U. Student Dies After High Rise North Fall

By ROBERT WIEBER

In the early morning hours of a recent Saturday, a student was found dead at the University of Pennsylvania.

The student, who was an 18-year-old freshman, had apparently fallen from his eighth floor bedroom window.

The student's family was notified of his death by the University's Student Health Service.

The cause of death has not yet been determined, according to campus police.

In a statement released by the University, President David M. Rothberg said, "Our thoughts and prayers are with the family and friends of the student. We will continue to provide support to them and to the University community as we work through this difficult time."

SEPTA Plans to Improve Security

By JOE SANCHELLI

The Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority (SEPTA) has announced plans to improve security at its facilities.

SEPTA, which operates the region's mass transit system, said it will be implementing new security measures at all of its facilities.

The measures will include the installation of closed-circuit television cameras and increased patrols by security personnel.

SEPTA has a $1.5 million contract with the city of Philadelphia for the installation of closed-circuit television cameras.

Police officers are assigned to the transportation hub during peak travel times.

Informed sources said committee members had the impression that the new security measures would be ready for duty in six months.

The panel, formally known as the Committee on Official Standards of Conduct, agreed with the jury's guilty verdict.

"People will go home with specific ideas for improvement or creation of new standards," Anderson stated, quoting the registrar of the University of Chicago, Duke and Harvard Universities, among others.

Iraq Declares War on Iran

Iran and Iraq have been sparring along their borders for months. The latest round of fighting began Tuesday, when the Iraqi Air Force reportedly attacked an oil refinery in the southern part of Iraq.

The United Nations has called for a cease-fire and peaceful resolution of the conflict. However, the two countries have shown no signs of retreating from their positions.

Muskie Addresses U.N.

Muskie said that the United States was prepared to help mediate a peaceful solution to the dispute.

“Whatever we can do to help bring about a just and lasting peace in the Middle East, we will do,” he said. “We are committed to supporting the efforts of the United Nations and its mediators.”

Teachers End Strike Here

Teachers in this city have ended their strike after 14 days. The teachers and school district reached an agreement that includes a pay raise, a longer school year, and more support staff.

“We are grateful for the hard work and dedication of our teachers during this difficult time,” said the school district’s superintendent. “We look forward to a successful school year for all our students.”

I walk around, day to day, week to week, dealing with a feeling of paranoia. I don't worry about burglars sneaking into my room, or about my house burning down. The only reason to worry about muggers sneaking up on me, or about my house burning down is to provide something badly needed: a unique combination of marketable skills. Neither group wants my services. The reason is that I'm demented. Ihe handwriting on my notes is neat and orderly. It's funny to see how pseudo-philosophical I was senior year. I believe that those notebooks reflect my genuine input into the selection of Gregorian. Whether it was Gregorian or not, my interest in the University was genuine. I still can't accept the unacceptable. I don't expect Gregorian to remain in the University after December. He is not to be condemned for his election. If he is not to be condemned, then he has a right to choose who he wants to be. I can't accept that he had betrayed the provost, or that I had betrayed the provost, or that I had betrayed the community. I don't care what is done, final, accomplished. I can't accept that he has left. I'm demented. I don't care what is done, final, accomplished. I don't care that he has left.

Meanwhile, House spokesman Stephen Warren said that the lawmaker believes a revised version of the bill before the House may be closer to passing.

"Ozzi has no plans to step down as representative of those issues," said Mike Clemen, Myers' administrative assistant.

The congressional survivor says Myers is under "heavy pressure" to quit rather than face the House in a suicide attempt in an election year.

The women's tennis team opened its 1993 season this past weekend in Glassboro. The team will play its first two matches at home this week.

Women's Tennis Preview

Charley Page

The team's performance should be a mirror of the depth of the talent the team possesses. This year's team is expected to perform well.

The backbone of the team is led by junior captain Wendy Levy, senior Victoria Smith, and sophomore Lauren Link. The depth of the team is its strength. Expect a lot of upsets and surprises.

The team's record is 4-0. It has won its last four matches, including a 9-0 drubbing at the hands of Colgate. The team is optimistic and could have a good season.

The season preview is available in this issue of The Daily Pennsylvanian.
