U. Council to Address Foreign Grant Policy Today

By ROE WERKER

Debate on the issue of foreign sponsored research at the University is scheduled to continue today at the meeting of the University Council.

The Council plans to further discuss the proposed guidelines on University policy concerning sponsored research. The issue was raised at the February council meeting, and the guidelines have been published for review by the University community.

The proposed guidelines reflect existing University policies, but they deal with research grants from foreign sponsors. The guidelines were published to ensure clarity in the conduct of research that is sponsored by non-U.S. sources. The guidelines seek to prevent conflicts of interest and to ensure that all research is conducted with high ethical standards.

Dental Students Prefer New Long Range Plan

By ELAINE SONG

Despite the large number of controversial problems, dental students have found that close intellectual contact and student interaction within the Dental School’s long range plan have made their dental education a superior one. The program emphasizes in-classroom clinical components, and include faculty-student interaction is actively encouraged.

The dental school’s ten year plan for its four doctoral programs was unveiled last month. The plan is designed to meet the needs of dental students by providing a comprehensive education in all aspects of dentistry. The plan is divided into four phases, each with specific goals and objectives. The phases are: preclinical education, clinical education, research, and professional development.

During the preclinical phase, students will receive a broad foundation in basic sciences and preclinical skills. The clinical phase will focus on patient care, with an emphasis on hands-on experience. Research opportunities will be provided in the form of research projects and thesis work. Finally, the professional development phase will include courses in professional ethics, legal issues, and business management.

The program will also allow students to specialize in a particular area of dentistry, with options such as oral surgery, orthodontics, and endodontics. Students will have the opportunity to choose from a wide range of elective courses and to participate in extracurricular activities.

Reagan, Carter Triumphant

In Decisive Ill. Primary

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

CHICAGO (AP) - Ronald Reagan capped his 37-year political career in Illinois Tuesday night and captured the state for the first time in 12 years.

Reagan, the 63-year-old former governor, won a landslide victory over Democratic Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, 52-year-old son of the late Illinois Governor and former Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson.

Reagan garnered 1,095,420 votes, or 69 percent of the total, to Stevenson's 507,019, or 31 percent. The campaign was the most expensive in Illinois history, with both candidates blanketing the state with television commercials.

Reagan, who had run for President in 1976, had launched another bid for the White House in 1980. He won the Illinois primary in 1980, but lost the nomination to Jimmy Carter.

Now a leading contender for the Republican nomination, Reagan could use the Illinois victory as a springboard to the nomination at the Republican convention in August.

Reagan's victory over Stevenson was a resounding victory for conservative candidates in the country. It was a significant win for Republican candidates in other primaries in the Midwest and East. Carter, who was leading in the polls, did not do as well as expected.

Carter, who ran strong in the West and South, was swamped by Reagan in Illinois.

Med School Students Unfavorable to thering

By ROY R. WING

Dentistry students at the University of Illinois are not enthusiastic about the proposed changes in the school’s model program. The response is not surprising, as the earlier plan was met with mixed reviews.

The original plan called for offering an alternative program, Model B, to the current program, Model A. Two weeks of deliberations have been held, during which the students have had the opportunity to give their input.

Like the original proposal, the new plan includes a four-year curriculum, with no additional time required. The key difference is that the new plan involves fewer afternoons in the dental clinic, leaving time for electives and other educational opportunities.

Unlike the previous plan, the new plan does not offer a practicum after graduation, which some students feel is necessary for a well-rounded education. It also does not offer the opportunity for students to take more than one elective, which is a popular option for many students.

Unlike the original plan, the new plan does not offer the option for students to graduate early, which is a major concern for many students. It also does not offer the opportunity for students to take a longer time to complete their education, which is a popular option for many students.

Freud Changes Stance TEHRAN - Iran's Revolutionary Council ordered an investigation into cases of judicial killings today and, in apparent recognition of the parlamentarian's decision, reversed its earlier decision to allow executions.

Most of the Jewish refugees who fled to the Soviet Union are returning to Iran, the Radio Free Europe correspondent in Moscow said today. There are reports that the Soviet Union's returnees were forced to leave their homes and that the refugees are being imprisoned.

The U.S. is considering withdrawin from Iran, but the Soviet Union is said to be ready to co-operate with the U.S. in the Middle East. The Soviets are also said to be interested in a resolution of the Middle East situation.

Carter Bars Exports to USSR

WASHINGTON - In an extraordinary action to close off the Soviet Union's avenues of export, the Senate yesterday voted to bar the export of all export-related services, technology and new machines to the Soviet Union.

This action is intended to be a part of a series of steps to tighten economic sanctions against the Soviet Union, which are now under review by the Senate.

Prime Rate Reaches 19%

NEW YORK - The government's tight-money policy has driven the cost of borrowing for the fifth time in three months. One-month prime lending rate yesterday.

The increase is one result of the strong economy, with concern mounting over inflation. The prime rate is expected to rise to 18% in the next few months.

Senatorial Candidate Mzvinsky Addresses Issues in Campus Talk

By APPROXITE VALLARAS

Candidates for Pennsylvania's 1st Congressional District, Sen. Harris W. Mezvinsky, told students at a recent forum that the country's political system is ripe for election reform.

