Vanished Permit Stamps Plague Finance Students

By JONATHAN SILVERS

What do a frozen mitten and an empty chicken coop have in common? For the students of the University's Finance Department, both are a way of getting their hands on a student finance permit.

Starting Monday, students will no longer be able to buy their own student finance permits at Quirk's Drug Store, where they have been purchased for some time. Instead, the students will have to go to the Student Financial Services office in the basement of the Administration Building.

The change in location is due to the college's decision to centralize all permit stamp sales at one location. The move is expected to save the college money and make it easier for students to purchase permits.

The new location is located in the basement of the Administration Building, next to the registrar's office. It is open Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. and is closed on Saturdays and Sundays.

The student finance department has also made some other changes to its permit system. For example, they have increased the number of permits available to each student and have made it easier for students to renew their permits online.

Despite these changes, students are mixed on their opinion of the new system. Some feel that it is more convenient, while others think it is more confusing.

One student said, "I think it's going to be a hassle. I'm used to just going to Quirk's and getting my permit."

Another student said, "I'm not sure how it's going to work. I hope it's not too complicated.

The new system will be in effect starting Monday, and students are encouraged to come to the Student Financial Services office to purchase their permits as soon as possible.

Mechelle Collins will be the new finance officer of the Student Health Center. Collins has been with the University for several years and has been involved in student affairs.

She replaces Sarah Brown, who has been with the center for three years. Brown will now be the assistant director of the center.

Collins was appointed to the position by the Student Health Services committee, which is made up of faculty members and students. She is also a member of the committee.

Collins said that she is excited to take on the new position and that she looks forward to working with the students.

"I'm really looking forward to getting to know the students and helping them with their needs," she said.

Collins has a master's degree in public health from the University of Pennsylvania. She has also worked at several hospitals in the area.

UA May Call Boycott Of Holiday Classes

By BOB MILLER

The UA Student Assembly may call a boycott of the University's holiday classes after the end of the fall semester.

The assembly is considering the possibility of calling a boycott of the classes, which are scheduled for the weeks of December 16 and 23.

The assembly is concerned about the quality of the classes and the amount of student involvement.

"We feel that the classes are not meeting the needs of the students," said the assembly's president.

The assembly will make a decision about the boycott after the end of the fall semester.

How to Make a Million

(For the first time now you can learn the basics of a financial world that most seniors are not familiar with. seniors are not familiar with. As a summer stock performer, Luchs sang, danced and acted his way through shows like The Daily Pennsylvanian, with his own weekly on Fire Island.

At a time when most seniors are looking for a summer vacation, Luchs was busy planning for his accounting firm. "I've never had the time or money to take a vacation," he said. "It's been priceless."
Ten years ago this month, Martin Meyerson became president of the University of Pennsylvania, stepping into a job that he foundmondsant and the enthusiasm of his many admirers.

Despite Meyerson's accomplishments, it would be unwise to extol the presidency without acknowledging its shortcomings. The tumultuous spring of 1978 is still fresh in everyone's memory to remind us that Martin Meyerson is a popular man on this campus. Broad-minded and rational faculty and student dissatisfaction with the Meyerson administration grew so strong in several years that hostile defections left the place out of the field of Allied Medical Professors, and failure to make affirmative action really work damaged campus sentiments.

Meyerson's style and his decision-making processes are both traditional and cautious. Despite Meyerson should have avoided making tough decisions because it would be too painful for the community, especially when the effect of his actions could not be predicted and his allies could not be relied upon. In fact, he is so eager to please that he will not risk his honors or effectiveness diminished, and his allies will be pressured.

The hardest judgements are imposed on those from whom we expect the most. Martin Meyerson has achieved so much in the last five years, but the bottom line is that Martin Meyerson has brought the University to the brink of greatness. SALT LAKE CITY — The newspaper series "Lou Grant" scored top honors in a nationwide Television Academy Awards last night with five Emmys, including one for star Ed Asner who boycotted the event along with scores of fellow performers in support of striking writers.

The CBS show was named best drama series and won for supporting actress Nancy Marchand, director Roger Young and writer Seth Freeman.

