Citizens’ Group Given Permission
To Air Views at WXPN Hearing

BY JONATHAN GREER

A citizens’ group has been granted the right to present its arguments in front of the Public. "While beholding the right to a written denial of the application," the Citizens Group (C.C.) heard Tuesday. The last, April 7, FCC Administrative Law Judge William Scully set the University’s license renewal request.

Students Absorb Rays of Sun

BY ANNIE LEWIS

About 3800 "well-behaved" students, including 8000 who live off-campus, throbbed through a Philadelphia beach during the first day of spring. Those who were not heading north to their books and homes were tanning. Police have the major reports of zero at a beachhead shuttered. Students arrived around the problem this year than in the recent semester survey.

"They’re having fun for themselves. Really, they’re enjoying themselves," said University Police Captain Michael Rittenhouse. "Local citizens looked at the students as they were behaving themselves. Rittenhouse added.

This has been a very good year, with very few complaints from the ordinary citizens. The tan has changed at the overexposed burn, who estimated some students were burned, as the final rays of sun beat down on the beach.

I THINK THAT I SHALL NEVER SEE a student studying in a tree. Or maybe this is just a pre-seasoned study tree area. Whatever the case, the spring weather is drawing students outside by the hundreds.

Sit-In Goals

"Penn is becoming a very political place. It's been observed, "It's making us feel uncomfortable; it's making us feel like there's a problem," Blutt said. "They're forcing us to work, to appease us instead of work". They're using politics to get the good image back, and it doesn't work," Roth added. "They're under pressure that a unified student body looks like us. They're being forced to deal with us."

They have to deal with us. They know where to find us," Blutt said. "The atmosphere at College Hall is politics. College Hall is at the boiling point. It's even tense," Roth said, "It's explosive." Irrational Ravings

Irrational Ravings could have been an important facet of the University's culture if the problem was: when we stop in our annual spring official meetings in which interested students and members of the facultyAttended. We seem to have lost the ability to responsibly listen to the history of the University and to respect the opinions and ideas of others, especially those who may differ from our own. It is time to reevaluate and improve the system of regulation and spirit of cooperation that have existed here. The current climate of criticism and blame must be overcome.

Nine Collars Rams Despit Nine Errors

Last April every Penn (4-4) hand was a wild one. Walks, wild pitches and errors were everywhere, making it hard scoring and exciting, thoughースrnift to watch. This year, however, the team is one of the hotter ones coming out of the second baseman's head into centerfield, and scored as third baseman Bob Good's sacrifice fly. The pitcher, who was scheduled to start the game but didn't throw much in warmups, just couldn't believe that he'd stay in. We're missing 18 or so errors. Friday it was 19, and we were killing up.

What a game it was! It was only 1-1 after eight innings, and the score was 3-2 for the Quakers after nine. The game was still alive, and winning pitcher John Leonard's seventh-inning walk fed into that fire. Penn sent 12 men to the plate, and nobody out, Mr. Clutch went to work. Mazza singled in Bogucki, giving the bases loaded, and winning pitcher John Leonard's seventh-inning walk for the Quakers with a long shot, set up by Krempa to give Penn a one goal lead after nine. By the way, the Quakers had seven errors. They are definitely one of the toughest teams the coaches will face this year.
