'S RECORD

In Proud To Announce The Arrival Of

THE 1977 YEARBOOK

SEE IT NOW!!

Come To The Yearbook Office---3611 Locust Walk

Or The University Of Pennsylvania Bookstore

DINING OUT THIS WEEKEND?

We Are Serving Fine Food At

Affordable Prices.

Dinner Served 5-10 P.M. Daily

At

4002 Chestnut St
By Jonathan Powell

Most people don’t believe that there is a single, all-encompassing reason for why they do the things they do. In fact, most people believe that there are many different reasons for why they do the things they do. This belief is based on the idea that people are not just one person but are instead a collection of different selves. These selves can be seen as the different roles that people play in their lives. For example, a person might have a self that is a good parent, a self that is a good friend, and a self that is a good employee. Each of these selves has its own set of values and beliefs, and these values and beliefs can conflict with each other. For example, a person might value being a good parent but also value being a good friend. This conflict can lead to a sense of guilt or unease, and the person might feel like they are not doing what is right for themselves or for their family. This is why it is important to understand the different selves that people have and to try to reconcile these selves in order to live a more fulfilling life.

By Lamenting the Realities of Late Modernity

The late 20th century was a period of great change and transformation. The invention of the Internet and other technologies, the rise of globalization, and the decline of traditional industries all contributed to a new way of life. This new way of life was characterized by a growing emphasis on individualism and self-expression. People began to see themselves as unique and special, and they began to pursue their own goals and aspirations. This shift towards individualism led to a new way of thinking about the world and about other people. Instead of seeing people as members of society or as part of a larger whole, people began to see others as individuals with their own unique personalities and experiences. This change in thinking had a profound impact on the way people interacted with each other and on the way society was organized.

By Transforming the University into a Tool for Social Change

The University of Pennsylvania has long been a leader in the field of higher education. The university has a long history of providing opportunities for students to learn and grow. The university has also been a leader in the field of social change, using its resources and its students to make a difference in the world. This commitment to social change has led to a number of initiatives and programs that have had a positive impact on the local community and on the world as a whole. For example, the university has a strong commitment to diversity and inclusion, and it has put in place a number of programs to support students from underrepresented backgrounds. The university also has a strong commitment to environmental sustainability, and it has put in place a number of initiatives to reduce its carbon footprint and to promote sustainability on campus.

By Engaging with the Community

The University of Pennsylvania has a long history of engaging with the local community. The university has a strong commitment to community service and to creating positive change in the community. The university has a number of programs and initiatives that are designed to engage with the community and to make a positive impact. For example, the university has a strong commitment to community service learning, and it has put in place a number of programs to support students in community service projects. The university also has a strong commitment to community-based research, and it has put in place a number of initiatives to support research that is grounded in the community. These initiatives have had a positive impact on the local community and on the university itself.

By Navigating the Complexities of Higher Education

Higher education is a complex and challenging field. The field is characterized by a number of different stakeholders, including students, faculty, administrators, and the community. These stakeholders have different interests and priorities, and these interests and priorities can conflict with each other. This conflict can lead to a sense of frustration and unease, and the stakeholders might feel like they are not doing what is right for themselves or for the university. This is why it is important to understand the different stakeholders in higher education and to try to reconcile these stakeholders in order to navigate the complexities of the field.

By Embracing the Challenges of the Digital Age

The digital age is a time of great change and transformation. The invention of the Internet and other technologies has led to a new way of life and a new way of thinking. People have become more connected to each other and to the world, and they have access to a wealth of information and resources. This change has led to a number of challenges, including the need to develop new skills and the need to adapt to new ways of working. These challenges have led to a need for innovation and for new approaches to education. This is why it is important to embrace the challenges of the digital age and to develop new approaches to education that are designed to meet the needs of the digital age.

By Advocating for Social Justice

The University of Pennsylvania has a long history of advocating for social justice. The university has a strong commitment to social justice and to creating positive change in the world. The university has a number of programs and initiatives that are designed to support social justice efforts. For example, the university has a strong commitment to diversity and inclusion, and it has put in place a number of programs to support students from underrepresented backgrounds. The university also has a strong commitment to environmental sustainability, and it has put in place a number of initiatives to reduce its carbon footprint and to promote sustainability on campus.

