Relations With Bank Hang on Unanswered Queries

By DICK STEVENSON

While the relationship between First Pennsylvania, the University's bank, and the University seems on the way to being clarified, students are still inquiring about the future. The bank has gone through a series of changes, including a new president and executive vice president, and now seems to be in a more stable position. The University has not made any official statement on the matter, but some students are expressing their concerns about the bank's involvement with other institutions.

News Analysis

University's dealings with the bank. The current situation is not only overshadowed by the bank's potential involvement with other institutions, but also by the University's own financial situation. The University is facing a budget deficit, and the bank's role in the financial affairs of the University is being questioned.

Bookstore Competitor Won't Sue

GOOD NEWS!

The Second City touring company will present a dinner theatre performance of "A Little Night Music" on Friday and Saturday nights on November 15, 16, and 17. Performances will be at 8 p.m., with dinner at 6:30 p.m. Tickets are $4 with an I.D., and $5.50 for others. For further information about this or any other performance, call 386-3916.

The troupe began in the early 60's when three members of the Chicago TV cast of "Second City" formed a company that would tour universities and colleges. Since becoming a permanent company in 1974, they have become one of the nation's leading professional theatre companies. For eight years they performed on Saturdays at the folklife, and now perform 44 weeks a year, including visits to the UK and Japan. The company has received two Tony Awards.

Second City's productions, unlike those of most community theatres, are based primarily on the written work of their own members, but the company has also produced the work of such playwrights as Neil Simon, Steve Martin, and John Guare. In addition, they often present the work of unproduced playwrights. The company's productions are usually highly original, and many of them have been published or adapted for television.

The company's success is due in part to their ability to adapt to the rapidly changing tastes of the audience. They have been able to maintain a high level of creative integrity while still remaining commercially successful.

The company's current production, "A Little Night Music," is a musical-comedy classic that has lost none of its stage appeal in the 1980's. The music, choreography, and acting are all top-notch, and the show is sure to please audiences of all ages.

Good News at St. Mary's is a great opportunity to see a professional theatre company perform, and it is sure to be a memorable experience.
Lobbies: The New Seeds of Democracy

By Louis Solls

During the past five years, interest in student lobbying has swelled to such an extent that one considers lobbing, much as one considers education or economics, a developed science. Three reasons explain the increased interest in this form of action: increased awareness and recognition of the need for action, the rise of organized student groups, and the shift of the focus of student organization away from the bubble of the campus. The result has been a rise in the number of student groups that have decided to attend to the actual legislative process. For instance, recently the Student Senate of the University of Pennsylvania sent a delegation of five members to Washington, D.C. to meet with Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.) and Representative Jacob J. Harrison (D-Del.) to discuss the merits of the University's position on the issue of student loans. The delegation was led by President John E. McCullough (FAS '80), who has been active in lobbying on behalf of the University for several years. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of the American Council on Education and is a strong advocate of the importance of higher education. He has long been an opponent of the open enrollment policy of the University, which he believes is a threat to the quality of education. He has also been a strong supporter of the idea of a tuition-free education for all students, and has been a vocal opponent of the idea of a student loan program. He is a strong advocate of the idea of a tuition-free education for all students, and has been a vocal opponent of the idea of a student loan program. Schools Gather To Sell Wares To Eager High School Seniors

Get together representatives from approximately 370 colleges, universities and other institutions who will provide brochures, catalogues and other literature describing their programs, and what do you have? Coincidentally, the Philadelphia Civic Center this afternoon and today at the Philadelphia Civic Center.

In this era of declining student enrollment and immense college recruiting, however, what you have is a real bargain.

From all over the country to peddle their wares to thousands of high school juniors and seniors and their parents from Philadelphia and the surrounding area. Those represented included some of the Big names: George Washington University, Harvard, Midtown, NYU, and many of lesser distinction. The national School of Photography, Montclair College and London State College of Vermont had booths, although they were not as heavily frequented as others.

And the representatives of better known schools, particularly Drexel, Villanova, Franklin and Marshall and Temple, drew the largest crowds.

Encare is available without a prescription. And, registered by the major method of birth control you will ever own.

