Tuition May Rise By $375; $25 More Than Expected

By ROBERT DUBOW

The University library has a 1978 volume collection of rare books ranging from a compilation of Armistead's works published in 1810 to books published as recently as last year.

Various criteria are used to determine whether a book is rare, according to assistant director of special collections Linda Hilty. "The most common reasons for books to be rare are a small edition and a high demand for that book," she said. Other criteria include high demand for that book, the possibility of the book being the first edition of a book, and the book's color.

By STEVE DUBROW

This plan is part of a longer-term plan at the University to make the collection more accessible to the public.

By ERIC JACOBS

As a result of the University's move to expand the collection, the library has made it more accessible to the public.

Leaving Saigon Behind

By Doan Tho Kim Thoa

The second part of the column on the close of the Vietnam War will appear tomorrow.

Exactly ten years ago this time, hundreds of thousands of Americans, both citizens and soldiers alike, were dying in Vietnam. In the past few years, fighting for a long-forgotten cause, the lives of our young men were wasted. The war ended, and we are happy now that it is over. Yet, I still feel that the war ended without us ever getting to the bottom of it. Even now, the war is still going on. Through the end of the war, many Americans were going through a hard time. Many Americans were going through a hard time, and their families were just as much a part of the war as they were.

Leaving Saigon Behind

By Bob Kendrick

Three seconds before the 11:00 PM deadline on Thursday, President Ford announced in the Rose Garden that he would not request a renewal of special military legislation for the United States military presence in Vietnam.

Boye Kendrick

The word “Vietnam” is a term used to describe a war, a place, and a people. The war lasted for over two decades, and it affected millions of lives. The war ended in 1975, but its effects are still felt today.

Leaving Saigon Behind

By Elliot Kaplan

Get the latest updates on the war from the front lines. Every day the news is changing, and the crisis is growing. There is a war going on in Saigon, but it is not the war we have been used to hearing about. In Saigon, there is no war, just a lot of people who are too busy doing their own thing to pay attention.

Quite An Embarrassing Display

We are concerned about the manner in which the Pennsylvania Political Union (PPI) sponsored a David Davidi speech. As a Pennsylvania resident, it seems odd that the PPI would sponsor such an event.

Pen’s Landing

As the saying goes, “the pen is mightier than the sword.” Our government has made many decisions, and we need to be able to voice our opinions on these decisions.

Cianfrani

Cianfrani had been a State Senator from South Philadelphia since 1966, and before that he served in the State House of Representatives for four terms.

Cianfrani was probably the most influential legislator in the state. He headed the important Senate Appropriations Committee, and was known as a power-vending, bachelor procedure-doctor in Harrisburg. The issue was a major cause of the 1966 Democratic revolt against the old guard.

The first hour-and-a-half of the defense presented at Cianfrani's lawyer Nicholas Sanfilippo paraded the defendant. You guessed it. an anxious pre-med raised his hand and asked whether he was responsible for knowing that.

Fencers' Edges Razor-Sharp in 21-6 Annihilation of Lacula
daisiens

By MIKE O'WELL

The Quakers' Saber team kept their unbeaten dual record intact for the season. After narrowly losing to Temple and Boston in the first two meets, the Quakers defeated the visiting Pennsylvanian's saber team, 21-6, at Sheerr Pool. The Quakers' foil team also defeated the Temple team 13-9. The only serious mishap was the absence of Marwell and Sohn by violation of the NCAA's stringent policies. The saber team has a possibility of an interesting season. The foil team will try to go all the way with the saber team. Meanwhile, the shoddy point-making habits of the Pennsylvanian's saber team will continue to haunt them.

Deliberate Leopards Top Women

By STEVE PETERS

Boasting the nation's longest winning streak, the Delaware women's basketball team has set a standard for excellence. This season, the Leopards have demonstrated their ability to withstand pressure, refusing to get complacent with the victory gap. The team's consistent performance has earned them the title of the most deserving of the top rankings.

Run and Gun Falls Short as Deliberate Leopards Top Women

In a match-up of contrasting styles, the Delaware women's basketball team's deliberate, possession-based approach clashed with the previously undefeated Delaware University team's high-scoring, fast-paced offense. The Leopards' defensive strategy was unable to contain the Blue Hens' scoring prowess, as Delaware University won 87-70.
