Record Blizzard Hits Philadelphia
Snowfall Snarls Transient, Traffic

Snowfall Snarls way to the Great Basket of inches of snow on the metropolis. Day Buzzard of 1979 in much the same for a blizzard near zero, fulfilling the requirements 1.71.

unusually high rate of three inches per than one Inch per hour, we got 10 "Rather than 10 hours of snow at less cerns priority streets. It also allows the city to tow vehicles on teredy. Such a proclamation nnllllresulted^s many President's nnllllresulted^s many President's gallery indoor shopping mall, all In major department stores and the

Wharton Economists See Slow U.S. Growth

By JEFFREY R. COLEMAN

The report attributes the slow productivity trends. Schink said "In the late 1960s and early 1970s when it came time to pursue a liberal education, Fleysher decided to communicate. She must have learned "If someone is so good at reporting why aren't they out there doing it instead of teaching?" Fleysher said.

Ellen Fleysher Leaves TV Career

As a student at the university school in the late 1960s, Ellen Fleysher learned to communicate. She must have learned well—she is the ten times closer, through print and electronic media, she has communicated to millions of people. As a reporter for the New York Daily News, a popular reporter for national newspapers, and as the current deputy police commissioner for Public Information of the City of Philadelphia, Fleysher has served as an inspiration to all.

Fleysher learned to communicate and has developed her skills through the years. She has been a reporter, a producer, and a correspondent for WCBS television in New York, and as the current Deputy Police Commissioner for Public Information of the City of Philadelphia, she has worked hard to maintain high standards of excellence in public service.

Fleysher said she is excited about the challenges that lie ahead as she embarks on her new career. "I have learned many lessons from my time at the university, and I believe that the skills I have honed will serve me well in my new role," she said.

Fleysher’s new position will involve a great deal of travel, and she is looking forward to the opportunity to meet and interact with people from all walks of life. "I am eager to explore new opportunities and to learn from the experiences of others," she said.

In conclusion, Ellen Fleysher’s departure is a loss for the university, but her impact on the world will continue to be felt. Her dedication to public service and her commitment to excellence are an inspiration to us all. We wish her all the best as she embarks on her new adventure.

---

Other local news stories are also included in the article, covering topics such as the weather, school closures, and the University of Pennsylvania's response to the blizzard. The article provides a comprehensive overview of the events surrounding the blizzard and its impact on the city.

---

Record Blizzard Hits Philadelphia
Snowfall Snarls Transient, Traffic

Snowfall Snarls way to the Great Basket of inches of snow on the metropolis. Day Buzzard of 1979 in much the same for a blizzard near zero, fulfilling the requirements 1.71.

unusually high rate of three inches per than one Inch per hour, we got 10 "Rather than 10 hours of snow at less cerns priority streets. It also allows the city to tow vehicles on teredy. Such a proclamation nnllllresulted^s many President's gallery indoor shopping mall, all In major department stores and the

Wharton Economists See Slow U.S. Growth

By JEFFREY R. COLEMAN

As a student at the university school in the late 1960s, Ellen Fleysher learned to communicate. She must have learned well—she is the ten times closer, through print and electronic media, she has communicated to millions of people. As a reporter for the New York Daily News, a popular reporter for national newspapers, and as the current deputy police commissioner for Public Information of the City of Philadelphia, Fleysher has served as an inspiration to all.

Fleysher learned to communicate and has developed her skills through the years. She has been a reporter, a producer, and a correspondent for WCBS television in New York, and as the current Deputy Police Commissioner for Public Information of the City of Philadelphia, she has worked hard to maintain high standards of excellence in public service.

Fleysher said she is excited about the challenges that lie ahead as she embarks on her new career. "I have learned many lessons from my time at the university, and I believe that the skills I have honed will serve me well in my new role," she said.

Fleysher’s new position will involve a great deal of travel, and she is looking forward to the opportunity to meet and interact with people from all walks of life. "I am eager to explore new opportunities and to learn from the experiences of others," she said.

In conclusion, Ellen Fleysher’s departure is a loss for the university, but her impact on the world will continue to be felt. Her dedication to public service and her commitment to excellence are an inspiration to us all. We wish her all the best as she embarks on her new adventure.

---

Other local news stories are also included in the article, covering topics such as the weather, school closures, and the University of Pennsylvania’s response to the blizzard. The article provides a comprehensive overview of the events surrounding the blizzard and its impact on the city.

