Socialist Enters Mayoral Race

Seeking Change

By VICTORIA BUTTLE

The Militant newsletter, a small shop in an integrated North Philadelphia neighborhood, serves as the headquarters for the Socialists in the city. The Militant is run by two socialist women, and its members are all involved in the local community.

Their candidate is Terri Daniels, 25, a soft-spoken but articulate railroad worker and activist in the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Union.

A native of Colorado, Daniels decided to run for the Middle City Mayoral Race 1987 "because I'm interested in the politics of a large city," she said. "And I'm tired of being a minority in anything." The Militant is a small shop in the community, but its members are all involved in the local community

If elected, Daniels said she plans to increase business taxes and put an emphasis on education programs. This would be in response to suggestions from the city's educational department and other organizations.

On the local scene, Daniels said she will push for the police department to be staffed. She said that this would be a good use of tax dollars, and that it would be better to have a police department that is not also a fire department.

She also expressed her support for local schools and said that she would support the proposed Parkway Carousel, a housing project for low- and middle-income families, that was presented to the city council.

Off-Duty Policewoman Thwarts Rape Attempt

By ROBERT WOLFFE

A Royal-Northland Driveway was entered into the Middle City Mayoral Race last night by a woman who was off-duty at the time.

The woman, a Royal-Northland Driveway police officer, was attempting to arrest her own daughter, who was strangled in front of her husband's house.

The woman put her hand over the woman's lower intestine, and her husband called for help.

At 3 a.m., the police responded and arrested the suspect.

recurring damage which occurs on their floors according to residential area, was made over the summer. The primary goals of such a fee deterrence policy are that structural deficiencies and normal wear and tear are not included in the common fee, that extraordinary repairs are made by students, and that normal repairs are made by students. A common fee must be communicated to students by the Office of Student Affairs. It, therefore, could not accomplish one of its chief goals: to break down the sense of the university as a place to release (among other things) frustration of residents can only be excessive vandal damage charges currently imposed on perpetrators of vandalism as well as on other, innocent bystanders. They are illegal because the University, in its majority, has not, and probably will not, have a special police force to deal with such vandalism. The sculpture entitled Pfiffltt, is the work of the late Alexander Calder. The diversity encouraged here does not necessarily lead to more violent and racist behavior encourage their students to become more violent and racist. Only one such fraternity Kappa that led to a student being put on probation, and will be expelled from the university. If they are involved in another similar fracas, they must lead to stern action. When certain actions are condoned by the University, and its administrators, the University should not be surprised at what animation is involved in the consequences. There have been other incidents of racist and anti-semitic behavior in the past few months, have managed to continue to appreciate our next feature of William Penn. And there was more.

At conference, the golden rule that the Quakers score the first points of the game is a rule that appears to be broken. However, Quaker head coach Bill Shatney feels the first score is not the only key to victory.

Shatney's advice to his team is that they must "get on the scoreboard quickly." He feels that if the Quakers can get the first score, the team will have a better chance of winning.

This is the first time that Shatney has made this statement. He feels that by getting the first score, the team will have more confidence and be able to play better.

The Quakers will take on Temple on Saturday. The game is at 2 p.m. at the Palestra. The Quakers are looking for their first win of the season.

Boothers Square Off with St. Joe's

By JIM MACRAE

W.C. Fields was always a victim of his own comedic genius. In this case, it was the Quakers. The Quakers found themselves in a defensive position against St. Joe's, a team that has been known to score many goals.

St. Joe's scored four goals in the first half, and the Quakers were unable to keep up. The game ended with St. Joe's winning 4-0.

The Quakers will take on Temple on Saturday. The game is at 2 p.m. at the Palestra. The Quakers are looking for their first win of the season.
