Faculty Urged to Follow OMB A-21 Regulations

SCOTT HELLER

Vice President and Secretary of the Board of Governors, Louis Goldberg, advised an assembled faculty meeting at 3:15 yesterday afternoon that the university must comply with a recent ruling of the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) regarding a circular OMB A-21. Goldberg recommended that the university now begin to comply with the requirements of the circular.

"We need to comply by filling out the forms," he said, "or else we will be subject to an audit and a possible default on our debt." Goldberg urged all faculty members to complete the forms.

New Scanning Process Reveals Brain's Secrets

By SIG WERER

The brain scanner that will revolutionize brain research has been developed at the university. The brain scanner uses a new scanning process that reveals the brain's secrets.

"It is a fantastic new scanning process that reveals the brain's secrets," said Dr. Martin Lerner, a professor of radiology at the university. "The scanner is used to detect abnormalities in the brain, and it is a revolutionary new tool that will help us understand the brain's secrets."

Iranian Hostage Crisis

WASHINGTON - President Carter has delayed taking further positive action against Iran after a presidential meeting with the hostage-takers. During the meeting, the hostage-takers expanded their demands to include the resignation of President Khwan, the return of American citizens to Iran, and the end of the embargo on Iranian oil. Carter announced that he would not sign any more sanctions against Iran, but that he would continue to monitor the situation closely.

Radio Revue Featuring the Firesign offers a taste of the bluesier side of the Choo, and other famous tunes. Various clubs around campus. Pianist vivacious Pennultimettes, who are "Shadow" in the upcoming "In the Mwi," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo" (Julie Benigni, Mauri Cummins, Bradshaw, and Brian Donocoff as Billie Holliday). The staging of the show promises to be structured framework of varied effects: music, sound, and the Brecker Brothers. The release described the group. The climax of the show is The Lyric's singing approach to the experience. Klinefelter has been playing for 27 years. According to Alper, the Firesign describes the group. The group describes its goal as "developing the concept to its limit and sharing it with other people." They add that this goal is sought through a variety of media: original and standard jazz compositions. They primarily use acoustic instrumentations, horns, and drums. The people who play these instrument compositions have a variety of techniques. The group's press release describes its goal as "known for his singing approach to the fear." Much of the group's composing is done by Klinefelter who is called "a listening drummer who cares as much about the melody and harmony as about the rhythm." He studied percussion under great jazz drummers.

Jazz Will Strike Bowl Room

Mark Kramer has been playing for 27 years. He has used his percussion studio, which includes playing the vibes, to work his way through college, graduate and medical school. The week-end that music will work into Annenberg Hall's Bowl Room at the Philanthropist sponsors a performance by the Mark Kramer Trio. The group, which includes Kramer, bass-player Paul Eichler and drummer Mike Dougherty, was formed in September 1979. "A very provocative" quartet, according to Jeffrey N. Lam, Philanthropist's director described the group.

Letters to the Editor

Black is Only a Skin Color

In the January 4 issue, the Daily Pennsylvanian ran an opinion piece titled "Letters to the Editor: Black is Only a Skin Color." In this article, the author, who is anonymous, discusses the problematic nature of race and skin color as the sole basis for identity and social status. The author argues that the use of skin color as a basis for identifying race is inaccurate and perpetuates harmful stereotypes.

The article states, "Skin color is not an indicator of race. Race is a social construct that has been used to classify people based on physical characteristics. Skin color is not a valid measure of race, and it is used to maintain power and control over marginalized groups."

The author also emphasizes the importance of recognizing the complexity of race and its intersection with other identity factors such as gender, class, and socioeconomic status.

The article calls for a shift in the way we think about race and skin color, advocating for a more nuanced understanding that takes into account the multifaceted nature of identity.

His counselor could have helped.
If he'd only asked. You see, that's what counselors are for. They can help you plan your career before you graduate. Which, of course, helps supplement your college newspaper from Ford.
We'll tell you now counselors can help take the mystery out of planning a successful career. By figuring out what you're best suited for... and then helping you go after it. Success doesn't have to be a big secret...if you plan it right.

