New DP Board To Be Installed

By ERIC JACOBS

The Daily Pennsylvania will never be the same again. It will contain a new National News Bureau, a new Business Office, and an improved website. It will even have a new computer system.

The new equipment features an 11-page layout of the News Bureau, a new computer system, and a new typesetting machine.

The new computer system will make typesetters at the DP virtually obsolete, replacing them with computer terminals at reporters and editors. The new equipment, which will be in operation by the start of the fall semester, will streamline the production process and eliminate the tedious jobs of retyping and error-checking.

Not only will the new computer system streamline operations, but it will also provide valuable training and experience for the students interviewed in an informal survey. Many said they felt Carter's move was in the public's best interest. Echoing the sentiments of his parents, who characterizes himself as a "slightly liberal," said that although he doesn't think Carter's move was in the public's best interest, he would be willing to follow through with it.

Students interviewed at unannounced times seemed to have mixed feelings on the need to reinstate the selective service. Some said they agreed with Carter that it is in the public's best interest, while others felt that it is not. If that were to happen, the selective service system would be implemented in the near future, the selective service administration said. How many students interviewed are unsure of the meaning of the problem and how many believe that a move was necessary? "I agree with Carter. I think there should always be a selective service system," said one student.

One student who was interviewed, however, said that he felt the move was no longer justified by the circumstances. "I don't know what the draft is anymore," said another. "I'm not sure what we're trying to do anymore."

More people who want to be drafted today in the days of peace may be more interested in the public's best interest than in the public's best interest.

Reaction Mixed On Registration

By ANDREW KIBERTA

An average freshman at the University today doesn't want to be drafted unless he is drafted for the chancellorship at Berkeley. He doesn't want to be drafted unless it is for the chancellorship at Berkeley. He doesn't want to be drafted unless it is for the chancellorship at Berkeley.

"I'm not sure what the draft is anymore," said one student. "I'm not sure what we're trying to do anymore."
Russians Assail U.S. Interests

In a response to President Carter's State of the Union address, the Soviet Union accused the US of wanting to remain the world's only super power. The Soviet envoy to the US, Mr. Vasily, said: "Our countries have a common interest in maintaining peace and stability in the world."

CARTER'S INTERESTS

The Soviet mission insisted that the US should respect the interests of the other countries in the world. They also said that the US should stop trying to impose their policies on other countries. The Soviet envoy added: "We believe that the US should work towards a world where all countries can live in peace and prosperity."
Thoroughness, Dynamism Rocket Stevenson to Top Position on DP

By GREG MANNING

The first story Dick Stevenson ever wrote for The Daily Pennsylvanian came during the second semester of his freshman year. It was a feeling major and professor, and I was looking for something else to do. So I came up to the DP. Someone told me your name and phone number, and I never got called,” Breen, 20, said.

The following semester was much better for "October story on the University's run-up to graduation," he said. "I covered the DP from the Inman beginning, the soft-tissue junior (now an English major) rose rapidly through the ranks of the DP staff, and in February of his freshman year he was appointed to the position of the first story and continued through numerous articles on sport and news subjects.

Stevenson began working for the paper the year he joined the University’s varsity track team. He later moved to the Wharton School, and has not yet completed his degree in accounting.

Benowitz, a psychology major, is in her second year of a master’s degree at the New School for Social Research. Although she entered the program as a part-time student, she has been at full-time status for five months. She is planning to complete the program in one year.

As the story moved over to news, Stevenson began working on stories that dealt with the University’s relationship with the city. One such story dealt with the University’s involvement in the construction of the new student center. Stevenson worked on this story for several weeks and was able to verify and report that the man being considered was indeed Charles Harris, the former athletic director at the University of California, Berkeley.

Alas To Take Charge of Campus Advertising

In his new post, the Ware College Student Association president and registered architect, Breen will be in charge of the DP’s advertising department. His duties will include the supervision of the advertising staff, the development of advertising campaigns, and the coordination of advertising efforts with other DP departments.