ABC, "The Fonz" collected the Emmy for best comedy series and "Behind the Iron Curtain" as best mini-series or movie of the year.

The "Miracle Worker" was selected as best made-for-commercial feature and the mini-series "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," was named best mini-series or movie by the Academy.

The Dda Awards suffered from the lack of star value, since more winners and presenters decided not to appear.

Student Muggings

Police have asked additional parents at the University area to the request of the Office of Public Safety and that the West Philadelphia detective office will work more closely with students.

SEPTA has also added patrols in the area because of two recent indecent assaults at the subway surface stations at 37th and Spruce Street, they added.

City Teachers’ Walkout Enters Day Seven

By the Associated Press

The seven-day Philadelphia teachers’ strike entered a second week yesterday.

Documents show that 24,000 city workers were scheduled to return to school Thursday after a two-day contract between the city and the Philadelphia Federation of Teachers, which represents between two and three-fourths of teachers.

Residence Promises Room Policies Changes

The University, which recently announced its decision to abandon its random rooming policy this year, according to Residence Living Director Mary Cooper, is now scheduled to have its rooming policy cancelled for today, the second day of classes for 220,000 city students.

Enrollments are no longer needed due to declining city school district figures.

Residence office, Bercman said, and should be in operation by Spring. The system would be similar to the experimental Quad areas where students were chosen and made the decisions themselves.

Another new project started by the Office of Residential Living is a computerized security access system at King’s College.

The security access system is a result of planning by the Campus Police Department and the Department of Residential Living.

"I got a lot of interesting people who are involved in my field, whereas other students have their major not too far away from government," he said. "When one person who's trying to get in the future is the kind of people who you know, assuming, of course, you have good credentials."

Shandler said "knowing people" helped get the internships. He's now waiting to hear back from the New York State Service. Shandler noted that the program also helped him establish "good contacts."

Gridders Have Problems Yet To Be Ironed Out After 34-21 Loss

By MIKE O'CONNELL

SPS Editor

After a week in jail, and two weeks to get over the consequences, Gamble is as smart, knocking on wood. It his team could get winning training camp away without serious injury, it would be a plus.

"There's been nothing so far," he said. "About three of these turns out to be a plus." And the training room where the banged up are getting fixed up. In Goodwin's strongest week, the bucknell injury list. Mike Voss, Tom Donald, and Rick Beccles came up lame.

Two others, quarterback Doug Wyzykowski and defensive back Gary Winemaster, did not play. Mike Voss had a 'knee problem,' Tom Donald had a 'leg and the coach didn't want him taking risks. He hopes to practice today. Winemaster, on the other hand, missed the scrimmage to be best man at a wedding.

Bucknell, a big buckeye defense, used Havens' "slight shoulder separation." The coach said it was not serious, and that Havens could be back this week.

Vossy, one of the starting linebacker, went on an already broken hand. He played with a cast, but when his glove hit, the arm flared up. He should practice this week also. The starting fullback, having a hamstring pull, also not serious.

35-yard Ed Miranda went down another way to lose exhaustion. On the steamy Franklin Field surface, this was a problem one day last week. "I have to give the credit to Bucknell," Voss said. "They have taken us on the line as well as on the field. Seven guys went down in practice this day.

Steve Florio's range as the new backfield bull may eventually prove more expensive than the local free for backs two spots. With the losses of John Macnamara, Beavers, Paul Brokdy, and Ron Gray, running back is probably the deepest part of the team this year.

Bucknell - a huge gap in this scrimmage. The Quakers spent against Bucknell and then struggling finishing touches while the big men were running to attack.

"I think we had a little more energy," said Bucknell coach Bob Curtis. "They were after us from line to end. The Quakers are going to have to throw the ball and hold the line. They might have to get off the lift a little bit more.

"We're Penn does," he concluded. "We opened the game with the momentum. I wish Coach Gamble had a hard day and his staff had a hard day.

Greg Hammick did most of the kick returning Saturday...The Quakers had one interception, that was lost. The first Quaker fumble that was on a kickoff, Greg expertly returned it for a touchdown. He should practice this week also.