"It's been a wild, crazy year, which will only get worse, people and politicians are in a rut, a rut that is preordained," Mezvinsky said in McKeesport Hall.

"We've got to think of some new political system, a new political system before we can have our country back," Mezvinsky declared.

"I think this country's ripe for a change," Mezvinsky added.

A former Iowa congressman who now resides in suburban Philadelphia, Mezvinsky is a Democratic consultant.

"If you're not in the best of health, you're not in the best of shape, but you're doing the best you can," Mezvinsky said in his opening remarks.

"I'm not sure if you're doing the best you can, but you're doing the best you can," Mezvinsky said.

He also said that Carter's budget-cutting measures will remove all obstacles in the way of a new political system.

"We've got to get past some of the obstacles, and the way to do it is to fight those policies, Mezvinsky said.

Love Letters

By KATHRYN LINDSAY

A week ago, I had the pleasure of being a part of the committee in charge of the Love Letters reading this past weekend. The event, based on letters written to a loved one, was a beautiful and touching tribute to the power of love. It was a wonderful experience to be a part of creating something so meaningful and emotional. Love Letters is a reminder of the power of human connection and the importance of expressing love and appreciation to those we care about.

The University of Pennsylvania Energy Coalition to the President

Dear President FAS:

The University of Pennsylvania has an obligation to its students and to the larger community to promote an energetic conservation movement. Conservation is not just a matter of moral concern; it is also a matter of national security and economic necessity. The current energy situation demands that we act now to conserve energy.

If we do not act now, the consequences will be severe. The energy crisis will have a profound impact on our ability to meet the needs of the 21st century. Conservation is not just a matter of saving energy; it is also a matter of saving our future.

The University of Pennsylvania has a significant role to play in this effort. As a leading educational institution, we have an obligation to lead by example. We can set a positive example by reducing our energy consumption and by encouraging others to do the same.

We urge you to take immediate action to reduce energy consumption at the University. We suggest the following measures:

1. Reduce lighting levels in buildings where possible.
2. Encourage the use of energy-efficient appliances.
3. Encourage the use of public transportation.

We believe that these measures are within the University's control and can be implemented immediately. We urge you to consider these suggestions and to take action to conserve energy.

Sincerely yours,

The subject of abortion brought varied responses across the nation. Overwhelmingly, 68 percent of the freshmen men smoked cigarettes as opposed to 16.7 percent of freshmen women. In highly selective universities, 1.5 percent of the men and 0.01 percent of the women smoked cigarettes. There was a drastic reduction among the better students in the country. The survey also revealed that almost 90 percent of students entering college in 1979 smoked at some time during the past year.

The survey was conducted in the fall of 1979 to determine the experiences of the American youth. The CIRP staff stated that the survey was the first attempt to present the habits and trends of college freshmen.

There was discussion on the University's policies and programs during the meeting. The faculty discussed the need for better planning and coordination of activities.

The meeting also discussed the need for better planning and coordination of activities. The faculty expressed concern about the lack of communication between departments and the administration.

There was a need for a stronger commitment to diversity and inclusion in all aspects of the University's operations. It was evident that there was a growing awareness of the importance of diversity and inclusion among the faculty and staff.

The meeting concluded with a call for action to address the issues discussed. There was a need for more resources and support to develop effective strategies for diversity and inclusion.

The meeting was well attended, and the faculty and staff were engaged in the discussions. It was clear that there was a strong commitment to making progress in this important area.

The College of General Studies has been awarded several grants totaling $1,142,000 to develop a new lecture series which will explore how contemporary social values influence developments in science, technology, and medicine.

Patricia Wend, assistant professor of history and sociology of science, will examine the role of science in the formative years of corporate America and the role of social values in the development of science. Technology, and Medicine. which will begin in October 1979 and run until May 1981. Wend is also the program administrator.

According to Caridi, societal assumptions may not only influence what developments occur, but also how they are perceived and utilized. International events from areas such as Europe and the Middle East will influence the series during the summer. Program planners said they hope that the speeches could attract other organizations and that the series will be expanded to a national program.

Local radio and college programming may also broadcast the series, according to Caridi. Televised coverage of the series is being planned.

Army and Navy Driving For Wins: Do Not Enter

When the Army-Navy Athletic Directors met at the end of this month, the driving issue at hand will be the continuation of the football rivalry. The two institutions will determine whether the game will be held at all, when it will be held, and where it will be held.

The matter was right there. As Director at Air Force United Press noted, "if we say no, it will go with the Navy. But if we think it will go, we have to think that Navy will go too."

If the Navy doesn't agree that there will be a game, then the Army-Navy game will be canceled. This is the only way that the game will be canceled. The Army-Navy game has been held every year since its inception, except during World War II.

The other development at the meeting was that the Army and Navy Athletic Directors have agreed to reduce the number of players allowed on the field to 100. This will be done in order to reduce the risk of injury and to maintain the quality of the game. The reduction will be implemented immediately for the 2019 season.