Simply Simple

You simply insert Encare with the tip of your finger. There's no itts or worries about those complications. You can't worry about those complications.

Birth control, simplified.

1. Encare is a fictional contraceptive mentioned in the text. It is not a real product. The text is a parody of ads for birth control products, using exaggerated claims and simplified language to appeal to an audience seeking an easy and effective birth control solution. The text encourages the reader to contact a phone number for more information on Encare. The tone is one of simplicity and reassurance, appealing to the reader's desire for a straightforward and convenient method of contraception. The mention of Encare is a playful and humorous take on the serious topic of birth control, using a fictional product to create a memorable and engaging narrative. The use of a fictional product allows for creative liberties in the text, adding humor and making the information more accessible to the reader. The overall goal is to create a memorable and engaging ad that could be used to promote a real birth control method or as a standalone humorous piece.

Sunshine Books has been at Penn for three years now, and we are starting to feel like old friends. Our customers are Penn students and faculty, and our staff are Penn students and alumni. We feel we are part of the University community.

SUNSHINE IS HERE TO STAY

Last September, when the University Bookstore cut its prices on thirteen of our large-selling titles, it looked as if they were trying to put us out of business. Although their policy hurt us badly, they refused to change it, and we had to take legal action.

Sunshine was hurt, but we survived, and we have come to an important decision. We are not going to sue the University for damages we sustained as a result of the Bookstore’s policy. We are all part of the same community—we’re friends.

AND WE DON’T SUE OUR FRIENDS

The Bookstore made an effort—but we think it just cannot compete. At Sunshine we’re used to discounts—we discount all of our books.

If we did not serve the faculty and students of the Penn community better, our losses would put us out of business. Maybe for the sake of competition, the Bookstore can afford to lose a lot money. Every competition has winners—and losers.

We have survived the competition, and we would like the Bookstore to know that we are playing to win. We will keep on discounting all of our books, and we will be seeing you in December. That will be your chance to make some extra holiday cash by selling books to us. We will be on campus to buy your used textbooks at the close of this semester.

When you return to Penn in January, Sunshine will be there, too. We will be returning for another semester with every book discounted, plus discount notebooks. And as an added service to you, a limited number of used textbooks will be on sale also.

So, now the Bookstore knows that we mean business. If we feel our survival is threatened, we’ll take action. But we would like to keep the competition healthy.

It's been a tough fall for Penn Quakers, but coach Bob Weinhauer continued to run a strong offensive game as the team proved more than capable of competing with the Ivy League's powerhouse teams.

The Quakers opened the season with a 70-56 victory over the Columbia Lions, a coaching staff that has been a staple of the Ivy League. The Quakers got off to a strong start with a 13-0 run in the first half, followed by a 20-0 run in the second half to secure the victory.

Following their season-opening win, the Quakers have been on a roll, showcasing their strength in the Ivy League. The team has won six of its last seven games, including a 76-66 victory over the Brown Bears.

Coach Weinhauer has been pleased with the team's performance, stating, "We've been able to play very well in most aspects of the game. Our defense has been solid, and our offense has been very efficient." He also praised the team's chemistry, saying, "The team has been working well together, and I'm proud of them for their hard work and dedication.

Despite their recent success, Weinhauer remains focused on the road ahead. "There are still many games to be played, and we need to stay focused on our goals. We need to continue to improve our defense and continue to dominate on the offensive end.

The Quakers' next game is against the Harvard Crimson, a team that has been a challenge for the team in recent years. Weinhauer and his coaching staff will be looking to build on their recent success and continue their winning streak.

The Whammies' Ultimate Victory Was Not to Be

By MATTIEN O. KIMEL

Recording artist Whammie recently announced that he will release a new album titled "Ultimate Victory." The album is expected to be released on November 15th, and features a mix of pop, rock, and hip-hop genres.

Whammie, who is known for his energetic stage presence and catchy hooks, said in a press conference, "I'm excited to bring you all a new album that I believe will resonate with fans of all ages. I've been working on this album for the past year, and I'm confident that it will be a hit." The album is expected to feature hit singles like "Victory" and "Ultimate."