---

Record Blizzard Hits Philadelphia
Snowfall Snarls Transient, Traffic

Snowfall Snarls way to the Great Basket of inches of snow on the metropolis. Day Buzzard of 1979 in much the same for a blizzard near zero, fulfilling the requirements 1.71.

unusually high rate of three inches per than one Inch per hour, we got 10 "Rather than 10 hours of snow at less cerns priority streets. It also allows the city to tow vehicles on teredy. Such a proclamation nnllllresulted^s many President's gallery indoor shopping mall, all In major department stores and the

Wharton Economists See Slow U.S. Growth

By JEFFREY R. COLEMAN

As a student at the university school in the late 1960s, Ellen Fleysher learned to communicate. She must have learned well—she is the ten times closer, through print and electronic media, she has communicated to millions of people. As a reporter for the New York Daily News, a popular reporter for national newspapers, and as the current deputy police commissioner for Public Information of the City of Philadelphia, Fleysher has served as an inspiration to all.

Fleysher learned to communicate and has developed her skills through the years. She has been a reporter, a producer, and a correspondent for WCBS television in New York, and as the current Deputy Police Commissioner for Public Information of the City of Philadelphia, she has worked hard to maintain high standards of excellence in public service.

Fleysher said she is excited about the challenges that lie ahead as she embarks on her new career. "I have learned many lessons from my time at the university, and I believe that the skills I have honed will serve me well in my new role," she said.

Fleysher’s new position will involve a great deal of travel, and she is looking forward to the opportunity to meet and interact with people from all walks of life. "I am eager to explore new opportunities and to learn from the experiences of others," she said.

In conclusion, Ellen Fleysher’s departure is a loss for the university, but her impact on the world will continue to be felt. Her dedication to public service and her commitment to excellence are an inspiration to us all. We wish her all the best as she embarks on her new adventure.

---

Other local news stories are also included in the article, covering topics such as the weather, school closures, and the University of Pennsylvania’s response to the blizzard. The article provides a comprehensive overview of the events surrounding the blizzard and its impact on the city.
JAMES AN TUCKER PRESENTS

J - In H. H. Thursday, March 1

800 SOCIAL WORK POSITIONS
OPEN NOW IN ISRAEL

MSW's and BSW's needed now in Israel's urban centers and developing towns. Community workers especially sought. Orientation programs,etting training courses, pilot trips planned. A real opportunity to live a quality Jewish life while making a meaningful contribution. Remember, interviews coming from Israel this month. Arrange now to speak with us.

EMPLOYMENT SERVICES DIVISION

BLOOD DRIVE
MEDICAL CENTER
Tuesday, February 20
11:30-6:00
Baskin-Robbins Ice Cream

BELIEVE IT OR NOT
4¢ ea. Xerox Copies
Plus-No Waiting In Line For Machine
-We Do All The Work For You
Campus Copy Center
3907 Walnut St.
Next To Baskin-Robbins 382-1839

Good Until 2-84-79

Tonight Is Smokey Joe's First Anniversary.
We Would Like To Celebrate
With A Budweiser Party
With Our Regular Party
Policy, Plus Many Other Specials.

That's Tonight Walnut at 40th

Get involved in Undergraduate Education! SCUE needs active and dedicated student willing to improve our education.

Come, en masse, to SCUE's first general meeting and find out how you can participate.

Wednesday Feb. 21 7:30 PM
Franklin Room Houston Hall
Be there. We need you!
Snow Snarls City

...only the subway -surface vehicles snow and abandoned cars. As night regularly.

people to the hospital
froxen switching signals spokesmen attributed the cause to Margaret-Orthodox station in the his car rolled off an embankment on resident died of a heart attack when closed for much of the day. When the the Pennsylvania Turnpike, were Expressway and sections of or chains.

highways opened, traffic was ste Harritourg reported 14 Inches, inches.

The southeastern part of the state
In Baltimore, where 10 inches of Snow    fall    on    grounds   already
The injuries ware caused when two In the city, only one death was Guardsmen were called out to aid the si sals ware made, and National claimed a state of emergency as that knocked out power In several blocked most of the state's roads and ...ironically. Florida.as flights out of the travellers In many states, including,
and a power failure.
Atlantic City's Resorts International

Airports on the East Coast train

FLSP Mr. Darytl
formerly with

Mr. Darytl

John and ronon Aaais.Pi

A.E.D.
The Premedical Honor Society Presents
Dr. Everett C. Koop
Speaking On
Conjoined Twins
8:00 P.M. Tues Feb 20th
Hope Auditorium 3rd Floor
Children's Hospital
All Welcome

Most students play by the rules when placing a long distance call. They take advantage of bangain rates and make their calls during the discount periods. If you're sure when you can call or discount rates, check your phone book.

