Hundreds Assemble For Anti-Draft Rally

BY ADAM MILLER

The large crowd was there. The chants "No war!" and "This is our time!" echoed in the soft breeze, as the Silent Sentinels paraded by. As the sun set behind the trees, the marchers felt a surge of energy.

"This is the largest response that we've ever seen," said one of the organizers.

The war rally was more than just a protest. It was a statement that the people had had enough. "We need to fight for peace," one participant said.

An estimated 300 people gathered yesterday afternoon for the rally, which was organized by the Penn Peace Action Coalition. "We wanted to show our support for the anti-war movement," said the organizer.

The rally included speeches from various speakers, including a professor of law. "We need to consider the legal implications of the war," he said.

A similar rally was held in Washington yesterday, and anti-war sentiment was there. "We need to end the war," said another participant.

The rally lasted for several hours, culminating in a die-in. "It was an emotional moment," said one organizer.

The rally was a success, and organizers plan on holding more events in the future. "We need to keep up the momentum," said one participant.

The Un-United Way

By Richard E. Gordon

In the summer of 1984, the United Way of Southwestern Pennsylvania announced that it had collected $26.4 million for more than 300 agencies. Although it is quite clear that the United Way contract with the Archdiocese of Pittsburgh is the one most often cited as a model of "absolutely clear and forthright language," it is also the one most often misused.

The United Way contract with the Archdiocese is not, for example, a model of "a no strings attached gift of money, 100 percent of which goes to a singular purpose." It is, in fact, a severely complicated arrangement that is not really even coordinated with the Archdiocese's efforts to raise money. In effect, the United Way has turned over to the Archdiocese the management of its fundraising efforts.

The United Way's financial arrangements with the Archdiocese are not unusual. In fact, they are standard practice in the United Way system. The United Way is a fundraising arm of the American branch of the United Nations. It has been in existence for over a century and continues to raise money for charitable organizations.

The United Way's contract with the Archdiocese is just one example of a fundraising strategy that is widespread throughout the United Way system. The United Way system is designed to raise money for charitable organizations and to distribute those funds to the organizations that need them the most.

Unfortunately, it is impractical for the United Way to have a system that is completely transparent. The United Way's system is designed to raise money for charitable organizations and to distribute those funds to the organizations that need them the most.

The statements which follow are the texts of documents which informed the administrative action taken with respect to Kappa Sigma Fraternity. The first statement is an integral part of the settlement of the issue of September 27th. Two others were added to consistent with the settlement of October 31st. Third is the report of the findings of the University judicial inquiry by Karen Gaines [who served as temporary judicial inquiry officer since the University's regular judicial officer was on extended leave]. Fourth is the report of the conclusions of the administrative review of Kappa Sigma Fraternity by Martin Stamm, Director of the Office of the Vice Provost for University Life. We present these statements here in the light of the previous administrative warning to the fraternity for disciplinary violations.

We are presenting these reports in their entirety in the Daily Pennsylvanian and in Almanac to inform the University community of the disposition of serious incidents which have been the source of widespread concern and speculation.

Vice Provost for University Life

Two Statements on Standards

1. From Kappa Sigma Fraternity

Members of the University's chapter of Kappa Sigma fraternity have issued the following statement as part of the settlement reached to the issue of September 27, 1979.

The brothers of Kappa Sigma regret the incident of October 31, 1979, in which a member of our House, without intending any offense, wore a costume based on that of the Ku Klux Klan.

We recognize, however, that the KKK and its members are not the same thing. In addition, we maintain that standards of acceptable conduct and behavior for our members should be the same whether in or out of the fraternity. We pledge that our brotherhood will not tolerate any form of intolerance or discrimination based on race, religion or any other factor.

We further recognize the implications of the costumes which we considered as a fraternity function. The members of the fraternity are committed to the belief that the Ku Klux Klan is a repugnant organization and that the University should not tolerate any form of intolerance or discrimination.

We commit ourselves to the belief that the University abhors racism of any kind. We are committed to the belief that the University abhors racism of any kind.

W.E.B. Du Bois once wrote: "We cannot evolve a world of brotherhood until we have learned to comprehend the existence of the black race."

2. From the Vice Provost for University Life

On December 7, 1979, Provost Varian congratulated the board on standards and University standards which are part of the

I. Incident of September 27, 1979

The University administration has been informed about an incident involving a black undergraduate of this University who was visited by members of the Kappa Sigma fraternity at the University's fraternity house.

The incident involved a costume based on the Ku Klux Klan and was worn by a member of the fraternity. The member who wore the costume, however, was never seen by the black undergraduate or any other person.

The member who wore the costume was suspended from the fraternity for 90 days and was required to write a statement along these lines, and the complainant has accepted it. It is our understanding that the University community to understand that he had no purpose except to put together what he wanted in his own house. This attracted several undergraduates who entered the house and the member who wore the costume was removed.

II. Incident of October 31, 1979

The two alumni being outside the University's jurisdiction, their part in the incident is referred to the Vice Provost for University Life for their part in the incident.

Area Students to Attend HUP Nutrition Workshop

Students from several Philadelphia area health schools will attend a workshop on nutrition funded by a small grant to the Pennsylvania Education Center at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania. The three-year grant from the health systems administration, including the Health Services Administration, Education, and Welfare, was originated for curriculum development and will be used for research as well as the operating workshops.

The series, "Clinical Nutrition in an Institutional Setting," includes three workshops, two from the University as well as two from the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy and Science. Dietary students at Drexel University, and social workers, are highly encouraged to attend the program, especially because it's national in scope and locale.

The Council of University Scholars

Is Now Accepting Nominations To The

UNIVERSITY SCHOLARS PROGRAM

FOR SPRING 1980

Students presently enrolled at the University of Pennsylvania who have exceptional academic talent, a mature plan of study, and aspirations for a career of scholarship and service are eligible to participate in the University Scholars Program—a program which exists to enable Pennsylvania's most talented students to enroll simultaneously for an undergraduate degree and for advanced study in a graduate or professional school. Future freshmen may also be considered by the Council if they meet Program prerequisites.

Students who wish to apply to the Program must acquire a faculty sponsor. The sponsor, who should be closely acquainted with the student, nominates the student to the Council of University Scholars. A faculty member might also initiate the nomination process. Seniors will not be considered, and nominees should not be more advanced than the first semester of their junior year. Faculty members should reserve the nomination privilege for the truly superior student.

Nominations may be picked up on the 3rd floor, 3533 Locust Walk, and questions may be directed to Ed Stafford, 243-0860. Spring Term nominations must be completed by February 25, 1980.