By Embracing the Challenges of Globalization

Globalization is a time of great change and transformation. The invention of the Internet and other technologies has led to a new way of life and a new way of thinking. People have become more connected to each other and to the world, and they have access to a wealth of information and resources. This change has led to a number of challenges, including the need to develop new skills and the need to adapt to new ways of working. These challenges have led to a need for innovation and for new approaches to education. This is why it is important to embrace the challenges of globalization and to develop new approaches to education that are designed to meet the needs of a global society.

By Navigating the Complexities of Higher Education

Higher education is a complex and challenging field. The field is characterized by a number of different stakeholders, including students, faculty, administrators, and the community. These stakeholders have different interests and priorities, and these interests and priorities can conflict with each other. This conflict can lead to a sense of frustration and unease, and the stakeholders might feel like they are not doing what is right for themselves or for the university. This is why it is important to understand the different stakeholders in higher education and to try to reconcile these stakeholders in order to navigate the complexities of the field.

By Engaging with the Community

The University of Pennsylvania has a long history of engaging with the local community. The university has a strong commitment to community service and to creating positive change in the community. The university has a number of programs and initiatives that are designed to engage with the community and to make a positive impact. For example, the university has a strong commitment to community service learning, and it has put in place a number of programs to support students in community service projects. The university also has a strong commitment to community-based research, and it has put in place a number of initiatives to support research that is grounded in the community. These initiatives have had a positive impact on the local community and on the university itself.

By Navigating the Complexities of Globalization

Globalization is a time of great change and transformation. The invention of the Internet and other technologies has led to a new way of life and a new way of thinking. People have become more connected to each other and to the world, and they have access to a wealth of information and resources. This change has led to a number of challenges, including the need to develop new skills and the need to adapt to new ways of working. These challenges have led to a need for innovation and for new approaches to education. This is why it is important to embrace the challenges of globalization and to develop new approaches to education that are designed to meet the needs of a global society.

By Embracing the Challenges of the Digital Age

The digital age is a time of great change and transformation. The invention of the Internet and other technologies has led to a new way of life and a new way of thinking. People have become more connected to each other and to the world, and they have access to a wealth of information and resources. This change has led to a number of challenges, including the need to develop new skills and the need to adapt to new ways of working. These challenges have led to a need for innovation and for new approaches to education. This is why it is important to embrace the challenges of the digital age and to develop new approaches to education that are designed to meet the needs of the digital age.

By Advocating for Social Justice

The University of Pennsylvania has a long history of advocating for social justice. The university has a strong commitment to social justice and to creating positive change in the world. The university has a number of programs and initiatives that are designed to support social justice efforts. For example, the university has a strong commitment to diversity and inclusion, and it has put in place a number of programs to support students from underrepresented backgrounds. The university also has a strong commitment to environmental sustainability, and it has put in place a number of initiatives to reduce its carbon footprint and to promote sustainability on campus.
Parents Weekend Begins; 1000 Expected To Visit U.

Friday, November 11, 1977

Parents Weekend Begins; concurrently, will hold a seminar in Room 110 of the Nursing Education Building led by Assistant Dean Diane McClenahan. Joseph Burke, executive dean of the Engineering School, will open the event at 8:15 P.M. in Alumni Hall of the Science Building while the Wharton School, concurrently, will hold six seminars in Vance Hall.

Families are invited to attend the Penn-Chatham soccer game tonight at 1:30 P.M. or a University Symphony concert at 8:15 P.M. or a University Symphony concert at 8:15 P.M. which emphasizes practical applications of the course material.