"I wasn’t interested in ads," he said. "I didn’t want to be the ad man. I wanted to be the DP man. But now I see that ads can be a real asset to a newspaper."

Breen began his work at the DP during his freshman year, when he was appointed to the position of City Editor. He later moved to the position of Managing Editor, where he worked for several years. He is currently the DP’s Managing Editor.

Making the Grade on Credit Ratings

By John Reiss

A good credit rating is an asset which you must protect carefully. If you slip up once it could affect your ability to purchase a home or car, enter college, or even get a job. The way you repay your debts can affect your ability to get a loan or mortgage. Credit can be a valuable tool which can readily be abused by the unwary.

There are many ways to build up a positive credit rating. A checking or savings account, paying your bills on time, and being careful about how you use your credit card can all contribute to a better credit rating. The most important thing is to repay your debts on time. If you find an error, the bureau must be notified and the error corrected. If you are turned down for a loan, you should request a copy of your credit report to see if there is an error.

A credit report is a record of your credit history. It includes information on how you have repaid your debts, how many accounts you have and how much you owe. If you find an error, you should file a complaint with the credit bureau. The bureau must investigate the claim and correct any errors.

Some of the information in a credit report may be inaccurate. If you are turned down for a loan, you should request a copy of your credit report to see if there is an error. You should file a complaint with the credit bureau. The bureau must investigate the claim and correct any errors.

Career Day To Start Next Week

Career Day, traditionally a one-day opportunity for students to learn about different careers, will begin next week. The event will be sponsored by the Student Life Office and will be held in the Student Center on Tuesday, March 1.

Students will have the opportunity to visit various booths set up by employers from a variety of industries. The booths will be open from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Tuesday, March 1.

The event will be open to all students, regardless of their major. It is expected to attract a large number of students, as many are interested in exploring new career options.

In addition to visiting the booths, students will have the opportunity to attend seminars and workshops throughout the day. The seminars will cover a wide range of topics, including industry trends, job hunting strategies, and career development.

Overall, Career Day is a great opportunity for students to gain valuable insights and make informed decisions about their future careers. It is highly recommended that all students attend.

The facts are startling. Experts estimate that about half of all automobile occupant fatalities last year might have been avoided if the people had been wearing seat belts. That's because injuries occur when the car stops abruptly and the occupants are thrown against the car's interior. Belts prevent this.

Many people say they know the facts, but they still don't use seat belts. Their reasons run all over the lot: seat belts are uncomfortable. Some people even think getting hurt or killed in a car accident is a question of fate; and therefore, seat belts don't matter.

If you're one of those people who don't use seat belts for one reason or another, please think carefully about your motivations. Are your objections to seat belts based on the facts or on rationalizations? Here are a few of the common rationalizations.

Many people say they are afraid of being trapped in a car by a seat belt. In fact, in the vast majority of cases seat belts protect passengers from severe injuries, allowing them to escape more quickly. Another popular rationalization is that you'd be saved by being thrown clear of the car. Here again, research has proved that to be untrue—you are almost always safer inside the car.

Some people say seat belts for highway driving, but realize it's not worth the trouble to buckle up for short trips. The number of deaths is a different story: 80% of all automobile accidents causing injury or death involve cars traveling under 40 miles per hour. And three quarters of injury or death involve cars traveling under 40 miles per hour. And three quarters of injury or death involve cars traveling under 40 miles per hour.
Registration Reaction

"It would take six months to organize an registration," he said. "Without it, it possibility of college deferments, Bok too long."

"I don't think we should get a special deferment. I don't think deferments are fair. I think they're age in the ghetto," he said. "I think we don't have a special deferment, but I think the students have a right to be heard."

"The issue is, Bok said he would be ready to break just because we can afford to go here."

"There ought to be a response to us by the State Department," he said. "The only way we can make it longer is by the Selective Service." He said. "We have to do something about the Selective Service."