And while you're checking out the next issue of "Insider" be sure to check out Ford's exciting lineup for 1980. They've got some great ideas for getting you wherever you're going, in style.

"Insider"--Ford's continuing series of college newspaper supplements is coming next week. Look for it.

Philanthropy Management Associates (PMA) in September, 1979. PMA was hired to establish the campaign's Telefund program, which employs students to solicit funds from alumni.

Program coordinators have devised a plan that will, barring any major economic catastrophes, pay off the debt by fiscal year 1985.

The operating costs, originally figured at about $5 million, were slated to have been paid off from a combination of interest, investments and direct gifts to support the program. The assumption that donors would contribute directly to the program was termed "ambitious" by Strauss, and these donations fell significantly short of their expectations. This left the University with a sizable and unexpected debt, Strauss said, as little as possible of which is to be incorporated into the operating budget.

The latest figures in the overall drive, as of March 31, indicate that the University has amassed more than $237 million, which represents in excess of 93 percent of the total goal.

Attention Seniors and Members of the University Community

You listened to the ILGWU.

Now come and hear the Working Employees themselves discuss the Cotrell & Leonard Cap & Gown labor dispute.

The majority of Cotrell & Leonard employees are working and not on strike. Of the 62 employees now working, 85% have been with the company for many years 10-20-30-40. We want a national labor relations board election to decide the question of union representation. The ILGWU has singlehandedly blocked the holding of this election to determine if the majority of Cotrell & Leonard employees support the ILGWU. We’ve risen up against these ILGWU tactics - we’ve written letters, passed out leaflets on the streets, and picketed the union hall. Please be fair and listen to OUR side.

Representatives of the Cotrell & Leonard working employees will be available to speak with members of the University community Thursday, April 3, between 3-4 pm. An open forum will be held at 7-9 pm. All at Bishop White Room, Second Floor, Houston Hall.

Come and hear the working employees side.

The dead octopus which found its way onto the corner of 37th and Locust on Monday and on the front page of yesterday's DP was never meant to reach anybody's dinner table. Our fine eight legged friend was purchased at the Italian market on Sunday for use in an initiation for the pledges of Theta Xi.

A brother said that there is a sacred secret behind the octopus which can't be revealed unless one becomes a brother. They were done with the sea animal on Sunday, but put it on the walk on Monday because "we just wanted the whole world to see it," he added.

Someone else took it away.

No Beating Around The Bush

We wonder if General Counsel Stephen Burbank has the same ambitions as the man he is replacing at Phillips Academy. Burbank recently became a charter trustee of the Andover, Massachusetts boarding school, but we'll be watching him in the future. He is filling the shoes of former CIA director George Bush, who resigned his trusteeship to run for President.

By SCOTT LEMAYFORD

The men's lacrosse program will have to face the game's newest entry, the University of Maryland, today.

The game could be a true test of the Red and Blue's sudden rise from doormat to respectability, since they have yet to prove they can win against a top-notch opponent.

To make the Quakers task in Baltimore more difficult, the game reveals their tendency to give in to pressure against elite opponents.

"We've run away as well as we could, but the test for us now is to see how we handle ourselves in a big game," said coach Marcantonio. "We're still playing a bit too much to the pressure of the game, but we're getting better at handling it."

Marcantonio believes the main difference will be in the depth of both teams' rosters. "In some cases, Maryland has a very deep roster, but we have the advantage of having some consistency and it's mostly due to improved play in the backfield area. We've finally playing the way coach good players really want to play," said Marcantonio.

South Jersey native Tommy Towle, the Quakers' leading scorer, has been a constant threat to opposing defenses. "He's been a real key to our success," said Marcantonio. "He's got a great shot and he's been a constant threat throughout the season."

Despite Towle's scoring exploits, Marcantonio remains cautious. "We're still a young team and we have to be careful not to let our guard down," he said. "We've got a tough game ahead of us, but we're ready to face the challenge."

The game will be an important indicator of how far the Quakers have come in their first year under Marcantonio. "We've come a long way since last season," said Marcantonio. "We've got a great group of seniors and we're looking forward to finishing off the season strong."
