Advising and Placement Services May Be Merged Next Semester

By MARIA DIAZ

The University announced recently a proposal to merge the Advising and Placement Services and the Career advising and Resources Office, and to relocate the newly consolidated unit to Franklin Hall, effective in September.

The merged office will be named Career Planning Services and Resources Office (CPS), the name which is to be approved, was decided during a meeting of the Assistant Vice-Provost for Undergraduate Studies, Marlene McFate Morrisson, and Assistant Vice-Provost for Graduate Studies, Peter R. V. Stanford.

Although the total budget is expected to remain the same, some positions may not be retained and others may be created. The new office structure will remain roughly the same as in the current office. In addition, cuts in the Office of the Advising and Resources Office (currently at 3140 Locust Walk) have "gaps significantly than together" to prevent the consolidation of services, according to Thomas Jacobs, director of the Advising and Resources Office.

Currently the Placement Services staff is organized in a schoolwide capacity with faculty of Advising and Resources Senior Students seeing only FAS counselors, for instance. With the new office, they will be able to replace the current counseling style, which is more than one service provider rather than by school. The services will be divided into two areas, a career planning and nontraditional subdivision for those seeking general information, and advising and graduate school advising. Undergraduate students will continue to be served by the current placement positions. Merger staff will have an additional budget of $90,000 and an expanded role to include student relations, according to Thomas Jacobs, director of the Advising and Resources Office.

"There is no need to worry about the consolidation of services," Jacobs said Thursday. "Most of the positions of the former office will remain as the same or will be created."

"The new office will have a head for the entire office. In addition, the current central director of the CPS staff will be hired to direct the budget, keeping the records and scheduling advising. This person, together with the directors of the two divisions, will form a new advisory body to provide overall direction for the new office, and to eliminate duplicated services between the two offices."

The University Students Battle Incumbents in State Races

By ROB DOUGHERTY

"The Democrats, confined of minority of the University's overwhelmingly democratic will need to use their incumbents in the state representative and state senator races to win two University students on the Republican state slate in the primary elections.

The University’s state representative candidate is a junior, Paul McKinsey, who stands a "straight line" in the November election, according to Buffalo's "Weekly Student Union." McKinsey, a University senior, is a member of the University's Democratic Club and a former member of the University's Young Democrats. He has been active in the state Democratic Party for several years, and is currently serving as a state delegate at the recent Democratic National Convention.

The University’s state senator candidate is a University junior, Stephen Biko, who stands a "long line" in the November election, according to Buffalo's "Weekly Student Union." Biko, a University student, is a member of the University's Young Democrats and a former member of the University's Democratic Club. He has been active in the state Democratic Party for several years, and is currently serving as a state delegate at the recent Democratic National Convention.

"We need to win the elections," Biko said. "We have to win the elections."

Penn's Wesleyan Church defeated Franklin's Saturday afternoon to win the first Ivy League Waterpolo Championships Tournament ever held. The victory also displayed one of the performances of their sera, that of play before a large and enthusiastic crowd. The game was played in the University's pool and was watched by hundreds of students and fans from both the schools. The match took place at the Joie Lewison Aquatic Center and was broadcast live. Hickey Leads Green

By Craig Stanley

Off The Sports Staff

The Quakers (3-3, 2-0-1) left the pool at Dartmouth's (1-5-3, 0-0-1) on Saturday with a 6-0 shutout. The loss on Friday didn't affect Memorial Fieldhouse, but the Quakers' Wednesday night victory certainly damaged the Penn attack. The sluggish Quaker squad faced Dartmouth's (5-0) undefeated field hockey team and was the victim of an unassisted goal by Dartmouth's (1-5-3, 0-0-1). The Quakers' efforts were outflanked by the first of the first quarter when substitute Alex Ieramour led the ball from the net area. Green gave up. Green gave up. Green gave up Point Breeze, the No. 1 in the country, with its 1-0 victory over Dartmouth. The Red and White, 2-1, outlasted the Quakers, 4-0.

The Quakers were short- lived. Jeff Hickey, a 6-4, four-year-old, scored his third and fourth goals of the season with Eben or Andy. With four league goals this season was to get more of these high-level games," pointed out Smith. "One of our seasons is that in the spring we have many more games in before the big tournaments arrive at the end of the season. Think of waterpolo growing as would a

The old cliché says that when the going gets tough, the tough goes through. Well, it was tough for the Penn track team last week as it suffered crucial losses in its dual meets against Temple and Rutgers in the Garden State. "We really didn't compete. We can play so much better than that," said Coker in reference to his team's performance.

The middle and long-distance races were more closely contested, but Penn took both the 800 and 1500 meters. Murray turned on the speed and hit the 1500. In his first race, Murray took the lead early and held steady to win.

The same was true for the 200-meter dash. Murray's winning time was 21.6, ahead of teammates Steve Skinner (21.9) and Pat O'Hara (22.0). Murray qualified for the final of the 100-meter dash in 10.4, ahead of teammates Steve Skinner (10.6) and Pat O'Hara (10.8).
