Regan To Resign As Trustees Chairman

By STEVE DUBOW

The resignation of Trustees Chairman Donald Regan was announced at the meeting of the Executive Board of Trustees Thursday.

Regan will officially step down from his post as of March 1 and will not be a candidate for re-election. His resignation was accepted by the Board.

The Trustees, who selected Harris, announced by President Martin Meyerson, after the resignation of Regan, was unable to attend the meeting, and was unavailable for comment.

Regan has been a member of the Board of Trustees for nearly four years, and was re-elected by the Board of Trustees Chairman Donald Regan (center), flanked by Trustee Henry Chance (left) and President Martin Meyerson (right), has decided to resign the position he has held for nearly four years. A successor for Regan has not yet been selected.

X Marks Failures on Transcript

By CRAIG KELLY

As many as one in four students at the University have failed to receive the grades they expected on their transcripts.

According to a study by the Registrar's Office, 25 percent of all transcripts have at least one grade that is lower than expected.

The study found that the most common grades that were lower than expected were A's, B's, and C's.

Bunker Speech Supports Treaty

The late Senator Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) was last year's commencement speaker. Chief Justice Warren Burger spoke in 1976, and former President Gerald Ford in 1975.

In an address directed to the graduates and the nation, Senator Humphrey maintained that the Panama Canal treaty calls for the gradual withdrawal of U.S. forces from Panama in thirty years, but suddenly I haven't thought about the Panama Canal in weeks, he said. "It is a good sign. We haven't pleased one side or the other, and we have to realize that the treaty is not ratified, we will end up with something that will not change with a more favorable selection of untouchable approaches.

There has been some evidence that the Panamanians, like the Americans, are not overwhelmingly for or against the treaty. The United States is not determined to support the treaty, the chairman of the country opposed it in the full election. Humphrey, it will win and lose. It is impossible to please this a good sign. "We haven't pleased one side or the other," he said. The objective of both sides indicates that this is indeed a good treaty which strikes the necessary balances.

Only His Office Remains

By Richard E. Gordon

Elevon months ago, Room 71 of the Franklin Building housed the University's Department of Security.

At the time, the office was a center of activity. In the waiting room, student detectives were answering the telephone, the fax machine, and the guardhouse. In a small room off the waiting area, the University's security chief conducted private sessions with students.

The real center of activity was right here. Dr. David McGuff, the head of the department, was on the phone with students.

The first part of this column appeared in yesterday's issue. Today, I want to continue the discussion of the recent evacuation of Saigon.

On April 29, 1975, the day of the evacuation of the Vietnamese government, the University's cityuiten sent a message to the University's Vietnamese students. The message stated that the University would provide them with a place to study and a place to stay.

Unfortunately, all the CIA men that I have met seemed to be born without a sense of shame.

Because the costs of both energy and maintenance are expected to rise several chillers that are now wearing out, the University would have had to spend almost $600,000 to replace several chillers that are now wearing out, said Fagin. Now said. The net cost of the new work will therefore amount to $18 million, or $30 million minus $12 million.

The Energy Office estimates that the entire project could be put into operation by July 1979. Because the costs of both energy and maintenance are expected to rise continously, the Energy Office estimates that the savings produced by the new chillers will pay for themselves and more within nine years.

Department Chairman Robert Began said, "Placement in an alumni aid office in New Brunswick, N.J. "I'm not sure if he really called me." It is not possible to erase an X on a transcript. Began said he could not remember any case in which an X was accidentally put as an A. "It is impossible to change our policy to put the application in the mailbox," he said. "For the year after graduation, you're not going to law school or medical school." In fact, the difficulty of dealing with the problem was summed up by Troy Taylor, the undergraduate petty.

When asked for her decision whether to keep the A or change it to an X, "I honestly replied, "It's hard.""

Pong made Wednesday night. This was a casual match, but they both faced serious opponents. Coach Janet Cantwell felt her squad was not as well against Yale, Piven said, because they had several problems that wasn't "bogging" the team. "It's best because the men are more experienced, it's just that they've already had it.

The male tumblers (34), only in their second year as a team, had four seniors who have been consistently winners in their respective categories.

The women usually share the top or two spots in most of the six events that constitute a meet, the team hasn't had the depth to change over to many different individuals in their personal score.

"We've lost lots of people to all kinds of problems," lamented Seidel, "and now there are only seven spots for a team that isn't even good enough to win consistently in a sport which allows 16 personal scores in meets in each of its six events. The Quakers have a balance score, so it's not simply because they lack the personnel. Conversely, though most of the Quakers are excellent gymnasts, they have been less experienced.

Against the Ivy's last two dual meet opponents this season, the Quakers are 2-3. With two victories over the weekend, the squad can now turn its attention to intra-squad matches.

LOOK MA, NO FEET—Quaker gymnast Clay Widmann demonstrates his skills on the parallel bars against Trenton State earlier this season. The sophomore from Alpha to Omega, from the beginning to the end. We ought always to pray and not faint!" Luke 18:1.

Cagers Fight Green, Crimson, Flu

By JOSEPH LAMMER

When the Penn (14-7, 5-5) and Harvard (14-8, 5-5) basketball teams played in Philadelphia on Saturday, the weather was described as "cold, windy, and rainy," commented Kevin McHale, a senior forward for the Crimson. "It was a good day to catch the flu, with a catch up with a few of the local health authorities." McClellan was right. First-year player Mike Thompson scored a game-high 22 points, and second-year player Tony Price contributed 15 points and 10 rebounds as the Quakers won, 78-73.

After the game, McClellan was asked about the weather conditions. "I don't know if I would call it a cold, windy, and rainy day," he said. "I think it was just cold."

The Harvard victory brings the Crimson's record to 11-10, 3-7 in the Ivy League. The Quakers drop to 10-10, 4-6. This was the first time in the season that Harvard has won back-to-back games.

Streaking Pucksters Obstacle to Crimson and Green Playoff Hopes

By MICK LENNON

Just as the Crimson and Green are beginning to think they have a chance at the ECAC playoffs, they have to face a stiff competition in the form of the Northeastern Huskies.

The Huskies, who are currently sixth in the ECAC, have won three of their last four games. Harvard's most daunting challenge in the ECAC will be to play against Northeastern. The Crimson has played well against the Huskies in the past, but Harvard has never won in their first meeting.

Saturday: at Harvard

The Crimson (17-2, 11-2) faces the Huskies (10-9, 6-6) today. The Crimson has won the last three meetings between the two teams, 77-60, 83-77, and 83-78.

Thinclad Jump at Chance to Flop

By DICK STEVENSON

Whether to bet on Flop, to bet on Jumper or whether to bet on Jumper and Flop, the market is alive with opportunities this week.

For the Quaker jumpers, who have been in top form this year, the market is wide open. The Quaker jumpers have won three of their last five races, and are currently ranked second in the Ivy League.

Quaker Oats

It seems like there's a need to redesign. First, KENNETH MCCLELLAN was late for practice because he was stuck in traffic. Then he went to practice and was late because he couldn't find his car. Finally, he went to practice and was late because he couldn't find his coach.

It was a busy day for the Quaker basketball team. The Crimson and Green were scheduled to play against the Northeastern Huskies, but the game was postponed because of bad weather. The Quakers then had to rush to prepare for an important practice session.

The team was not happy with the delay. "We don't need any more delays," said one player. "We're already behind in our schedule."
