Students Fight Requirement On Languages

By DOMINIC

The Student Senate's Academic Action Committee (AAC) and the editors of Student Committee have expressed a desire to abolish the Faculty of Arts and Sciences' language requirement.

The language requirement mandates that all students take one to four courses in a foreign language, depending on the student's preparation, unless the student can demonstrate a mastery of a language.

The AAC has expressed that it has long been one of the most hated FAS prerequisites. Leonard Gundre, chairman, of the AAC, said Tuesday 'we plan to solicit faculty and student support for eliminating this requirement, which is asinine and none of the language requirement is required.' "If, by that, I mean the facts, the best condition is that it has been a requirement in the past." Beryl D'Alliolet, editor of the course guide, agreed. "We don't think there's a valid reason for the language requirement in the way it's being run."

The AAC felt the language requirement is too simplistic to different cultures. "Students can be introduced to other cultures through other methods," D'Alliolet said. "In fulfilling FAS's language requirement, we must be sure that it is served with a purpose. English, more than any other language, can be taught to students of different cultures."

D'Alliolet outlined his case against the language requirement: "The AAC feels the current system is too perfunctory. Students are not required to take to many courses in a single language. Even students of different languages, especially many students, especially in the pre-major and major-related courses. We're asking them to take one foreign language that will be mandatory."

"We're asking them to take more than one foreign language. Students are not capable of graduating without the knowledge of a second language," D'Alliolet continued. "We are saying that they cannot be graduate graduates without the knowledge of a second language."

D'Alliolet also felt that the language requirement did not provide students with the necessary knowledge to graduate with a second foreign language. "We're not providing them with the necessary background to graduate with a second foreign language," he said. "We're not giving them the necessary knowledge to graduate with a second foreign language."

"We're asking for a language requirement that is required. This is because of our belief that it is helpful to students, not just for their education but for their future careers," D'Alliolet said. Free Thought and the Bakke Brief

Recently, the University of Pennsylvania in conjunction with a number of other schools presented a preposterous argument to the American people. The argument is that because the University is a member of the Ivy League, it should be free to do as it pleases without any need for a balance between the student population and the student body. The argument is that because the University is a member of the Ivy League, it should be free to do as it pleases without any need for a balance between the student population and the student body. This argument is not only wrong, but it is also detrimental to the future of higher education.

A Need for Equilibrium
By Elizabeth Sanger

Three years ago when I was applying to colleges, I was considering applying to Penn. I had heard that the University of Pennsylvania was the school for me, and I was eager to be involved in all sorts of activities. I was interested in being involved in student government, and I wanted to be a part of the political scene. I also wanted to be involved in community service, and I wanted to be involved in the arts. I was looking for a school that would provide me with a good education, and I wanted to be able to participate in all sorts of activities. I was considering applying to Penn because I was interested in being a part of the political scene, and I wanted to be involved in community service.

QUESTION: What is a security deposit? Is there an equivalent of two months rent? And can it be protested?

Caveat Emptor

The term of the lease is measured by the time it takes to complete the painting of the walls and the cleaning of the rooms. The tenant must move in within the first month of the lease, and must return the security deposit if the landlord considers the security deposit to be too high. The landlord may request that the tenant make repairs to the property, and the tenant must make those repairs if the landlord makes that request.

The tenant should be aware that the landlord will probably ask for the first month’s rent as a deposit, and that a tenant’s right to use the security deposit only lasts three years. If the tenant has not received the security deposit back within three years, the tenant should file a lawsuit against the landlord to recover the security deposit.

It is fairly easy to protect the security deposit. The notice to be sent to the landlord should contain three names. A notice to comply with the landlord’s forwarding address, and a request for an inspection of the premises. The notice should be mailed several days before the request is made in order to allow the landlord to meet the requirements.

A Question of Politics

It seems that a distinction between political activism and social action needs to be clarified for the Student Activist. Finance Committee. In fact, the definition for the former was provided in the guidelines which the Finance Committee distributed Monday night when they distributed them.

These guidelines define "political" as dealing with political parties, candidates, or legislation. Under the Finance Committee's plan, the consumer boycott is considered a social action, even though business practices are involved. The distinction is being made between pressure on Nestle's to produce a non-fat product and pressure on the Finance Committee to change their policy on studentgovernment. The Finance Committee merely acceded to the student government's request to prevent the boycott from going ahead, which is a matter of opinion.

While Stuart Menaker is correct in pointing out that in a society of ideally a second-level bureaucratic operations, DP March 2, I think we will all agree that no matter how high your position is, if you do not have the backing of the Finance Committee, you cannot get anything done. If you are a student and you cannot get the Finance Committee to listen to you, you are not in a position to have your concerns heard. The Finance Committee does not have the power to dictate what goes on at Penn, but it does have the power to prevent you from taking any action.

这种定义将政治活动与政治活动区分开来，前者涉及政治党派、候选人或立法。因此，金融委员会的指南将消费者抵制考虑为社会行动，尽管商业实践被涉及。该区分在于对耐斯食品公司施加压力，以生产低脂产品和对金融委员会要求改变学生政府政策的立场的差异。金融委员会仅仅是听从了学生政府的要求，阻止抵制行为的发生，这是一个观点问题。

An Improper Justification

The University has neither a Department of Industrial Relations nor an Arbitration Board to arbitrate disputes over the hiring of student employees. The only body that has the power to make such decisions is the University's Board of Trustees. In view of the recent hockey decision, I happen to agree with the particular decision of the Board. However, I do not agree that it was made in a proper manner and that the Board should have been more aware of the facts. I feel that their appointment was improper because they were not properly informed of the facts.

The University appoints faculty members, not students, to the Board of Trustees. While students may be involved in the decision-making process, they do not have the same power as faculty members. The Board of Trustees is responsible for making decisions that affect the entire University, not just the student body. Therefore, it is not proper for the Board to make decisions that affect the student body without properly informing them of the facts.

As a result of the tremendous student support of College Hall last weekend, we can make Penn-sylvania a university that is proud of. But for the Undergraduate Assembly and other student representatives to speak for the student body, we need your support. Tell us what you want! Tell your representatives what you want done of Penn Vote in the upcoming U.S. election. Act now.

They Still Need Input

The finance committee should not give the impression of being out of step with a woman by selecting Patricia Harris for the Department of Housing and Urban Development. While it would have been male or white or both, I feel that Harris does have a labyrinthine monstrosity of accomplishment. Penn basketball's season is usually spanned by two games: the first, a road trip to the University of Delaware and the second, the Palestra showdown with Drexel. Pick up a copy of The Daily Pennsylvanian and read the column by Grossman, and you'll more likely than not be reading about the loss at Delaware or the win over Drexel.

Penn's very poor performance in the NCAA Tourney.

Steve Peters

Penn basketball isn't the only sport that has trouble making it to the NCAA Tournament, but it's one of the few that can claim it was the only school in the country to fail to make the NCAA Tournament in consecutive years.

Penn's last appearance was in 1985, when the Quakers were eliminated in the first round by the University of Delaware. Since then, the Quakers have had to rely on other schools to represent the Ivy League in the NCAA Tournament.

Due to the lack of success in the Ivy League, the Quakers have been unable to gain much recognition in the NCAA Tournament.