Ed. 360 Human Development (Dr. Sutton-Smith) T, TH, 10:30-12:00
Ed. 570 Language Planning and Public Policy (Heath) T, TH, 10:30-12:00
Ed. 664 Early Childhood Education Strategies For Assessing Young Children and Evaluating Early Childhood Education Programs (Any Interested Students Should Contact The Instructor, Dr. Goldberg) Ed. 672 Ethnographic Methodology: Community to Classroom (Heath) Th, 4:30-6:30
Ed. 714 College and University Law (Beckham) W, 4:30-6:30
Ed. 815 Cultural Perspectives on Human Development (Wagner) T, TH, 12:00-2:00

For further information contact GSE Admissions Office, 243-6455.

GRADUATE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION
Announces New Courses For:
SPRING 1978

WANTED: PENN WOMEN!
All Those Interested In Learning An Exciting Sport—
Women's Lacrosse Meeting—
NOV. 14th
6:30 P.M.
Weightman Hall South
We Want Beginners!

The Daily Pennsylvanian
By MARK POSNER

Philadelphia
Pennsylvania 19104

Copyright 1977 the Daily Pennsylvanian
No食用無人

PENN WOMEN!
Visit our Center
For further information contact GSE Admissions Office, 243-6455.
Coaches Question Timing (Continued from page 4)

more "a great opportunity," he said. "We're happy for Chuck to return and be a positive influence on the team, for what's left of the season."

Penn Athletic Director Alfred Fenders said the adoption of current assistant coach Bob Weinhauer as head coach "removes a cloud from the has been an able assistant to Coach Daly (since 1973) and has established a team record with 78 set to succeed in the head coaching role. But Weinhauer has previously expressed his desire to remain in the assistant coaching ranks. "I've been very happy to be an assistant," he said. "I enjoy working with the players and helping them improve their skills."

The Daly Era

(During the season,) remembered Fenders. "But during the off-season, he loosens up a lot."

Weinhauer, after a couple of days they'll just go about their business."

Fenders agreed, adding "The kids will be in shock for a while, but under Weinhauer, a lot of the pressure will be lifted from the program. We have to keep the errors down and keep the mistakes in check."

Weinhauer to succeed Daly was praised by most coaches. "Things will go much better (with Weinhauer) than if they brought in a flamboyant guy with radically different ideas," said one coach. "We need someone who can mesh with our system and at least keep the team together."

"We have to keep the errors down. A lot of people are worried about the drill sergeant image," informed one coach. "But Weinhauer is a lot more relaxed and open to suggestions."

"We have to keep the errors down. A lot of people are really worried about his (Daly's) voice-a lot of remorse." And finally we hit the Swami jackpot by calling the San Fernando Valley and speaking with him."

When the shock wore off the players began assessing the situation-what they knew beforehand, but most of us were still came as a surprise. A few guys mouths simultaneously dropped to the floor."

"There was a lot of sadness in the air," said men Cozza nor Harvard's Joe Restic approaches the game in a new way. "When he embarrassed the Quakers weeks before, he'll have to do it again."
Chuck Daly Resigns Basketball Post

Accepts Sixer Job

By LOREN FELOMAN

El Computer Editor

Yesterday at a surprise press conference, Philadelphia 76ers' general manager Bob Weinhauer announced that 6-6, 6-6 Chuck Daly, a 41-year-old native of Detroit, will be the 76ers' coach for the 1977-78 season.

"Chuck Daly's departure," announced Weinhauer, "is a personal decision on his part. Daly has been a valuable asset to the organization in the last two years. He is confident in his ability to handle the responsibilities of the head coaching position.

"Daly, who has been with the 76ers since 1975, has been the assistant coach for the last two seasons. He is well-versed in the team's offensive and defensive strategies. Daly has been instrumental in the team's success in recent years."

Daly, who is the son of former Detroit Red Wings' head coach Red Daly, has been an assistant coach for the 76ers for the past two seasons. He was the assistant coach for the 76ers' championship team in 1976.

"Chuck is a great asset to the organization," said Weinhauer. "He has been with the 76ers for the past two seasons and has been instrumental in the team's success. He is a very organized and hard-working individual."

"While Daly is a valuable asset to the organization, we believe that it is time for him to take on a new challenge," said Weinhauer. "We have decided to offer him the head coaching position with the 76ers. He has expressed interest in the position and we believe that he is the perfect choice for the job."