Administrators Debate Inclusion Of Appropriation in U. Budget

By JOAN GRECO

Administrators are considering whether to include a potential $1.2 million in a budget for the University for the next year.

A bill is now before the Vet School's senate that by $1.2 million for next year has been introduced in the Pennsylvania House as part of a program for Democratic legislators to end state aid to the University.

Pennsylvania Governor Milton Shapp said in a budget address for next year that the Vet School would receive $1.2 million this year, which is $1.2 million less than the school received last year.

It is unclear whether the $1.2 million will be budgeted for the Vet School. Strauss said Friday. Strauss also said that it is unclear whether the money will be budgeted for the school, or if it will be used to fund other programs.

In the past, the University has used state aid to fund its programs, including the Vet School. Strauss said that it is unclear whether state aid will be used to fund the Vet School in the future.

The University has been seeking additional funding from the state to help cover its expenses. Strauss said that the University is exploring ways to increase its revenue, including raising tuition and cutting costs.

News in Brief

Soviet Press Blames Carter on neutron bomb delay... The Associated Press (AP) reported that Russian officials have blamed President Carter for the decision to suspend work on the neutron bomb. The decision was made after Carter's visit to the Soviet Union, where he tried to defuse tension.

Soviet government opponents jailed in Manila... The AP reported that the Twin Towers, a group of housing complexes in Manila, were raided by police. At least 45 people were arrested, including some suspected of planning a coup.

Concrete canoe race... The AP reported that a concrete canoe race was held in the wake of the islands' military conflict in the Gulf War.

Other news includes...

- A new law was confirmed in the University's board of trustees. The law, which aims to prevent the university from moving to Pittsburgh, is expected to be debated in the next few weeks.

- President Carter's message to the Soviet Union was delayed.

- Communist party newspaper Pravda said Sunday that President Jimmy Carter's message to the Soviet Union was delayed.

Gaudiosi Interview

"I would leave," Gaudiosi said. "I do not want to run for mayor. I will run when I feel it is my time."

As part of this attempt to revamp the University’s image, Gaudiosi said he is "trying to interest other newspapers and magazines in the Penn student who have risen above their conditions."

Elections Rescheduled

Kasrel added that NEC members will increase their patrolling of the polling sites, and that they would wear identification.

"There will be absolutely no letters to the editor in the election or in the future," Kasrel added. "After the election, we will lose our comment period."

"We may have to sacrifice turnout in order to win," added Kasrel. "If we lose the election, we will not have another one."

"There will be absolutely no 'letters to the editor' in this election or in the future," Kasrel said.

Kasrel said procedures will be tightened for the upcoming elections. The computer-form ballots will be counted by hand at a later date. The temporary ballots will be approved, but they will not be used.

"There will be absolutely no 'letters to the editor' in this election or in the future," Kasrel said.

Kasrel said the decision on the future of the NEC was based on a "vote of the student body." Kasrel said the decision was made because of a letter which bore his name. Kasrel said the NEC demanded that it be made official in the University to save money by requiring fewer employees to do an adequate job. Morris has thus far not responded to this proposal.

The computer-form ballots will have to be hand counted, but Kasrel said he would leave the matter to the NEC members. Kasrel also said he would leave the election to the NEC members.

The minutes of the Spring Fling Committee indicate that Van Pelt College House has a group of interested students and faculty, but no student members. All other faculty members who have been approached by the committee have given their approval for the students to be chosen by their peers and have been thanked for their participation. The Spring Fling Committee has been chosen by the Van Pelt College House, and the role of student members is voluntary.

Leduc Sailors Beat Navy

By CRAIG STANLEY

The sailor was heir to the sailing throne. Peter Leduc, one of the nation’s top sailers, had passed the baton to his son, Peter II, and the elder Leduc was now looking for a new challenge. That challenge came in the form of the upcoming NROTC Championships, and Leduc was determined to win.

At Annapolis, Maryland, the sailor, in co-opting Phil LeFort and John Bowles, led the sailors to victory in the new division and first in the four races. The sailors defeated the Navy, the other team, in the first race and went on to win the next three.

The win qualified the sailor crew for the Spring Nationals. Last year, Penn had finished third in the after a victory in the third preliminaries.

Leduc also led the team in making the playoffs.

Quaker Varsity Eights Victorious Despite Bad Weather and Vandalism

By SCOTT LEWIS

The men’s lightweight varsity eight crew (3-0) rowed to victory over sister team Princeton in a rowing regatta Saturday at the Schuylkill River. Only the first two schools qualified for the Frosh Spring Nationals.

"It’s a good start to the season," said coach Fred Leonard. "With another year under our belts, we have a definite shot at the national title."

For the American Trophy in May—"the cup the men’s varsity eights will be playing for on Saturday—Penn has won the past two years."

"I’m proud of all the guys in the boat," said team captain Bruce Konopka.

The weather conditions were horrendous, but the men’s varsity eights rowed hard and fast to win the race.

PROVIDENCE, R.I. - Quaker golfers turned in a solid round of 317 in Monday's Monahan Invitational, held at Basket Roughs. This put the Quakers in a tie for third place with Harvard and Dartmouth in the two-day event. The field was cut to 11 teams from 13 after the second round.

The Quakers finished 12 strokes behind Yale, which won the event with a score of 285. Dartmouth was second with a 312. The Red and Blue were one stroke ahead of Brown, which finished with a 313.

The Red and Blue will return to action in a week when Penn's women's team will compete in a tournament at the Yale Golf Club.
