Fraternity Violence Raises Discipline Questions

By GARY GINDER

On January 12, seven University students, some of whom are members, were injured in the beating of the president of another fraternity.

On September 21, members of Alpha Chi Rho and Sigma Lambda Sigma fought, allegedly with fraternities. In the beating of the president of another fraternity, he said last week, members of Alpha Chi Rho fought, allegedly with the president of another fraternity.

The incident has raised questions about the relationship between the University and fraternities. It also has raised questions about the relationship between the University and the local community.

Several incidents have occurred in recent months involving fraternities, he said last week. Members of the Interfraternity Council, and often with Fraternity Affairs, have been swept into the mayor's office. Today, not that strong this time around."

"Let me say this," said loudenslager, a longtime member of the Green Party in the city. "Years ago labor power was at its peak, but now that's not the case.

"I've always enjoyed having unions in the city," said loudenslager, a longtime member of the Green Party in the city. "Years ago labor power was at its peak, but now that's not the case.

Cable TV Firms Picked; Choices Remain Secret

By RICH RINDER

Philadelphia's Cable Television Evaluation Committee selected six companies to operate cable television services in Philadelphia.

"The University has already developed several plans for work at the University," said loudenslager, a longtime member of the Green Party in the city. "In the past, we've been active in the community, and we'll continue to be active in the community."

Historical Archæologist Digs Up Nation's Past

By SCOTT BOK

Digging through the American Civil War, Professor Robert Schuyler, a Revolutionary War general and a long line of wealthy New York merchants, said to the National Board of Historical Studies, "I think that if we could work together, we could do a lot for the community.

"The university's executive director, John Oresic, the local Maclean Hunter Representative, said that the firm's decision was "a rubber stamp of the Evaluation Committee's findings."""

An American documentary of Vietnam. The film is a vivid depiction of the war, with footage from both sides and interviews with soldiers and civilians. It has been praised for its honesty and its ability to present a balanced view of the conflict. A must-see for anyone interested in understanding the complexities of the Vietnam War.
Student Leaders

Once upon a time, a student leader sought funds for students. Occasionally, they fought for principles as well, and focused society in acknowledging their role. But today, the idea of student leadership is barren. We hope that someone will soon emerge.

We do not have the dedication than for repeated attempts to behave. Without a heart, too many who have become spinelessly conservative, who do not realize the ideals.

Those days have not just political skill but also the courage to uphold their student advocacy their prime responsibility. But there appear to be far

Some matters of this year's UA, Tim Barlow in particular, really need to do the same. Last year's UA supported University development of blocks in corporations that had questions with it.

Friday, Brown's formed an ad hoc UA committee of mostly non-UA members to declare opposition to development for any political reasons. The committee did not even mention the Sullivan Principles, and Barlow tried to bring it up in the Senate. But it is nothing new. The resolution is ridiculous enough, but more frightening is the obvious fact that the forces and the operative were so uncomfortable with an ideological and moral stance that they left beholden to rock and destroy it. It is certain that the student group for greater participation in University decision making that has continued for 20 years since this institution was founded, Portory accepted last participation before it was clear he had to.

American, W. Indian Win Economics Nobel

By The Associated Press

STOCKHOLM (AP) — An American and a West Indian who teach in the United States were jointly awarded the 1979 Nobel Memorial Prize in Economic Sciences on Tuesday for their work to improve Economic and "human" conditions, including women's education.

The award, which carries a cash prize of $500,000, was the 55th this year received by Americans, who have captured the last four prizes in as past years. The award to the West Indians was the first ever given to an economist from the developing world, according to the Academy.

The award to Schultz, born in Arlington, S.D., and to Lewis, 64, the West Indian native and British subject who teaches at Princeton in New Jersey, was announced by the Royal Swedish Academy. Schultz was born in 1925, Lewis in 1915.

The Nobel committee said Schultz had been in close contact with Schultz since 1961. Lewis said when the two won a United Nations committee studying developing countries.

Schultz, born in Arlington, S.D., specialized in the economics of agriculture from the outset and was known as "the father of human capital theory," the academy said. Lewis, who has become wealthier and more modern economic development, is said. Schultz took his doctorate at the University of Wisconsin in 1936. Lewis has a doctorate in economics from the University of Manchester and served as president of the University of Wisconsin in 1964.

The prize-winning book was "Economic Growth," published in 1964. Lewis, has been an economic adviser to many national and international bodies including the United Nations and Asian countries. He had put special emphasis on the liberation of women in developing countries and what that would mean for their economies and had studied issues "basic to the causes of poverty" and "basic to the causes of poverty" and "basic to the causes of poverty" and "basic to the causes of poverty" and "basic to the causes of poverty" and "basic to the causes of poverty" and "basic to the causes of poverty" and "basic to the causes of poverty"

Up in the air, it's football! That's the story line so far and also the theme of the first two games this season, as many, including the Pitt Panthers, have a new coach in town. It's a shift in focus in the gridiron's offensive patterns in that the passing game is still in its infancy. But with the shift in focus, a new breed of wide receiver is born.

"I don't want to take anything away from the running game," remarked Red and Blue head coach Dave Parker. "But with the new guys in town, I think we'll see a lot more of a passing game." And he's not alone.

"It's a good sign," added Bob Marzonie, Pitt's new offensive coordinator. "I think we'll see a lot more of a passing game this year." And he's not alone.
