Rent Increase May Replace Vandalism Fee

By RICHARD JAFFE

For the benefit of the University of Pennsylvania community, students charged for vandalism should be aware of the new fee increase, effective immediately. Students will be charged a fee of $200 for vandalism of residential halls, $150 for vandalism of public buildings, and $50 for vandalism of classrooms. The fee will be included in the tuition bill at the beginning of the semester.

The decision to increase the fee was made by the University's Board of Trustees, following a recommendation from the Student Affairs Committee. The committee recommended an increase in order to cover the cost of repairs and to deter future vandalism.

The increase is in response to an increase in vandalism incidents on campus. The cost of repairs for vandalism has increased significantly, and the University is unable to absorb the cost of the repairs. The increase is intended to ensure that students are responsible for the cost of the damage they cause.

The increase will affect all University students, regardless of their residence. The fee will be automatically deducted from the student's tuition bill at the beginning of the semester.

The University administration has assured students that the increase is temporary and that they will work to reduce the number of vandalism incidents on campus.

Frataternity Policy Draft Released

By GARY SINNER

The draft of a new fraternity policy has been released by the University administration. The policy is designed to address concerns about hazing and discrimination within fraternity organizations.

The draft includes provisions that limit the use of hazing practices, such as drinking and fighting, and requires fraternities to establish policies for the prevention of discrimination.

The policy also includes provisions that require fraternities to report any incidents of hazing or discrimination to the University administration.

The draft policy is currently under review by the University's faculty, staff, and student organizations. A final version of the policy is expected to be released in the near future.

Meyerson May Announce Board Choices

By JEFFREY COLUMAN

The University of Pennsylvania has announced that it will hold a Model United Nations Conference this spring. The conference will bring together students from around the world to discuss global issues and to develop their skills in diplomacy and negotiation.

The University is currently recruiting students to participate in the conference. Students interested in participating should contact the Model United Nations Office for more information.

The conference is open to all students, regardless of their major or level of experience. Students from all disciplines are encouraged to participate.

The conference will be held on the University of Pennsylvania campus, and it will run from February 1 to February 5. The University is expecting a large turnout, with over 1,000 students expected to participate.

The conference is sponsored by the University's Department of International Affairs, and it is open to all students, regardless of their major or level of experience. Students interested in participating should contact the Model United Nations Office for more information.

The conference is open to all students, regardless of their major or level of experience. Students interested in participating should contact the Model United Nations Office for more information.

The conference is sponsored by the University's Department of International Affairs, and it is open to all students, regardless of their major or level of experience. Students interested in participating should contact the Model United Nations Office for more information.
MAKE IT HAPPEN! join the PEPPERMINT CLUB

JACQUIN’S Peppermint Schnapps
It’s the very best

ATTENTION SENIORS: (Especially You December Grads!)
The only Yearbook portrait sittings this semester for Record 1980 will be the week of November 26.

Sign up for your time slot on November 19 and 20 (Monday and Tuesday)
At The Office...3611 Locust Walk

SAC Funded

NEWS IN BRIEF

Compiled From Associated Press Dispatches

INTERNATIONAL

Some Hostages Released

The United States confirmed that the U.S. citizen in Tokyo announced yesterday that they will release black and female hostages held by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs in Japan, but that the first sign of the American hostage would be tried and the release of the hostages would be linked to the negotiation of a future peace treaty. In an ABC News interview, an Arab official announced the release of the hostages or hostages no longer expected to be released. However, the United States indicated that the hostages would not be released until the United States is satisfied with the terms of the peace treaty.

STATE/LOCAL

GOP Delegates Selected

A total of 132 delegates from the 132 Republican National Convention chosen by the delegates and delegates of the Republican National Convention. Former California Governor Ronald Reagan has been named as the candidate. The United States has now picked up a new campaign, which the United States has chosen. The United States has chosen. The United States has chosen.

Carroll Tells of Wharton’s Fight For Acceptance and Recognition

By RANDY MALAMD

The first economist on the faculty was not hired until 1961. In 1968, the United States became independent of the United States. The school continued expanding its programs, Carroll said, with an emphasis on the creative quick printing system.

Fairness, Subjectivity Are Topics In Local News Media Colloquium

By DEBORAH KATZ

The Forum on local news media continues to focus on the role of the news media in the media industry. The forum is being held at the University of Pennsylvania and the University of Temple.

DOUG CARROLL

Several experts have claimed worldwide for their research on fairness, Carroll said, with national sponsored research budget of $8 million.
Black Voters Aided Green’s Victory

By DAVID B. COHEN

William Green carried almost every major ethnic group in the city in his successful mayoral race on November 6. His impressive performance, however, came at a cost: he failed to carry the black community.

