Elections Are Invalidated
For UA and Senior Class

By ELIZABETH WILSON, KARL LICKFORD AND LARRY PROFFITT

Elections held Wednesday and Thursday for the Undergraduate Athens (UA) and senior class were invalidated by a decision of the Senate Committee on Student Organizations.

The UA Senate committee was established to investigate charges that nominating petitions for candidates in the spring election were forged. The committee concluded that signatures were not genuine and therefore the election was invalid.

Koval said he expected approximately 400 applications for the 500 available summer work-study jobs.

"The estimate of 500 awards marks a slight increase over last year's total of 497. This year's total, however, is down $150,000 from the 1980 level of $300,000 for the second half of the year.

Koval said he expects approximately 360 people to apply for the 300 available jobs in the work-study budget for the 1982-83 year.

Campuses Confront Security Trade-Offs

BY ANNE MARIE STEIN

Before a student was raped in the rooftop lounge of Harrison House two months ago, unlocked doors and free entry to campus residence halls were commonplace. Now, as a result of the rape and the security problems which occurred in the high rises several weeks later, students and administrators have become increasingly aware of the need for more security and the need for added safety measures.

The problem facing administrators is the decision to institute more identification checks, or to lock more buildings, is how far they can go to insure security. Students and administrators have agreed to take measures which will put a damper on traditional college life. Before a student was raped in the rooftop lounge of Harrison House two months ago, unlocked doors and free entry to campus residence halls were commonplace. The New College in the Fall of 1977 had keychecking beefed up to strengthen dorm security. The University Director of Public Safety claimed an extension of keychecking would put a damper on traditional college life.

Feeling the Off-Campus Rhythm

By Steve Dubow

Saturday evening, walking down Locust, I noticed that something was up. In late spring, the thermometer reaches the eighties, and because of the lack of shade, I begin to sweat. I made my way to 38th and Walnut, and turned right onto Locust. The temperature had soared to the nineties.

The letter bore Wilsburg's official UA title, but omitted his name. The letter was published in The Daily Pennsylvanian. The NEC decided that Seide's letter was written in his capacity as a UA member, and, therefore, he is ineligible to run in the other student government elections and the further his campaign. The NEC is an autonomous committee of the UA which handles all student government elections and the nominating of students to University student government elections and the committee of the UA which handles all further his campaign.

The NEC, in effect, forced Sen. Rick M. to complete his campaign, campaign spending, and other matters. It is contained in a new-page ballot to all candidates by the NEC.

Batmen Use Tripicchio for Relief
Quaker Nine Visits Bruins, Elits
By BRY HOFMANN
With John Leonard, the ace of the Quaker nine, out with an injury, Batmen pitcher, sitting of a nosebleed, turned to Brian, who did a great job of filling in for Leonard. The Batmen later expected that Leonard would be back in action soon. The Batmen have always had some original relief pitcher, and in this case, Tripicchio, in the bull pen, has proven himself to be a valuable asset. "Tripicchio has been our most consistent pitcher so far," said Leonard. "He has a great sinker and his control is superb."

Sailors Compete in Preliminaries; Can Clinch Spot in Championships

Spring sports' speeds, largely due to weather conditions, have been slow in the preliminary rounds. The Windsor High School team, however, has been making the most of their time. "We've been training hard and looking forward to this weekend," said captain of the Windsor team. "We're excited to see how we do in the prelims."

The varsity elimination on the Delaware River can provide some insight into the competitiveness developed by the teams. The Quakers, led by Mike Kelly, have shown a great deal of aggression and determination. "We're really united as a team and we're working hard to improve," said Kelly. "We want to make a statement in the prelims and show what we're capable of."
