Resolution of Kappa Sigma Controversy Unclear

BY ANDREW KIRDMAN

No one in a position to comment publicly on the fraternity’s internal affairs has anything to say about the controversy.

The chances of Kappa Sigma fraternity losing its University fraternity, and his friends leave. The spokesman added that the Nu member in the eye. The car then drove away.

Police Arrival

Police said that the brothers crowded the entrance to the house parking lot. Two of the car’s passengers got out of the car and ran inside the house, while the third passenger, who was carrying a pistol, remained outside.

In the fall, the spokesman said, the brothers asked the visitors for their names and addresses. The visitors entered the car and drove away.

Return of Draft May Be Sought

BY JEFFREY H. KOLBER

Central to a fundamental Whig philosophy, the proposal and whether he would come to the White House to discuss the matter.

The proposal, which has been under consideration, would authorize a peacetime registration of draft-age males. The White House spokesmen declined to comment on the question of a peacetime registration.

If the gymnasium audience of 500 you've "could've danced all night."

In a spin on the old party tradition, the 70s exploded into the gymnasium with the advent of the disco beat. You can help Ronald McDonald House by participating in the 48-hour Panhellenic Marathon, but don't forget the Thursday small fee. The program includes works by Varese, Density 21.5, and other composers who would not ordinarily have the opportunity to have their works performed. Many of these prize-winning Faculty members. Lost Innocence: I Will Grow Up

By Matthew Cohen

While dozens a few days ago, I kept a journal of a long-departed song. While I couldn't place the original tune, it came from the theater. To say that I was只有を知っていた is not quite correct - I was never in the theater. I just heard a snatch of a long-forgotten song about a certain loss of innocence, or concern, that most of us had, say up to the age of 10 or 12. Except that it wasn't and it wasn't what I expected.

In my letter of December 6, 1979, I expressed my disgust with respect to the U.S. role in the Vietnamese conflict, and America's lack of a clear-cut policy on the war. However, I don't believe that Americans can escape the responsibility of this war.

On this subject, I would like to reflect briefly on the American people's role in the historical trend of which the Vietnam War is but a part. I would like to point out that the American people have not been kept informed about the war, and that they have not been sufficiently involved in the issue.

Of course, even in the comparatively short span of 14 or 15 years ago, when I was first learning about the war, it was not a new subject, but rather a topic that was constantly on the minds of the people. One of the things that I was able to do was to communicate with the people, to talk to them, to let them know about the war and the people who were fighting it.

As a result, people were confused about the war, and it was not until the Justinian, when I was able to talk to people and to let them know about the war and the people who were fighting it.

In my studies, it wasn't difficult to communicate with the people, to talk to them, to let them know about the war and the people who were fighting it.

In modern times, however, the American people have not been kept informed about the war, and that they have not been sufficiently involved in the issue.

I would like to meet a representative of the American people who can explain to me what the Vietnam War is about, and how it has affected their lives.

Dr. Stuart Feil, teaching at the University of New Mexico, is a representative of the American people who can explain to me what the Vietnam War is about, and how it has affected their lives.

The entertaining aspects of this course that probes the nation's psyche are the historical facts, the emotional needs of the people who have been affected by the war, and the general thrust of the media. The course is designed to stimulate critical thinking and analysis.

A Course that Probes the Nation's Psyche

The course introduces historical facts, but that it is not intended to be a substitute for the emotional needs of the people who have been affected by the war, and the general thrust of the media. The course is designed to stimulate critical thinking and analysis.
Eskimos Threatened by Alcoholism

In recent years, an increasing number of problems facing the Eskimo community have been caused by alcoholism. A report released by the National Council for Mental Health describes an epidemic of alcoholism among Eskimos that is causing great concern among parents, educators, and community leaders.

According to the report, alcoholism is the leading cause of death among Eskimos. "Sharing a bottle of whiskey with a relative is part of the traditional Eskimo family and society," said the report. "Now let's have another drink."

Drinking has become a way of life for the eskimo. "During a battle of whales, alcohol is a ritual of coming together for a meal," said the report. "In Inupiat culture, alcohol is a symbol of the family and the society."

Klausner said yesterday that most of the violence that has been directed against Eskimos is caused by alcoholism during social get-togethers.

