Labor Dept. Near Decision On Affirmative Action Plan
By ROBERT E. SHEPARD

The U.S. Labor Department is "going to make a decision" on whether enforcement action should be taken against the University due to inadequacies in its affirmative action plan, a federal official said Friday.

"We have reached the point where we believe we have determined that a specific finding will be submitted with a decision to the university," the official said.

"In the days ahead, we hope to be able to make a decision," the official added.

The official said the university has been given 30 days to respond to the findings.

Affirmative Action Program

The university's affirmative action program has been criticized by the federal government for several years.

The program is designed to ensure that minority and women employees are not discriminated against in hiring, promotion, and other matters.

The university has been under investigation by the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) since 1978.

The EEOC alleges that the university has violated civil rights laws by discriminating against minority and women employees.

The university has denied the charges.

The university is also under investigation by the Office of Federal Contract Compliance Programs (OFCCP) in December 1979.

The OFCCP is a federal agency that ensures that federal contractors and subcontractors comply with civil rights laws.

The OFCCP has the authority to impose penalties on contractors who violate civil rights laws.

The university has stated that it will cooperate with the OFCCP investigation.

If the university is found to have violated civil rights laws, it could be forced to pay damages, issue a public statement, and take corrective action.

From Elections to End of the Line for U.S.

TEHRAN - The Islamic Republic Party which was born from the wide wave of revolutionary movements in Iran has come to the end of the line. The party's leader, Ayatollah Khomeini, has declared that the 1979 revolution is over and that it is time to begin the new order.

Khomeini, in a speech to his followers yesterday,

announced that the Islamic Republic of Iran would be dissolved and that a new government would be formed. He said that the revolution had been accomplished and that it was time to begin the tasks of reconstruction.

The Islamic Republic Party was founded in 1979 by Ayatollah Khomeini, who had returned to Iran from exile in 1979. The party had been the dominant force in Iranian politics

since its inception.

Khomeini's speech was broadcast nationwide

on Iranian state television and radio.

The party's dissolution was announced in a statement by Khomeini, who said that the time had come to move on to the next phase of the revolution.

He said that the new government would be formed by a council of clerics and would include representatives from all factions of Iranian society.

The speech was greeted with cheers and placards by the crowd gathered outside the leadership headquarters.

The Islamic Republic Party had been opposed by Western governments and international organizations, which had accused it of human rights abuses.

The party's dissolution is expected to result in a new phase of politics in Iran,

with the possibility of fresh elections.

The University's Moral Responsibility

By Randall Marks

In a previous editorial, we have argued our case as to the moral responsibility the University has toward the students on campus. The entire issue of moral responsibility has been discussed in seminars and courses throughout the University. The problem of the University's moral responsibility has been a subject for debate in the public arena. The University's moral responsibility is a complex issue and one that cannot be easily answered. However, it is a matter that must be considered.

The University's moral responsibility is a matter of great concern to many students. It is a matter that affects us all. The University's moral responsibility is a matter that must be considered. The University is a place where students can learn and grow. It is a place where students can be exposed to new ideas and ways of thinking. The University is a place where students can be challenged and stimulated. The University is a place where students can be encouraged to think for themselves.

The University's moral responsibility is a matter that must be considered. It is a matter that affects us all. It is a matter that must be considered. It is a matter that must be discussed. It is a matter that must be debated. It is a matter that must be decided.

Attention Seniors and Members of the University Community

You listened to the ILGWU.

Now come and hear the Working Employees themselves discuss the Cotrell & Leonard Cap & Gown labor dispute.

The majority of Cotrell & Leonard employees are working and not on strike. Of the 62 employees now working, 85% have been with the company for many years 10-20-30-40. We want a national labor relations board election to decide the question of union representation. The ILGWU has singlehandedly blocked the holding of this election to determine if the majority of Cotrell & Leonard employees support the ILGWU. We’ve risen up against these ILGWU tactics - we’ve written letters, passed out leaflets on the streets, and picketed the union hall. Please be fair and listen to OUR side.

Representatives of the Cotrell & Leonard working employees will be available to speak with members of the University community Today, April 3, between 3-4 pm. An open forum will be held at 7-9 pm. All at Bishop White Room, Second Floor, Houston Hall.

Come and hear the working employees side.

The Road Back: Laxmen Stick to Basics

By JIM McCracken

Hope to have a good season in 1980, Penn men's lacrosse coach George McCracken is designing his team to avoid the mistakes that cost the Quakers in 1979. "It's one of the things we've discussed throughout the winter," said McCracken. "The goal is to make the four-year success of last year a part of this year's game, too."

MCCracken is the first quaker coach to resign that the Quakers would have had 12 players scoring last year, instead of six. "We're not going to do that again," he said. "This year, we're going to try to average six goals a game." The team will have to improve on the seniors that were the leading scorers in 1979, Bob Schaeffer and Steve Johnson. Schaeffer and Johnson were both All-Americans in 1979 and are expected to be back this year with their scoring ability.

The Quakers hope to have a solid defense this year, with McCracken bringing in a new coach, Bob McCracken, to handle the defense. "We're going to have a strong defense," said McCracken. "We want to hold our opponents to five goals a game, if possible." The team will have to improve on last year's defense, which allowed 11.5 goals a game.

Penn's schedule this year includes games against some of the top teams in the nation, including Johns Hopkins, Duke, and Virginia. "We're going to have to prove ourselves against the best," said McCracken. "If we can hold our own against these teams, we'll be in good shape for the rest of the season." The team will play a total of 15 games, including six home games.

Laxmen Key Wishes on More Than Offense

By JIM McCracken

Although the Penn men's lacrosse team has started the season off well, there is still room for improvement. "We've got a lot of work to do," said Coach George McCracken. "We're not going to be satisfied until we've won the Ivy League championship." The team has already won two games this season, against Pennsylvania and St. Joseph's.

The team has set a goal of scoring 10 goals a game this year. "We're not going to be satisfied until we've scored at least 10 goals a game," said McCracken. "We want to be able to score consistently and put up a good fight against our opponents." The team has already scored 10 or more goals in two games this season.

The team has also set a goal of holding their opponents to five goals a game. "We want to be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game," said McCracken. "We want to be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game." The team has already held their opponents to five goals or less in two games this season.

The team has also set a goal of improving their field hockey game. "We want to improve our field hockey game," said McCracken. "We want to be able to score on penalty shots and be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game." The team has already scored on penalty shots in two games this season.

The team has also set a goal of improving their overall team chemistry. "We want to improve our team chemistry," said McCracken. "We want to be able to play well together and be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game." The team has already shown improvement in team chemistry in two games this season.

The team has also set a goal of improving their overall team fitness. "We want to improve our team fitness," said McCracken. "We want to be able to play well in the field hockey game and be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game." The team has already shown improvement in team fitness in two games this season.

The team has also set a goal of improving their overall team discipline. "We want to improve our team discipline," said McCracken. "We want to be able to play well in the field hockey game and be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game." The team has already shown improvement in team discipline in two games this season.

The team has also set a goal of improving their overall team morale. "We want to improve our team morale," said McCracken. "We want to be able to play well in the field hockey game and be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game." The team has already shown improvement in team morale in two games this season.

The team has also set a goal of improving their overall team confidence. "We want to improve our team confidence," said McCracken. "We want to be able to play well in the field hockey game and be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game." The team has already shown improvement in team confidence in two games this season.

The team has also set a goal of improving their overall team attitude. "We want to improve our team attitude," said McCracken. "We want to be able to play well in the field hockey game and be able to hold our opponents to five goals a game." The team has already shown improvement in team attitude in two games this season.
