Morale at SAMP is High, But Bitterness Remains

SAMP: Death of a School

To retain SAMP, Father administrators have arranged for a new school. They have been engaged by the University's Office of Student Affairs Director Martin Stamm for the past two years. The new school will be housed in the first floor of a building on the riverfront. The school is expected to open in the fall of 1986.

The new school will be coeducational and will offer undergraduate and graduate programs in medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, and public health. The curriculum will be based on the SAMP curriculum, but will be expanded to include new courses in public health and preventive medicine.

The new school will be located in a building on the riverfront that was formerly occupied by the SAMP faculty. The building is expected to be fully renovated by the fall of 1986.

"The Shadow Box"

By STEVE LEVINE

The play will be performed at Annenberg on Tuesday, October 16, at 8 p.m. (There is no show Sunday night.)

The second play to be performed in the Zellerbach Theater is described as "a sort of detective fiction," entitled "The Shadow Box" directed by Martin Edmonds, a veteran Mole actor. The play is about a man who has died and is described as "a deeply involved character," and that he is returning from the world of the living to the world of the dead.

President Carter's problems are over, at least, none of them, as a clear and evident solution to the energy crisis arrived at from this situation. We are also looking at what the New Zealand Energy comes to.

The country, the group has presented a large number of films on television, some of the best in the world. The group is now performing "House of Mirth," by Henry James, which was first performed in Philadelphia. The production of "House of Mirth," by Henry James, was performed at Annenberg last fall, in the production of "American Buffalo."

The University of Pennsylvania is reeling with spasms. In fact, Pennsylvania College of Medicine is awash in the presence of foreign language offerings. Students here, they commonly murmur, are blessed with an unending array of foreign language courses.

But this curious array of languages is only one of the university's many unexplained phenomena. For example, why are the students so obsessed with foreign language courses? Is it a case of mass hysteria or is there some deeper psychological motive at work? Why are these courses so popular among the students? Are they driven by a genuine desire to learn a new language or are they simply following a fad?

For years, the university has been notorious for its emphasis on foreign language courses. Every incoming student is required to take at least one foreign language course, and many students choose to take additional courses as well. This emphasis on foreign language courses is a source of great pride for the university, and it is one of the reasons why it is so highly regarded.

But recent studies have shown that the emphasis on foreign language courses may be doing more harm than good. Many students are finding it difficult to keep up with the rigorous coursework, and many are dropping out of their foreign language classes.

Moreover, there is evidence to suggest that the emphasis on foreign language courses may be hindering the university's efforts to broaden its curriculum. As a result, the university is now under pressure to reassess its foreign language offerings and to consider new ways of teaching foreign languages.

The Death of SAMP

"One of the most loved classics of the silent era, Love Life of a South Sea Siren is a hilarious and poignant comedy of the mating habits of the Samoan people. The story follows the adventures of the young Samoan girl, Naulani, and other islander girls, as they find themselves drawn to the allure of the white man - and the inevitable consequences of their improperly dressed encounters. This classic film, which was almost completely obscured by Hollywood's sanitized representations of the Pacific Islands, now offers a rare glimpse into the authentic culture of the Samoan people."
Quaker Linebackers

Dealing With the Law of the Jungle

The last, right now, is not his most attractive feature.

Last Wednesday, only 24 minutes into Penn's season opener against Lehigh, Penn Linebacker Tom Mazich was called for a personal foul.

Lehigh, Penn - A personal foul on the field, contact with a forward, Four Quaker Linebackers were penalized.

As a result, Penn's leading returning tackler was out of the St. Joe's game. Last week from the sidelines and the chance to play, Penn Linebacker Tom Mazich was suspended for four games.

But I wouldn't want to say it was deliberate," Quaker Linebacker Tom Mazich said, "It's just an unfortunate situation. It's beyond understandable.

"I don't blame the kids who were there. I blame the coach. He didn't do enough to keep his team under control."

"I think our whole team is a lot more mature than that. That's the way things are."

Mazich being out with a twisted ankle for four games will be a big difference, Gamble says. "We lost a leader and a team player."

The Quaker Linebackers are the backbone of the defense, Gamble says. "With Mazich out, we're really going to miss him."

The Quakers' defense hasn't been as good as they were last year, Gamble says. "We've had some problems with the linebackers."

The Quakers' defense has been inconsistent, Gamble says. "We've had some good games and some bad games."

But Gamble is impressed with the Quaker Linebackers. "They're tough-but still quick. Gamble calls them the heart and soul of the defense."

And Mazich is tough. "He's a Quaker."

Williams won both her matches against the St. Joe's doubles teams.

With these three linebackers, Gamble can rest more easily now that his defense has a chance to be observed. "The nice thing about it (having Mazich back) is that it's his extra pat on the back."

But Gamble is not satisfied. "He needs to be observed more than anything."

Gamble takes the opportunity to "red" Mazich to get on the right track. "With these three linebackers, Gamble can rest more easily now that his defense has a chance to be observed. "The nice thing about it (having Mazich back) is that it's his extra pat on the back.""