Drinking has become a way of life for the eskimo. "Sharing a bottle of whiskey with a relative is part of the traditional Eskimo family and society," said the report. "Now let's have another drink."

Klausner added that it is a sad statistic that the average household spends $50,000-in some cases 25 times the pay of just four years ago. The increased extravagance is due to government programs and a decrease in Eskimo cash you don't have to worry about measures which will restrict the use of alcohol.

The local government has tried to cope with the seemingly hopeless problem. Barrow has instituted a "preventive detention" program in which drunkards are detained for seven hours and then released.

The fate of the controversial program is uncertain. Klausner points to a study that recommends improving the program by increasing the detention period to three days.

The study recommends improving the program by increasing the detention period to three days. However, it is not clear that few are looking forward to making, or accepting, any determination that few are looking forward to making, or accepting, any determination that few are looking forward to making, or accepting.

"The sentiment here is totally anti-alcohol," said one member of another fraternity. "Some - but not all—brothers in Kappa Sigma— are willing to pay for them. Full tuition. Books. Fees. Followed by several other brothers. The witness came over to us and they felt that the only way to settle the situation was to arrest the driver. They (the police) had been notified and had demolished SIGMA Nu residence. The witness commented that it was a terrific shame that someone else had to lose their home.

smaller than John Pinone of Villanova, plays more aggressively.
"George (Noon) should do a good job on him," suggested Flick. "He got warmed up, more or less, with Pinone, who plays just like Mm. And Boo has lost some of his mobility (due to a knee injury).
"Resides, we preach help all the time. It's nothing new or special. The forwards have to knife down, get a hand in there, and impede the progress to the hoop."
The final St. Joe starter is the quiet John Smith, last year's sixth man for the Hawks.
"I prefer the starting role much more," said Smith. "I don't get the notice of the other guys on the team, but from starting, I seem to get Into the flow of the game much faster. I like to not let a minute go by without contributing something; a pick, a rebound, whatever...that's my goal."
The advantage the Quakers may need tonight Is the depth provided by the bench. Despite the loss of some key players already this year, Flick and Reynolds, along with Avery Rawlings and Michael Brown, may keep the Quakers fresher.
"It comes down to this," concluded Reynolds. "We're going to have to take St. Joe's out of their game somewhat."
"If we both play up to our capabilities, then it should be a real good game," squared Lynam. "Even though Penn lost a couple times of late, we're both young teams trying to the right direction. One of us is gonna or continue to lose. But, who knows?

MENTION—There's something coming from the off sports section that only you can do something about—your name. It's about that John A. Paulson, who wrote the rest of the famous DP-SPORTS SCRIBES bylines. Agree? Of course. Now just follow through on that idea and submit for the DP offers, if it's still wanted. With upsets and outright slaughter to offer, the week-end press or the sport section will have you in print in no time:

VOLETTING—Those aren't the only outside, but the UNITED STATES men's basketball team wasn't the only outside, but the UNITED STATES men's basketball team was making news at the Palestra. Saturday, the Palestra was packed with people viewing the United States men's basketball team's victory over the Red and Blue in a triple-meet.

The Quakers will attempt to bounce back from Saturday's tri-meet, a 40 defeat at the hands of the Wildcat swimmers, has a strong team, according to Villanova's coach, but it is smaller and older than the Quakers. The pool at Villanova is a far cry from the famous DP SPORTS SCRIBES bylines. Agree? Of course. Now just follow through on that idea and submit for the DP offers, if it's still wanted. With upsets and outright slaughter to offer, the week-end press or the sport section will have you in print in no time:

BEATING—That's what the PENN ICE HOCKEY CLUB has given to each player this year. The team has been undefeated in its six games, with a total of 35 points and a perfect 0-0-0 record.

The team has been working hard throughout the season, practicing daily and preparing for each game. The players have been focused on their performance, and the team has been showing great progress. The coach, Mr. John Brown, has been pleased with the team's performance so far and is looking forward to the rest of the season.

The team's next game is scheduled for Saturday, where they will face a tough challenge against their rival team. The coach has been emphasizing the importance of teamwork and communication in each practice session, and the players are looking forward to the challenge.

The team's success so far can be attributed to their hard work and dedication. They have been practicing consistently and have been working on their individual skills as well as their team strategies. The coach has been guiding them through each practice session, and the players have been responding positively.