A few students that it's O.K. to break the rules by stealing their telephone service. They're not bedning the system, they're taking advantage of all of us, because it drives up the cost of providing telephone service.

Students who break the rules can ruin the rate by posting a large time Spending time in jail And getting

The Systems Division of Computer Sciences Corporation has mounted the most aggressive campus recruitment program in its history.

As a consequence of our growth, both in types as well as magnitude of contracts, the entity lever opportunities now at CSC are as numerous and diverse as an encyclopedia of communications and computers, with systems ranging from undersea to outer space.

Intensely challenging programs underway serve almost every branch of government, and every corner of industry.

Unlike other large firms which concentrate on design, development, and manufacture of computers and related hardware, CSC is entirely systems oriented. Here you will find yourself in the unique position of creating software for systems (which you will also be helping to create) out of your knowledge of customer needs, and awareness of all of the hardware available, from any and every manufacturing entity in the nation. Perhaps the world.

From the beginning, you will enjoy the career advantages that arise out of CSC's stature as one of the largest information sciences companies in the world.

We couldn't have gotten there without them.. and we can't stay there without you.

We'll be interviewing on campus
Monday, February 27th.
See your College Placement Office for details, or write Chris Pappas, Employment Manager.

THE DAILY PENNSYLVANIAN-Tuesday, February 28, 1983

PAGE 1
By Sue Coopersmith

"It's disgusting, filthy habit.""It's a lack of respect for others.""It's unhealthy and inconsiderate.""Don't eat and talk in public.""It's disgusting and not sanitary.""It's not polite and not sanitary.""It's not safe and unhygienic.""I'm appalled by it.

There are many reasons why people describe picking. Picking is often confused with snacking or munching, but there’s a very different. Munching refers to a habit of eating snacks, chips from a chocolate chip cookie or the corner of a napkin, bread, or sometimes the crust of a sandwich or the bottom of a soda can. These are all considered acceptable habits. Some popular snack foods that are often picked include chips, crackers, and cookies. Other popular snack foods include nuts, seeds, and trail mixes.

The act of picking is often considered rude and inconsiderate in many social situations. In some cases, it can be seen as a lack of respect for others. It may also be perceived as a lack of hygiene or cleanliness.

Despite these negative associations, picking is a common behavior in many cultures and settings. In some cases, it may even be encouraged as a way to show appreciation for a meal or to signal hunger. However, the perception of picking as rude or inappropriate varies widely depending on cultural norms and personal preferences.

In conclusion, picking is a multi-faceted behavior that can be seen as both positive and negative. While it may be associated with a lack of respect and hygiene in some situations, it can also be a way of expressing gratitude and hunger. Understanding the cultural and social context in which picking occurs can help to better understand this behavior and its implications.

Letter

Lack of Student and Faculty Diversity

Richard Gordon is the Selling of a University (DP.Feb 16) hit on something which relates to minorities, specifically the minority faculty and students at Penn. In a recent interview, the University’s president, Dr. Linda Markovitz, stated that the University is committed to diversity and inclusion. However, the lack of minority faculty and students is a concern that needs to be addressed.

The University claims to be a minority-friendly institution, but the reality is quite different. According to the University’s annual report, only 3% of tenured faculty members are African American, and there are no tenured Hispanic faculty members. The University also claims to be a leader in diversity and inclusion, but the lack of minority faculty and students suggests otherwise.

One example of this is the Spanish Department, which is one of the largest departments at the University. However, there are no tenured Hispanic faculty members in the department. This lack of diversity is concerning, as it limits the perspectives and experiences that students can gain from these courses.

The University’s commitment to diversity and inclusion needs to be more than just lip service. It needs to be reflected in the hiring and retention of minority faculty members. The University should consider establishing hiring goals for minority faculty members and implementing programs to support their success.

In conclusion, the lack of minority faculty and students at the University is a concern that needs to be addressed. The University needs to be more proactive in its efforts to recruit and retain minority faculty and students, and it should be held accountable for its diversity and inclusion efforts.

