WXPN's Sole Rival Fails To Appeal

U. One Step Closer to License

By DIXIE STEVENSON

The only possible competition to community radio station WXPT is in serious difficulty. The FCC has rejected a new station at a contested site, the only site at which a station may be closer to getting a new license.

In an order delivered Oct. 31, the FCC, after a lengthy administrative hearing, granted a new license to WXPT. WXPT's applications in a separate proceeding, as well as those of another station, were rejected by the FCC.

The FCC has decided that the construction permit is not worth considering. It is to be a step in the right direction, according to FCC counsel John Neumann of the nation's spiritual headquarters.

Pope Ends Tour of City With Campus Area Visit

By AFRIDOTTE VALLEAS

Pope John Paul II ended his visit to the city yesterday by celebrating a Mass for the nation's Catholic clergy and students at the Civic Center.

He visited the University of Pennsylvania on Friday night, just hours before he flew to Washington, D.C., where he was greeted by 12,000 people.

City Police Criticized in Brutality Forum

By SHERMAN COHEN

"The police were out there to be shot by a policeman in Philadelphia than in New York," said Tony Jackson, director of the Police Abuse Project at the Public Interest Foundation.

"The police were there to investigate the incident in the neighborhood," Jackson said. "The incident occurred at a time when the police were not involved in any major investigation of police brutality in the city."

New Provost Aide Looks to Challenges

By GREG MANNING

"Looking back on my two years as provost's aide, I think I have learned a great deal," said Joyce Randolph, the University's new assistant provost.

"I believe that the University's affirmative action program is moving forward," Randolph said. "I think that the University has a good plan in place to deal with the issue of affirmative action."

...They only real Constitutional issue involved here is the nursing students' right to protest the showing of a film that insults and degrades their profession.

Weighed up against the other privacy concerns, the college campus where nursing is taught at the University of Pennsylvania at this time is unlikely to accord the nursing students any semblance of the Constitution's protection. The college administration would probably say that, while some of the scenes of the film are offensive, they are not so graphic as to be protected by the Constitution. They might even go so far as to say that the response is not revealed by the film but rather is left to the audience or the faculty member who selected the film. If the faculty member does not take the film seriously, it is unlikely that the college administration would be concerned about it.

While the depiction of love and its relationship to sex, both on and off campus, is not a constitutional issue, it is a serious concern. It is not only the depiction of love and sex, but also the depiction of the body itself, that is an issue.

The Constitution guarantees freedom of speech and freedom of the press, but it does not guarantee freedom of the body. The Constitution guarantees the right to privacy, but it does not guarantee the right to have one's body depicted in a sexual manner.

Treatment of Radiation Injuries To Be Discussed at Conference

BY GREG CUTNAM

The topics of discussion include: radiation accidents, radioprotection, handling contaminated patients, hospital facilities for radiation accidents, analysis of radiation damage, and management of radiation accidents.

The radiation medical center at the University is one of the few centers in the country, and its founder, Dr. Isaac J. Wistar, devoted most of his efforts to cancer research, studied including leukemia. The possibilities of turning normal cells into leukemia will also be investigated, the life-cycle of cells with certain hormones, and management of radioactive skin injuries. The topics to be discussed include: radiation accidents, radioprotection, handling contaminated patients, hospital facilities for radiation accidents, analysis of radiation damage, and management of radiation accidents.

Wistar Institute Will Get Research Grant

Ardmore, Pennsylvania, has awarded a $47 million trust fund donated by the late William Smith, former president of the W. W. Smith Charitable Trust of Philadelphia. The Wistar grant is part of a $47 million expansion of the university's cancer research, Wistar devoted most of its activities to cancer research, Wistar devoted most of its activities to cancer research, and was one of the first centers for cancer research studied including leukemia.

The topics to be discussed include: radiation accidents, radioprotection, handling contaminated patients, hospital facilities for radiation accidents, analysis of radiation damage, and management of radiation accidents.

Since the incidents of radiation accidents at nuclear facilities, there has not been a major initial symptom of radioactive skin injuries, and our defenses are still very much like a fire - it's too late when the damage is done. If the patient can be kept from the serious secondary side effects, he can go on to recover completely.

With a radiation accident occurring, the topics of discussion include: radiation accidents, radioprotection, handling contaminated patients, hospital facilities for radiation accidents, analysis of radiation damage, and management of radiation accidents.

Ltws. Set For Army

BY GORDON ALTER

Their season finale is finally here, and the Lehigh football squad is on the brink of a long-anticipated showdown. On Saturday (11:00 A.M.), the Mountain Hawks will face off against defending conference champion and perennial powerhouse Army for the rights to stay in the postseason conversation for one more week.

Lehigh's journey to this point has been filled with ups and downs, from early-season struggles to recent triumphs. The team is looking to put a bow on a year that has been anything but predictable. With a win on Saturday, they can secure a share of the Patriot League title, a goal that has been within their reach but remains elusive.

Army, on the other hand, is a formidable opponent. Their legendary triple-option offense, led by quarterback负责任'sname, has been a strong suit throughout the season. However, the Mountain Hawks are known for their tenacity and ability to adapt on the fly. If Lehigh can neutralize the Army offense and capitalise on their own strengths, they have a real shot at pulling off a upset.

These are the worlds of Pete Palanka, Trajan Cephas, and Justin Tornes. Each is a part of the Rutgers University athletic program, preparing for the challenges that lie ahead.

Pete Palanka, a senior on the men's soccer team, is facing the demands of a rigorous training regimen and the pressure of competition. Trajan Cephas, a freshman on the track team, is learning to balance his academic and athletic commitments. Justin Tornes, a junior on the women's basketball team, is preparing for the intensity of collegiate play.

Undefeated Harriers Collide with Tigers

By David Elfen

We have a “no worse than a draw” element in our philosophy, and our team definitely lived up to that standard against one of the nation’s top teams. I think we’ve got a good chance to go all the way.”

The Harriers’ season continues on Sunday, when they host the Tigers in a crucial conference matchup. A win would solidify their status as the top team in the league, while a loss could open the door for a new leader to emerge.

For the third time in their history, Penn women's soccer will open the season at Franklin Field tonight against Columbia. This time, the Booters Out to Upend Columbia Penn is coming off a season where it only went 7-7-2, which was the first losing season in the program's history.

Coach Bob Justus, a former captain of the Princeton women's soccer team in the 1990s, has been hired to take over the program. He led the Booters to the Ivy League title in 2008 and won seven games in each of the past two seasons.

Justus has brought in a number of new players and is hoping to improve upon last year's performance.

"I think we have the talent to make it happen," Justus said. "We just need to put it all together on the field."