Expected to win in a black plurality, Green (44 percent) did not receive the significant share of the black vote that he took in the Democratic primary. The black community, after all, is the largest minority group in the city.

In the presidential, 69 percent of the black vote went to Republican incumbent Gerald Ford. But in the mayoral race, black voters supported former Mayor Frank Rizzo in the 1971 mayoral race, in the general election, black candidates for the city council received a solid majority of the black vote.

During the final days of the campaign, however, it became clear that Green was carrying the black vote in the general election.

Wilson ran against a one-man majorca in the general election. The black community was a surprise, with Green getting almost 45 percent of the black vote.

Performance, however, came among a constellation of black voters, including the black leadership, the black community, and the black political establishment.

Green’s black supporters “really hustled their candidates,” said Daily News Columnist Mike Maloney.

Muller was the keynote speaker at the conference, which was held at the University of Pennsylvania on Friday. Muller later spoke to the student leaders.

“Make no mistake, he said, that it was going on. He would say that it was an all-out effort by the University.”

By DAVID B. COHEN

Student Dissent

Concerned about Language Instruction?

Come hear

Dr. Barbara Freed,
Dean of Language Instruction

at the

UA Academic Affairs Committee Meeting

Date: Monday, November 19
Time: 4:30 P.M.
Place: UA Office, Houston Hall
Getting Foxed

By John Reiss

Recently a friend's car was hit by a traffic light, and the police said that the intersection was a "blind corner," as though the car could have been seen if the driver was looking hard enough. The street is clearly visible from both directions, but the intersection is not.

The recent New York Times case in which a woman was struck by a car as she rode a bicycle through a traffic light was a similar case. The driver was not found, and the woman suffered severe injuries.

In these cases, the police present an inaccurate picture of the situation, as though the driver could have seen the woman if they were paying attention. The intersection is clearly visible, but the driver did not see it.

The police should be more honest in their presentations of these cases, as though the driver did not see the woman because they were not paying attention, not because the intersection was "blind."
Gridders Lose

"I should have had more of a nose tackle on that third down before being hauled out of the game," said Henry, who ran 31 yards to the Penn 11, but was stopped on fourth down from the 7.

Starting the second half, Marzonie passed to pose a threat. But Mar- sonie's enemy, the turnover, revisited them.

"We didn't get the execution," said Gamble. "If we had, we'd be back in the game." Marzonie was started by a 10 yard Brodsky punt return, a rarity this season. Marzonie appeared to be running free when he was hit at the 21. "I should have had more of a nose tackle on that third down before being hauled out of the game," said Henry, who ran 31 yards to the Penn 11, but was stopped on fourth down from the 7.

Marxonie's enemy, the turnover, revisited them. "We didn't get the execution," said Gamble. "If we had, we'd be back in the game."

"In the second half," said Gamble, "we tried to throw outs, and after we got them bailing, we thought we could do it. And we did." But the Quakers' defense continued its impressive play. "They were giving me a lot of run support, and the quarterback was looking for me," said Johnson, the leading pass catcher with 22 on the year. "I just couldn't break the tackles."

"I hope we can keep it up," said Gamble. "We've never had a great defense, and we've had some good occasions this year."

"They're a tough team," said Gamble. "They've got a lot of talented people, and they've got a lot of weapons in their offense."

"But we've got to be prepared," said Gamble. "We've got to be ready to go." Marzonie was started by a 10 yard Brodsky punt return, a rarity this season. Marzonie appeared to be running free when he was hit at the 21. "I should have had more of a nose tackle on that third down before being hauled out of the game," said Henry, who ran 31 yards to the Penn 11, but was stopped on fourth down from the 7.

Starting the second half, Marzonie passed to pose a threat. But Mar- sonie's enemy, the turnover, revisited them. "We didn't get the execution," said Gamble. "If we had, we'd be back in the game."

"In the second half," said Gamble, "we tried to throw outs, and after we got them bailing, we thought we could do it. And we did."

"They were giving me a lot of run support, and the quarterback was looking for me," said Johnson, the leading pass catcher with 22 on the year. "I just couldn't break the tackles."

"I hope we can keep it up," said Gamble. "We've never had a great defense, and we've had some good occasions this year."

"They're a tough team," said Gamble. "They've got a lot of talented people, and they've got a lot of weapons in their offense."

"But we've got to be prepared," said Gamble. "We've got to be ready to go."
The Quakers may have lost another game, but they didn’t lose a chance at victory. Gamble will come back next year.