Dissident Sakharov Speaks on Issues

The following story was compiled from transcripts of an interview between Radio Moscow and Andrei Sakharov. Sakharov is a Soviet physicist who has worked as a political dissident.

Sakharov was asked about the increase in political dissent in the Soviet Union. He said, "The increase in political dissent is a natural response to the lack of political freedom. The people are tired of living in a one-party state."

He went on to say, "The Soviet government has been using force to suppress dissent. This is not a healthy situation. It is important for the Soviet government to recognize the legitimacy of political dissent and to engage in meaningful dialogue with the people."

Sakharov also discussed the importance of economic freedom. He said, "The Soviet people are tired of living in a poverty-stricken society. The government must prioritize economic reform to address the needs of the people."

He concluded by saying, "I am hopeful that the Soviet government will listen to the people and make the necessary changes. The people have the right to demand a better future."

Bani Sadr Sworn In

Teheran, Iran - Ahmad Bani Sadr became Iran's first president last week to the public applause and support of the ruling Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini. Bani Sadr pledged to rid the government of thousands of years of corruption and to establish a new order. He also pledged to work to alleviate the problems of the poor and oppressed.

During his brief tenure as Iran's foreign minister last fall, Bani Sadr was a more moderate approach to foreign policy than his successor, Sadegh Ghotbzadeh had.

Exchange Between Law School, University of Paris II Arranged

By LARRY NOVIKOFF

A formal agreement of "educational cooperation" was signed yesterday by President Martin Meyerson and University of Paris II President Jacques Robert, providing for the exchange of faculty and students from the Law School and the French University.

Law School Dean James Freedman, who conducted the ceremony, said it marked "a most joyous moment in the history of this university." "Educational cooperation" was signed two years ago it was a common practice of discussion. Between "law school scholars" which begins in November, 1978, between University Professors George L. Haskins and George Meidell and Dean-President Berthold Goldpin of Paris II. "We are obviously very pleased with this," said Freedman. "We proved that this is a very fruitful exchange. We have encouraged members of the faculty and exceptional students to take full advantage of this exciting opportunity." A similar agreement between the University and the University of Paris II (formerly the Sorbonne) was signed in May when the exchange of students has been continued. "It is only a minor increase due to lack of student and faculty interest. Freedman said that he is scheduled to talk with President Robert today regarding implementation of the exchange program. "We are hopeful that exchanges will begin to occur very soon." The ceremony was attended by many of the deans and high members of the University administration. Meyerson, Robert and Gregorian each spoke about the long relationship between the University and France. Freeman, the University President, Gregorian, Franklin was the host of French society. In 1776, the University presented an honorary degree to French President Valeryiscard d'Estaing.

It was in the University Pitball Hall of Fame that I first met the legendary former star of our Debaters, Ms. Jennifer Jansen, who now resides in the quarters of the Internal Affairs Department. It was she who, in her long and illustrious career, had compiled a record of 135-25 in the game of - "Flying the Ball", as she liked to call it. In a recent interview, she reminisced about the days of yore when her team had proven to be the most formidable force in the land. "When I think back," she said, "I remember the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat. It was the game that both defined and reflected the spirit of the times."

Herb Berman, the managing editor of the University Daily Pennsylvanian, was struck by the solution

In 1987, the University Daily Pennsylvanian had announced a new "Letters to the Editor" section, which quickly gained popularity among the student body. The section was seen as a platform for students to express their opinions, concerns, and ideas on various topics. The following letter was one of the many that were published in the section:

"The shah roasted our young people and their future. He killed them in cold blood with no regard for the laws of the land. They were innocent, and they should not have been punished."

By Dick Stevenson

"The crimes and atrocities are well known to the world. The Shah and his regime are responsible for the deaths of thousands of innocent children, youth and adults, and for more torture torture by whatever means."

As the winter semester draws to a close, the university has been under intense scrutiny due to the recent events in Iran. The university administration and the students of the University of Pennsylvania have been working closely together to ensure the safety and well-being of our community.

The university administration has been proactive in implementing measures to prevent any further incidents from occurring. They have increased security measures, worked closely with law enforcement agencies, and provided additional resources to support the community.

At the same time, the students of the University of Pennsylvania have been very active in voicing their concerns and demands for change. They have organized protests and vigils in support of the plight of the Iranian people.

Letters to the Editor is your platform to share your thoughts and opinions on important issues. Please feel free to submit your own letters or comments on this topic or any other matter that you feel passionate about.

By Jim Perry

"The citizens and athletes are well aware of the current situation and its consequences. We urge the university administration to take immediate action to ensure the safety and well-being of all students."

Penn, Princeton Again Atop Pack

By BRAD LEBO

Penn's women's swimmers are looking for a strong showing tonight. "We need to put our best swimmer at all the events," said coach coworker, 1980 and 1981 when no one could have forecasted what happened," she said.

"We're going to take it as it comes," said coach Duncan of the Quakers. "We have a good team, and we're ready to go."