Low Calorie Food for Thought

There is a diet for every day of the week but what diet starts tomorrow, I can’t decide. After one last binge, the purpose of the binge is to starve yourself with everything from ice cream to leftover toast. The problem with this is that the body has a way of knowing when it’s gone too far and you are in the proper mindset for the next two weeks to come.

It also perpetuates another common problem—the guilt about food consumption. In the fall of this month, students spend two hours thinking about food instead of focusing on their studies. This may be accomplished by making multiple trips to the kitchen while dinner is being cooked. They are the people who will refuse to eat until they have burned off all of the calories they have consumed. And why should any minorities dare to pick? Favorite nibbles are cheese, crackers and cookies. Call them what you will, they are a menace. What’s the problem? The University makes no effort to inform anyone, and the administrators to Penn Is the fact that the University doesn’t care to fix the situation. Possibly the area which best shows the ingenuity of national affairs. All columns must be typed, triple spaced and set at 66 character per line. Material may be submitted personally or by mail to: The Daily Pennsylvanian, 3401 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19104. All contributions are welcome.

Cadenza

This is your BIG CHANCE TO EXPRESS YOURSELF!

The Daily Pennsylvanian (DP) seeks contributions from both students and faculty. DP reserves the right to publish articles that represent the views of students and faculty to express their ideas on matters of concern or to relate personal experiences. Topics may range from campus issues to other matters of interest to the University community to express their ideas on matters of concern or to relate personal experiences. The purpose of the newsletter is to provide a forum for discussing issues of concern to the University community. Contributions may be submitted personally or by mail to: The Daily Pennsylvanian, 3401 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19104. All contributions are welcome.

Poster

Low Calorie Food for Thought

There is a diet for every day of the week but what diet starts tomorrow, I can’t decide. After one last binge, the purpose of the binge is to starve yourself with everything from ice cream to leftover toast. The problem with this is that the body has a way of knowing when it’s gone too far and you are in the proper mindset for the next two weeks to come.

It also perpetuates another common problem—the guilt about food consumption. In the fall of this month, students spend two hours thinking about food instead of focusing on their studies. This may be accomplished by making multiple trips to the kitchen while dinner is being cooked. They are the people who will refuse to eat until they have burned off all of the calories they have consumed. And why should any minorities dare to pick? Favorite nibbles are cheese, crackers and cookies. Call them what you will, they are a menace. What’s the problem? The University makes no effort to inform anyone, and the administrators to Penn Is the fact that the University doesn’t care to fix the situation. Possibly the area which best shows the ingenuity of national affairs. All columns must be typed, triple spaced and set at 66 character per line. Material may be submitted personally or by mail to: The Daily Pennsylvanian, 3401 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19104. All contributions are welcome.

Cadenza

This is your BIG CHANCE TO EXPRESS YOURSELF!

The Daily Pennsylvanian (DP) seeks contributions from both students and faculty. DP reserves the right to publish articles that represent the views of students and faculty to express their ideas on matters of concern or to relate personal experiences. Topics may range from campus issues to other matters of interest to the University community to express their ideas on matters of concern or to relate personal experiences. The purpose of the newsletter is to provide a forum for discussing issues of concern to the University community. Contributions may be submitted personally or by mail to: The Daily Pennsylvanian, 3401 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Pa. 19104. All contributions are welcome.
Get Another Extension

Dear Mr. Smith,

I wrote to you the other day but have not received an answer yet. I am writing you again because the extension on your application is running out.

Yours truly,

[Signature]

Dear Mr. Smith,

I am writing to request an extension of your application deadline. It is currently [current date] and the deadline officially is [deadine date].

I understand that you have been busy with [reason for delay] and I hope that extending the deadline will help you complete your application.

Yours sincerely,

[Your Name]

Dear Mr. Smith,

I am writing to confirm that you have been granted an extension on your application. The new deadline is [new deadline].

Yours truly,

[Signature]
Tigers Visit, But It's Not Like Old Times

By JOHN EISENBERG

Pete Carril brings his Princeton Tiger basketball team to the Palestra tonight in an effort to eliminate the hotly-contested league title race. The Tigers are the only Ivy team that can affect Old Nassau's chances. The Palestra welcomes the Princeton basketball team to the Palestra for the first time in Princeton history. Carril is not the only one who wants to avoid Old Nassau. Samuels, Princeton's star forward, is not the only one who wants to avoid Old Nassau.